Civil Rights Campaign Continued in Selma, Ala.

By REX THOMAS

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — With the voter registration board in recess, Negroes turn their attention back to restaurants and other public facilities in Selma today in a continuing civil rights campaign.

They talked about renewed efforts to get service at a downtown drug store where one group was turned away Monday and perhaps at three others whose lunch counters they found closed.

The right-to-vote drive which sent 225 Negroes to jail in two days was halted temporarily because the registration board completed a three-day week Wednesday and recessed until Monday.

County officers under Sheriff James G. Clark, who had been content earlier in the week to arrest Negroes only at the courthouse, spread out into the city Wednesday afternoon to take three civil rights marchers into custody and bring the arrest total for the day to 159.

Except for the 156 Negroes jailed earlier in the day because of another courthouse march and the 66 arrested Tuesday, it was the first time in months that the sheriff's deputies had gone into the jurisdiction of the city police to make arrests.

And they did it in plain view of municipal officers who were following the Negro marchers back to a church. City police

Dist. 11 School Boundaries Are Redrawn

In a move designed to solve some of the problems created by the mushrooming school population of Colorado Springs in general and the District 11 school system in particular, the District 11 School Board voted in its monthly meeting Wednesday to redraw the boundaries for the three high schools in the system.

The boundaries will become effective for the 1965-66 school year, according to Thomas B. Doherty, superintendent of schools for District 11. Boundaries for the General William Mitchell High School, the Roy J. Wasson High School, and the General William J. Palmer High School will be redrawn to coincide with the opening of the new Mitchell school.

'Great Society Is Crowded,' Lyndon Declares

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bit tired but beaming, President Johnson celebrated his inauguration at all five of his jam-packed inaugural balls. But he had to admit:

"Never have so many paid so much to dance so little."

It was an exuberant evening for the First Family and for Vice President and Mrs. Hubert H. Humphrey.

In fact, Humphrey became so exuberant at one point that he wished for success and happiness for the administration in the next four years "and then we'll continue on for four more years."

But when someone in the crowd, remembering the vigorous Humphrey campaign, shouted "Give 'em hell, Horatio," Humphrey grinned and said "not tonight."

It seemed every one of the expected 25,000 went to the dances at the National Guard Armory, and the Mayflower, Statler-Hilton, Shoreham and Sheraton-Park hotels.

Johnson was grateful and told the crowd at his final stop — the Sheraton-Park ballroom: "This has been a great day and a great night."

After working through the throngs that taxed his heavy Secret Service detail, the President concluded: "One thing I can say about the Great Society — it sure is crowded.

Though he celebrated happily Wednesday night, accompanied by his wife, daughters, their dates, the Humphreys and inaugural officials, the President was ready to get back to work. He told a reporter as he drove

Man Sentenced; Roeser Delays Information

One man was sentenced in county court Wednesday and details were still not available to the press Thursday morning.

County Judge Jack Roeser, who imposed sentence, attempted to excuse the delay on the grounds that the system was "still new," and "not quite in working order."

Under the former justice court system, which was replaced by the county court Jan. 12, cases were made available to the press immediately after disposition.

Cases against another 25 defendants in county court Wednesday were reportedly continued, chiefly at the request of the district attorney's office.

The exact disposition of the 25 cases is as yet unknown to the press as the files have not been made available.

The revamped county court handled its first traffic violators Jan. 14. All of those who pleaded guilty waited a minimum of two hours before Judge Roeser told them the amount of their fines.

Under the new system traffic cases are heard on Tuesdays and Thursdays and everyone scheduled to appear in court on a particular day must be there when the doors open at 9:30 a.m.

Judge Robert Cole calls the docket at that time. Those pleading not guilty remain in his court for a trial setting. The remainder go before Judge Roeser to be fined or jailed.

Criminal matters are heard on Wednesdays and civil cases Mondays and Fridays.

The reorganized court system resulted from the judicial reform amendment which was passed by voters in the 1962 general election.

Churchill's Condition Deteriorates

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill's condition was unchanged today, the midday medical bulletin said.

Issued by Lord Moran, Churchill's physician, at 12:16 p.m., the bulletin announced:

"There is no change in Sir Winston's condition. There will be a further bulletin this evening."

A new deterioration in the 90-year-old statesman's circulation was reported Wednesday night by his physician, Lord Moran, who said in the 13th bulletin he had issued on Churchill's condition:

"The weakness of Sir Winston's circulation is more marked. There is nothing else to report."

Interpreting the physician's announcement, a medical consultant said: "This indicates that what have been days of waiting may now be shortened to hours. The report of weakened circulation reveals that blood pressure is dropping and general bodily functions must soon fail."

Lord Moran went to Churchill's bedside three times Wednesday, including an unexpected call in the afternoon. Asked Wednesday night if

Ft. Carson Man Found Guilty Of Robbery

Robert Lee Johnson, 32, Ft. Carson, was found guilty of aggravated robbery by a district court jury Wednesday night after one and a half hours deliberation.

He was accused of the Sept. 23 robbery of the Uptown Liquor Store, 18 S. Corona St., when $366.01 was stolen from an employee, Jack Granfield, after Johnson stunned him with a rock.

Defense counsel James Moyers made no effort to deny the guilt of his client, and the entire case revolved around the question of the defendant's sanity. Was he sane or insane at the time of the crime?

Dr. Harold C. Hobbs, a psychologist at the Emory John Brady Hospital, testified for the defense. He said the defendant was unable to adhere to the right and refrain from doing wrong at the time of the incident.

Dr. Hobbs examined Johnson three times and found him suffering from a mental disease or emotional illness classified as psychotic depression. Explaining his definition, the witness said Johnson had lost contact with reality in his attempt to handle his anxiety, and that his ability to enter into communication with others had been impaired.

Because of this deep rooted depression, the witness said, the defendant had a strong feeling that he must be punished or destroyed as he believed he had

Policeman Shot To Death in Denver Chase

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Patrolman Paul Major, 41, was shot to death Wednesday night, police said, while chasing two young men who fled from an allegedly stolen car in south Denver.

Major, wounded in the left chest, died in an ambulance en route to a hospital.

Officers said Patrolman Albert Peterson and Major, a 15-year veteran on the force, were chasing a stolen car and overtook it.

Peterson grabbed one of the two occupants after a short chase on foot and returned to the patrol car while Major pursued the other man in a dark alley. Major's gun was found in his holster.

A second man, identified by police as Phil Gonzales, 24, was later arrested and held for questioning in the shooting of Major.

The first man arrested gave the name of John Robert Lacero, police said.

Viet Buddhists Declare 'War' Against Generals

By MICHAEL T. MALLOY

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) —South Viet Nam's Buddhist hierarchy today declared war on this embattled country's anti-Communist army.

They denounced army generals as "power hungry," withdrew from a Buddhist - army unity council, and mustered 50 Buddhist chaplains around five fasting monks at the national Buddist center.

Saigon's military governor threatened today to impose a curfew if the Buddhist attempts to topple the government produce any more riots similar to those which erupted here Wednesday.

Meanwhile, reliable sources reported that U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor, in a weekend meeting with two of the principal Buddhist monks, attempted to persuade them to mitigate their opposition to Prime Minister Tran Van Huong.

Apparently the attempt to convince the monks that their opposition was threatening to disrupt the American - backed effort to bring about formation of stable government that can face up to the serious Viet Cong bid to take over the country failed. Wednesday, the two monks, Thich Tam Chau and Thich Tri Quang, joined three other monks in an "unlimited" hunger strike at the Buddhist center.

The Buddhists' opposition to the army was announced in a communique issued by the Buddhist center today. It recalled that the Buddhists had shown "goodwill" but stated that the generals were power hungry and efforts at a common front had "lost their meaning."

Wednesday's start of the hunger strike was followed by a protest march by youths which led to police use of tear gas and to fire over the heads of the rioters.

Police sources said a total of

Iran's Premier Is Wounded by Young Gunman

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Premier Hassan Ali Mansour was shot twice today as he left his car to enter Parliament. Surgeons gave him a good chance to live.

The government announced a youth identified as Mohammed Bokharaei, 20, had been arrested as the attacker. It gave no indication of his motive.

Mansour was in surgery for 3½ hours for the removal of bullets from his throat and spleen. Doctors called the operation successful.

Mansour's brother, Javad, told newsmen: "He is improving and there is a 95 per cent hope for his life."

The premier was shot as he was about to enter Parliament to present five new oil agreements Iran signed this week with major oil companies. Under the agreements, Iran will receive 75 per cent of the income from oil production and $185 million in cash.

Mansour, 41, was named premier by the shah last March. An expert in economic and social affairs, he headed the New Iran party, composed mainly of progressive intellectuals versed in economics and social matters.

His major task was advancement of the shah's program, which includes transfer of land from the landlords to the peas-

'Political Bribe' Charges Probed In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The spotlight in the New York Democratic party's bitter factional fight over selection of majority legislative leaders was on an oak-paneled hearing room of the State Commission of Investigation today.

The leadership impasse has tied up the Legislature since it convened Jan. 6 in Albany and no business has been conducted.

In a closed-door session, the four commission members — two Democrats and two Republicans — open an inquiry into charges made by Mayor Robert F. Wagner of a political "bribe."

Wagner, a Democrat, was tapped as the leadoff witness to support his public assertions against State Democratic Chairman William H. McKeon.

Wagner has accused McKeon of offering key committee chairmanships, plus non-accountable, inflated expense funds — known as "lulus" — to two unidentified senators to influence the legislative leadership dispute.

McKeon has denied the charges.

The mayor said the alleged offer was made Jan. 12 in a room of the Dewitt Clinton Hotel in Albany to New York County Chairman J. Raymond Jones, who refused it.

Jones and two others said to be at the meeting also were scheduled to testify before the commission. They are Assemblyman Moses M. Weinstein, Queens County leader, and Maurice J. O'Rourke, elections commissioner and New York County secretary.

Other political leaders reported to be at the Albany meeting were also to be questioned, possibly Friday. They are, in addition to McKeon, Joseph Crengle, an aide to Erie County's chairman, Peter J. Crotty, Nassau County Chairman John F. Eng-

Longshoremen Indicate End Of Dock Strike

By AUSTIN SCOTT

NEW YORK (AP) — A possible early end to the crippling Maine-to-Texas dock strike was in the hands of striking New York longshoremen today, as they voted a second time on a contract they rejected two weeks ago.

Thomas W. Gleason, president of the AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association, says he has received enough petitions and telephone calls to assure acceptance of the proposed contract with the New York Shipping Association.

But even if his prediction proves correct, contract disputes in other ports could prolong the 11-day walkout that has idled 343 ships on the East Coast.

Some 60,000 men are idle and estimates of the cost to the national economy range from $20 million to $67 million a day.

However, an Associated Press survey indicated that the strike's full impact has not been felt in some areas.

Boston reported losing $500,000 weekly. Officials commented that many industries apparently were unaffected since they had not used up in-

$13 Million in Sales Noted At Stock Show

DENVER (AP) — Prize livestock on exhibition or already sold at the National Western Stock Show has an estimated value of $13 million, a survey showed today.

Also, show officials predicted total attendance for the exposition, ending Saturday night, should hit 180,000, compared to the record of 176,000 set in 1961.

A show railbird commented the name of the grand champion steer should be changed from Many Much Muscle to Many Much Money after it was sold Wednesday for the National Western record price of $7 per pound.

This meant a check of $7,434 for Kenneth Eitel of Green Castle, Mo., owner of the sleek Angus.

The price of $4.25 paid for the reserve champion also was a show record. This animal also was an Angus, owned by Marlene Wiseman, 17, and Anita Bufler, both of Gilman, Iowa.

The junior show champion steer, owned by Anne Patton of Earl Park, Ind., went for $2.85 per pound.

Linda Greenwald, 13-year-old Greeley girl, who has been exhibiting at the National Western for four years, sold her grand champion lamb for $5.25 per pound to the Hilton Hotel. The wether weighed 114 pounds. The price was 50 cents higher than for last year's champion lamb.

Ron Kindsfater of Greeley sold his reserve champion in the Hereford division to the Pinehurst County Club near Denver for $1.05 per pound.

New Objections Reported to Jenkins Probe

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — (Special) — It's far from certain that Walter Jenkins will testify before the Senate Rules Committee when it resumes its on-again-off-again Bobby Baker investigation.

Lennox McLendon, committee counsel, has let it be known the former long-time close assistant of President Johnson has been "alerted" to appear next week. But, highly significant, Jenkins has maintained tight-lipped silence on that, and possibly even more revealing, White House insiders are dropping enigmatic hints.

They are pointedly noting certain potential obstacles that may enable Jenkins, once again, to escape embarrassing grilling:

—McLendon's admission to newsmen that he doesn't know whether Jenkins' doctor will allow him to come before the committee. Several months ago the doctor barred that on the grounds Jenkins had not recovered from the "acute exhaustion" that followed his sensational arrest on a morals charge.

—The contention that the Rules Committee, at its last meeting on December 9, did not formally vote to summon Jenkins; that this was "only an informal agreement." This is hotly denied by Senator John Sherman Cooper, Ky., only Republican present at this session, whose insistent demand Jenkins be interrogated was unanimously approved by the five Democratic committeemen.

—A backstage administration plan to "transfer" the long-bumbling Baker probe to a new Ethics Committee — voted last year, but still nonexistent. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., has yet to do anything about naming the six members — three Democrats, three Republicans. It's strongly suspected that shifting the Baker investigation to the new committee would mean further stalling and possible eventual shelving of it entirely.

In the Rules Committee's last round of Baker hearings, Senator Cooper carried the brunt of Republican representation. Most of the time he was the only one of the three GOP committeemen present.

Senator Hugh Scott, Pa., attended none of the sessions. Senator Carl Curtis, Neb., was intermittently present; but notably NOT when Cooper singlehandedly raised the Jenkins issue. A Curtis staff member, in response to inquiries, said he was "unavoidably detained."

ANOTHER SHOWDOWN

Senator Cooper is set to force another showdown if there is more stalling on Jenkins.

If that becomes necessary, Cooper will this time demand a record vote.

In his emphatic opinion, the committee unanimously agreed to require Jenkins to appear at

Diver Drowns During Search For Missing Boy

NORTHAMPTON, Pa. (AP) — A scuba diver drowned Wednesday night while trying to find the body of a nine-year-old boy who fell through ice on the Lehigh River. Two other divers suffered exposure.

Police said the boy, Frank Lang, of Northampton, and three other boys had started to cross the frozen river Wednesday.

The Lang boy got to within about five or six feet of the other side when the ice broke and he disappeared. Lang was a fourth grade pupil at Our Lady of Hungary elementary school on the Northampton banks of the Lehigh.

Authorities quoted witnesses as saying the diver, Robert W. Mihulec, 20, of nearby Allentown, a member of the Fountain Hill emergency diving squad, said he had enough air for about five minutes under water.

According to witnesses, Mihulec and Gary Sampson, 19, of nearby Salisbury Township, tied themselves together. After a few minutes in the water their lights disappeared.

Sampson was treated at the hospital for exposure and discharged. Robert M. Hoffman, 28, of Fountain Hill, who went into the water after Mihulec and Sampson, also was treated for exposure.

The search for the boy's body will be resumed Thursday.

Elderly Man Found Dead In House

An elderly man was found dead in his house this morning by police when they responded to a call from the owner of the house the man was living in. Although details were unavailable at press time, police said they thought the man had been dead for some time.

The man was identified county coroner Dr. R. W. Urich as Chalmers S. McCall,, 58, 1612 Del Nort Court.

Apparently the attempt to convince the monks that their opposition was threatening to disrupt the American - backed effort to bring about formation of stable government that can face up to the serious Viet Cong bid to take over the country failed. Wednesday, the two monks, Thich Tam Chau and Thich Tri Quang, joined three other monks in an "unlimited" hunger strike at the Buddhist center.

The Buddhists' opposition to the army was announced in a communique issued by the Buddhist center today. It recalled that the Buddhists had shown "goodwill" but stated that the generals were power hungry and efforts at a common front had "lost their meaning."

Wednesday's start of the hunger strike was followed by a protest march by youths which led to police use of tear gas and to fire over the heads of the rioters.

Police sources said a total of

Iran's Premier Is Wounded by Young Gunman

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Premier Hassan Ali Mansour was shot twice today as he left his car to enter Parliament. Surgeons gave him a good chance to live.

The government announced a youth identified as Mohammed Bokharaei, 20, had been arrested as the attacker. It gave no indication of his motive.

Mansour was in surgery for 3½ hours for the removal of bullets from his throat and spleen. Doctors called the operation successful.

Mansour's brother, Javad, told newsmen: "He is improving and there is a 95 per cent hope for his life."

The premier was shot as he was about to enter Parliament to present five new oil agreements Iran signed this week with major oil companies. Under the agreements, Iran will receive 75 per cent of the income from oil production and $185 million in cash.

Mansour, 41, was named premier by the shah last March. An expert in economic and social affairs, he headed the New Iran party, composed mainly of progressive intellectuals versed in economics and social matters.

His major task was advancement of the shah's program, which includes transfer of land from the landlords to the peas-

'Political Bribe' Charges Probed In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The spotlight in the New York Democratic party's bitter factional fight over selection of majority legislative leaders was on an oak-paneled hearing room of the State Commission of Investigation today.

The leadership impasse has tied up the Legislature since it convened Jan. 6 in Albany and no business has been conducted.

In a closed-door session, the four commission members — two Democrats and two Republicans — open an inquiry into charges made by Mayor Robert F. Wagner of a political "bribe."

Wagner, a Democrat, was tapped as the leadoff witness to support his public assertions against State Democratic Chairman William H. McKeon.

Wagner has accused McKeon of offering key committee chairmanships, plus non-accountable, inflated expense funds — known as "lulus" — to two unidentified senators to influence the legislative leadership dispute.

McKeon has denied the charges.

The mayor said the alleged offer was made Jan. 12 in a room of the Dewitt Clinton Hotel in Albany to New York County Chairman J. Raymond Jones, who refused it.

Jones and two others said to be at the meeting also were scheduled to testify before the commission. They are Assemblyman Moses M. Weinstein, Queens County leader, and Maurice J. O'Rourke, elections commissioner and New York County secretary.

Other political leaders reported to be at the Albany meeting were also to be questioned, possibly Friday. They are, in addition to McKeon, Joseph Crengle, an aide to Erie County's chairman, Peter J. Crotty, Nassau County Chairman John F. Eng-

Longshoremen Indicate End Of Dock Strike

By AUSTIN SCOTT

NEW YORK (AP) — A possible early end to the crippling Maine-to-Texas dock strike was in the hands of striking New York longshoremen today, as they voted a second time on a contract they rejected two weeks ago.

Thomas W. Gleason, president of the AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association, says he has received enough petitions and telephone calls to assure acceptance of the proposed contract with the New York Shipping Association.

But even if his prediction proves correct, contract disputes in other ports could prolong the 11-day walkout that has idled 343 ships on the East Coast.

Some 60,000 men are idle and estimates of the cost to the national economy range from $20 million to $67 million a day.

However, an Associated Press survey indicated that the strike's full impact has not been felt in some areas.

Boston reported losing $500,000 weekly. Officials commented that many industries apparently were unaffected since they had not used up in-

$13 Million in Sales Noted At Stock Show

DENVER (AP) — Prize livestock on exhibition or already sold at the National Western Stock Show has an estimated value of $13 million, a survey showed today.

Also, show officials predicted total attendance for the exposition, ending Saturday night, should hit 180,000, compared to the record of 176,000 set in 1961.

A show railbird commented the name of the grand champion steer should be changed from Many Much Muscle to Many Much Money after it was sold Wednesday for the National Western record price of $7 per pound.

This meant a check of $7,434 for Kenneth Eitel of Green Castle, Mo., owner of the sleek Angus.

The price of $4.25 paid for the reserve champion also was a show record. This animal also was an Angus, owned by Marlene Wiseman, 17, and Anita Bufler, both of Gilman, Iowa.

The junior show champion steer, owned by Anne Patton of Earl Park, Ind., went for $2.85 per pound.

Linda Greenwald, 13-year-old Greeley girl, who has been exhibiting at the National Western for four years, sold her grand champion lamb for $5.25 per pound to the Hilton Hotel. The wether weighed 114 pounds. The price was 50 cents higher than for last year's champion lamb.

Ron Kindsfater of Greeley sold his reserve champion in the Hereford division to the Pinehurst County Club near Denver for $1.05 per pound.

Diver Drowns During Search For Missing Boy

NORTHAMPTON, Pa. (AP) — A scuba diver drowned Wednesday night while trying to find the body of a nine-year-old boy who fell through ice on the Lehigh River. Two other divers suffered exposure.

Police said the boy, Frank Lang, of Northampton, and three other boys had started to cross the frozen river Wednesday.

The Lang boy got to within about five or six feet of the other side when the ice broke and he disappeared. Lang was a fourth grade pupil at Our Lady of Hungary elementary school on the Northampton banks of the Lehigh.

Authorities quoted witnesses as saying the diver, Robert W. Mihulec, 20, of nearby Allentown, a member of the Fountain Hill emergency diving squad, said he had enough air for about five minutes under water.

According to witnesses, Mihulec and Gary Sampson, 19, of nearby Salisbury Township, tied themselves together. After a few minutes in the water their lights disappeared.

Sampson was treated at the hospital for exposure and discharged. Robert M. Hoffman, 28, of Fountain Hill, who went into the water after Mihulec and Sampson, also was treated for exposure.

The search for the boy's body will be resumed Thursday.

Elderly Man Found Dead In House

An elderly man was found dead in his house this morning by police when they responded to a call from the owner of the house the man was living in. Although details were unavailable at press time, police said they thought the man had been dead for some time.

The Colorado Springs Fire Department was called and had to bring gas masks to the house to allow police to enter, according to Lt. Lewis Heinz.

The man was identified county coroner Dr. R. W. Urich as Chalmers S. McCall,, 58, 1612 Del Nort Court.

ROBBERY FAILS

LAKEWOOD (UPI)— An unidentified teller at a drive-in window of the Rocky Mountain National Bank of Lakewood was prepared when two men drove up in a car, pulled a chrome-plated revolver and demanded money. He jumped off his stool and out of sight. The two men then drove off.

'Great Society Is Crowded,' Lyndon Declares

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bit tired but beaming, President Johnson celebrated his inauguration at all five of his jam-packed inaugural balls. But he had to admit:

"Never have so many paid so much to dance so little."

It was an exuberant evening for the First Family and for Vice President and Mrs. Hubert H. Humphrey.

In fact, Humphrey became so exuberant at one point that he wished for success and happiness for the administration in the next four years "and then we'll continue on for four more years."

But when someone in the crowd, remembering the vigorous Humphrey campaign, shouted "Give 'em hell, Heratio," Humphrey grinned and said "not tonight."

It seemed every one of the expected 25,000 went to the dances at the National Guard Armory, and the Mayflower, Statler-Hilton, Shoreham and Sheraton-Park hotels.

Johnson was grateful and told the crowd at his final stop — the Sheraton-Park ballroom: "This has been a great day and a great night."

After working through the throngs that taxed his heavy Secret Service detail, the President concluded: "One thing I can say about the Great Society — it sure is crowded.

Though he celebrated happily Wednesday night, accompanied by his wife, daughters, their dates, the Humphreys and inaugural officials, the President was ready to get back to work. He told a reporter as he drove

Man Sentenced; Roeser Delays Information

One man was sentenced in county court Wednesday and details were still not available to the press Thursday morning.

County Judge Jack Roeser, who imposed sentence, attempted to excuse the delay on the grounds that the system was "still new," and "not quite in working order."

Under the former justice court system, which was replaced by the county court Jan. 12, cases were made available to the press immediately after disposition.

Cases against another 25 defendants in county court Wednesday were reportedly continued, chiefly at the request of the district attorney's office.

The exact disposition of the 25 cases is as yet unknown to the press as the files have not been made available.

The revamped county court handled its first traffic violators Jan. 14. All of those who pleaded guilty waited a minimum of two hours before Judge Roeser told them the amount of their fines.

Under the new system traffic cases are heard on Tuesdays and Thursdays and everyone scheduled to appear in court on a particular day must be there when the doors open at 9:30 a.m.

Judge Robert Cole calls the docket at that time. Those pleading not guilty remain in his court for a trial setting. The remainder go before Judge Roeser to be fined or jailed.

Criminal matters are heard on Wednesdays and civil cases Mondays and Fridays.

The reorganized court system resulted from the judicial reform amendment which was passed by voters in the 1962 general election.

Policeman Shot To Death in Denver Chase

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Patrolman Paul Major, 41, was shot to death Wednesday night, police said, while chasing two young men who fled from an allegedly stolen car in south Denver.

Major, wounded in the left chest, died in an ambulance en route to a hospital.

Officers said Patrolman Albert Peterson and Major, a 15-year veteran on the force, were chasing a stolen car and overtook it.

Peterson grabbed one of the two occupants after a short chase on foot and returned to the patrol car while Major pursued the other man in a dark alley. Major's gun was found in his holster.

A second man, identified by police as Phil Gonzalez, 24, was later arrested and held for questioning in the shooting of Major.

The first man arrested gave the name of John Robert Lucero, police said.

New Objections Reported to Jenkins Probe

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — (Special) — It's far from certain that Walter Jenkins will testify before the Senate Rules Committee when it resumes its on-again-off-again Bobby Baker investigation.

Lennox McLendon, committee counsel, has let it be known the former long-time close assistant of President Johnson has been "alerted" to appear next week. But, highly significant, Jenkins has maintained tight-lipped silence on that, and possibly even more revealing, White House insiders are dropping enigmatic hints.

They are pointedly noting certain potential obstacles that may enable Jenkins, once again, to escape embarrassing grilling:

—McLendon's admission to newsmen that he doesn't know whether Jenkins' doctor will allow him to come before the committee. Several months ago the doctor barred that on the grounds Jenkins had not recovered from the "acute exhaustion" that followed his sensational arrest on a morals charge.

—The contention that the Rules Committee, at its last meeting on December 9, did not formally vote to summon Jenkins; that this was "only an informal agreement." This is hotly denied by Senator John Sherman Cooper, Ky., only Republican present at this session, whose insistent demand Jenkins be interrogated was unanimously approved by the five Democratic committeemen.

—A backstage administration plan to "transfer" the long-bumbling Baker probe to a new Ethics Committee — voted last year, but still nonexistent. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., has yet to do anything about naming the six members — three Democrats, three Republicans. It's strongly suspected that shifting the Baker investigation to the new committee would mean further stalling and possible eventual shelving of it entirely.

In the Rules Committee's last round of Baker hearings, Senator Cooper carried the brunt of Republican representation. Most of the time he was the only one of the three GOP committeemen present.

Senator Hugh Scott, Pa., attended none of the sessions. Senator Carl Curtis, Neb., was intermittently present; but notably NOT when Cooper single-handedly raised the Jenkins issue. A Curtis staff member, in response to inquiries, said he was "unavoidably detained."

ANOTHER SHOWDOWN

Senator Cooper is not to force another showdown if there is more stalling on Jenkins.

If that becomes necessary, Cooper will this time demand a record vote.

In his emphatic opinion, the committee unanimously agreed to require Jenkins to appear at

HEART DRIVE OFFICIALS—Planners of the Heart Days for Business, which began its drive this week, are Edward W. Opfer, left, chairman of the El Paso County Heart Unit; and Gen. Benjamin W. Chidlaw, USAF (ret.), chairman of the 1965 Heart Fund Campaign. (Stewart's Commercial Photo)

Heart Days For Business Starts Here

Heart Days for Business, which began this week, will continue through Feb. 8.

Business men and women of Colorado Springs have given support to this drive sponsored by the El Paso County Heart Unit.

More than 50 volunteers will canvass the downtown and other business districts.

The drive was launched Monday at a meeting in the Village Inn. Edward W. Opfer, president of the El Paso County Heart Unit and chairman of the advanced gifts division of the campaign, presided. Gen. Benjamin W. Chidlaw, (ret.), chairman of the 1965 Heart Fund, attended.

"While heart diseases continue to take more lives than all other causes of death combined, medical science is making encouraging progress in its effort to safeguard hearts and lives," Gen. Chidlaw said.

Opfer introduced Mrs. Ralph Adams and Carl King, co-chairmen for business solicitation. Mrs. Adams has worked with the Heart Fund since 1955 when she organized the first Heart Sunday in Colorado Springs. She remains its chairman until 1958 when she began business chairman for the campaign. She won the Gold Heart Award in 1963, a state citation for volunteer work.

King, a newcomer to this area, will head a committee to solicit small business in the downtown area. Mrs. Adams will be responsible for shopping centers.

Luci's Favorite Boy Friend Comes to Dance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teenage Luci Johnson's favorite boy friend finally made it home in time to take her to dance at the inaugural balls.

Paul Betz, 20, a premedical student, was busy taking exams at Mount St. Mary's College at Emmitsburg, Md. Luci was wearing his school pin at her father's noontime inaugural ceremony.

Luci went to all the other inaugural activities squired by Paul's older brother, Jim, 26. And, she made a big plea to the nation's colleges to switch their exam times so they won't conflict with future presidential inaugurations.

After all, Luci said, it was important for young people to be interested in politics and they ought to be able to come to see an important event like getting a new president.

When she appeared at the ball Wednesday night in a rose petal satin dress, her hair upswept with a glittering tiara, Paul was her partner.

A reporter asked if that was the missing young man. Luci replied with a happy smile and emphasis, "Yes, m'am."

Sister Lynda, 20, in a white silk gown and long white evening coat, also wearing a tiara in her hair, was with her favorite date, David Lefeve, a former Marine lieutenant who now works for a New York brokerage firm. He took her to all the inaugural events.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

© 1964 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: A lot of people have asked me if all the trouble and tension in the world is a sign of the end. Could you give me some passages in the Bible in reference to this? —D. B.

ANSWER: Jesus' disciples came to him privately and asked the same question. They asked; "What shall be the sign of Thy coming and of the end of the world?"

Jesus told them that certain signs would prevail when his coming was near.

He told them: "Many shall come in My name, saying "I am Christ; and shall deceive many.

"And ye shall hear of wars and rumor of war . . . the end is not yet."

"Nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and there shall be famines and pestilences, and earthquakes in divers places."

"And many false prophets shall arise and shall deceive many."

"And then shall many be offended and hate one another."

"And because iniquity shall abound the love of many shall wax cold."

"The Gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness to all nation; AND THEN SHALL THE END COME."

All this, and much more, is found in Matthew 24.

QUESTION: Does the Bible consistently maintain that human repentance must always precede Divine forgiveness?—B. D.

ANSWER: Salvation is by grace. This means that it is unearned and unmerited. But the whole trend of Scripture teaches that man must be willing to be rescued and forgiven. In a court ruling at the turn of the century it was decreed that a pardon, even though signed by a governor of a sovereign state, is not effective unless it is accepted by the condemned.

God cannot forgive you unless you want to be forgiven. He cannot pardon you unless you wish to be pardoned. He cannot rescue you unless you want to be saved.

This is why the promise of redemption is always accompanied by a condition. Hat Industry Tries Many New Devices

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—Charles H. (Chuck) Salesky will go down in the history of the hat industry as the great innovator. His latest innovation is a stretch inner band, vulgarly called a sweat band, which could revolutionize hat buying.

Most dealers stock a minimum of 14 sizes of men's hats which means a big inventory and less choice for the consumer. The stretch inner band cuts this down to three sizes —small, medium and large— and will fit about 90 per cent of the male population. Buyers will have more styles to choose from.

The band is made of spandex, a new stretch material, and is lined with foam rubber. As result the hat buyers gets a snug and comfortable fit with the foam backing conforming with his various bumps and knobs.

Salesky, as president of the Hat Corporation of America (Cavanaugh, Knox, Dobbs, Champ and a few others, is dedicated to selling more hats than anyone else and goes about it by continually inventing something new.

He is generally credited with originating the LBJ hat which is a sort of five-gallon western hat for town wear. The cowboys thought up 10 gallon hats, of course, but Salesky worked out the LBJ and got presidential approval of use of the initials.

One of his latest innovations was a stretch hat — a poplin fabric in black, natural, navy, gold, alive and red which is both rain and stain resistant. The stretch hat was part of his total wardrobe concept and followed the trend to stretch clothing.

Some of the innovations have been tremendous successes, others have not. One that had a big run was the so-called hobo hat, or the hat of 1,000 shapes, which teen-agers, and others could mould into countless shapes and decorate with anything that pleased their fancy.

He brought in the two-tone hat which was a felt with a dark brim and a lighter crown. He also revived the derby (briefly) a few years back.

Another was the "advance silhouette," a hat with a pronounced geometrical shape. This was first designed by some industrial designers and, naturally, had to be modified before it was ready for the public.

Once he was dining in a luxurious New York restaurant and was impressed by the dessert cart with its outlay of pastries, pies, fruits, cakes and what not and quickly turned this idea into one that could sell hats. He put "dessert carts" piled with sports hats into shoe stores and sold them by the thousands of dozens as they reckon numbers in the industry.

"And since I am a great believer in the total wardrobe concept I told a group of manufacturers once to get into orbit," he said. "The hat people were promoting blues and the clothing manufacturers were promoting brown. So we began promoting corduroy hats to go with corduroy sports clothes, suede with suede, tweed with tweed et cetera."

Salesky used another innovation—the videophone — to sell the first batch of felt hats with the stretch innerband. The television-like system operates between New York and Chicago and Washington and Salesky used it to demonstrate the hats and sell orders of $8,000 each in the two cities.

He first introduced the stretch band in sports hats last fall (Champ) and will introduce it in lightweight spring felt hats later.

Some drugs, such as cascara, digitalis and quinine, are derived from plants. Vaccines come from animals. Most pharmaceuticals, however, are chemically produced.

Heart Days For Business Starts Here

Heart Days for Business, which began this week, will continue through Feb. 8.

Business men and women of Colorado Springs have given support to this drive sponsored by the El Paso County Heart Unit.

More than 50 volunteers will canvass the downtown and other business districts.

The drive was launched Monday at a meeting in the Village Inn. Edward W. Opfer, president of the El Paso County Heart Unit and chairman of the advanced gifts division of the campaign, presided. Gen. Benjamin W. Chidlaw, (ret.), chairman of the 1965 Heart Fund, attended.

"While heart diseases continue to take more lives than all other causes of death combined, medical science is making encouraging progress in its effort to safeguard hearts and lives," Gen. Chidlaw said.

Opfer introduced Mrs. Ralph Adams and Carl King, co-chairmen for business solicitation. Mrs. Adams has worked with the Heart Fund since 1955 when she organized the first Heart Sunday in Colorado Springs. She remains its chairman until 1958 when she began business chairman for the campaign. She won the Gold Heart Award in 1963, a state citation for volunteer work.

King, a newcomer to this area, will head a committee to solicit small business in the downtown area. Mrs. Adams will be responsible for shopping centers.

Luci's Favorite Boy Friend Comes to Dance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teenage Luci Johnson's favorite boy friend finally made it home in time to take her to dance at the inaugural balls.

Paul Betz, 20, a premedical student, was busy taking exams at Mount St. Mary's College at Emmitsburg, Md. Luci was wearing his school pin at her father's noontime inaugural ceremony.

Luci went to all the other inaugural activities squired by Paul's older brother, Jim, 26. And, she made a big plea to the nation's colleges to switch their exam times so they won't conflict with future presidential inaugurations.

After all, Luci said, it was important for young people to be interested in politics and they ought to be able to come to see an important event like getting a new president.

When she appeared at the ball Wednesday night in a rose petal satin dress, her hair upswept with a glittering tiara, Paul was her partner.

A reporter asked if that was the missing young man. Luci replied with a happy smile and emphasis, "Yes, m'am."

Sister Lynda, 20, in a white silk gown and long white evening coat, also wearing a tiara in her hair, was with her favorite date, David Lefeve, a former Marine lieutenant who now works for a New York brokerage firm. He took her to all the inaugural events.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

© 1964 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: A lot of people have asked me if all the trouble and tension in the world is a sign of the end. Could you give me some passages in the Bible in reference to this? —D. B.

ANSWER: Jesus' disciples came to him privately and asked the same question. They asked; "What shall be the sign of Thy coming and of the end of the world?"

Jesus told them that certain signs would prevail when his coming was near.

He told them: "Many shall come in My name, saying "I am Christ; and shall deceive many.

"And ye shall hear of wars and rumor of war . . . the end is not yet."

"Nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and there shall be famines and pestilences, and earthquakes in divers places."

"And many false prophets shall arise and shall deceive many."

"And then shall many be offended and hate one another."

"And because iniquity shall abound the love of many shall wax cold."

"The Gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness to all nation; AND THEN SHALL THE END COME."

All this, and much more, is found in Matthew 24.

QUESTION: Does the Bible consistently maintain that human repentance must always precede Divine forgiveness?—B. D.

ANSWER: Salvation is by grace. This means that it is unearned and unmerited. But the whole trend of Scripture teaches that man must be willing to be rescued and forgiven. In a court ruling at the turn of the century it was decreed that a pardon, even though signed by a governor of a sovereign state, is not effective unless it is accepted by the condemned.

God cannot forgive you unless you want to be forgiven. He cannot pardon you unless you wish to be pardoned. He cannot rescue you unless you want to be saved.

This is why the promise of redemption is always accompanied by a condition. The Bible says: "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteousness man his thoughts, and let him return unto the Lord . . . for He will have mercy upon him and He will abundantly pardon." It is not that God requires any sort of human effort. But in the Divine ethic, grace is not imparted unless it is sincerely desired. Christ stands at the door of our hearts, knocking. But we must open the door. He offers forgiveness, and the evidence of this desire is sincere repentance. It was the man who said: "God be merciful to me a sinner," who went up to his house justified."

Chopped Front Porch May Mean Free House

IRVINGTON, N.J. (AP) — Two Irvington families have been offered rent-free quarters for four months with the proviso that the landlord be permitted to chop off the front porch of their new home.

The New Jersey Highway Authority wanted to tear down their two-family home for a highway improvement but the families opposed the move on grounds their children should be allowed to finish the school year without moving.

D. Louis Tonti, executive director of the highway authority, offered them another house the authority had acquired only a few doors down the street. They could have the house rent-free until after school is out in June, he said.

"I quit cigarets at age 98," he said "It wasn't the cancer scare that got me. It was the hike in price to 30 cents a package."

Retailers See Continuation of Good Business

By LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI)—The department and speciality stores of America expect 1965 to be another good year. In fact far more of them are looking for a good year ahead than was the case last year or two years ago. This is only natural after the spectacular 11 per cent sales gain this year.

In the main, they are willing to make predictions only for the first half of the next year. According to a survey by the National Retail Merchants Association (NRMA), they expect a sales increase of 5 per cent and an earnings rise of 10 per cent in the first half on the average.

According to the NRMA, 1964's sales and profits have been "little short of fantastic."

"A 4 to 5 per cent sales gain in our industry is a good year," the association said. "We don't know right now how much 1964 earnings of department and specialty stores increased in 1964 over '63, but we wouldn't be surprised if it was anywhere from 25 to 50 per cent."

Other segments of retailing, the food stores, for example, obviously did not have such large sales gains in 1964.

Only about one-third of the dry goods stores intend to increase their promotional budgets substantially in 1965. Of those who do, by far the largest group, 34 per cent, will put the increased outlay in newspaper ads, followed by 23 per cent for direct mail and 12 per cent for radio. Only 5 per cent said they would increase local television advertising.

When the NRMA took its preview survey for 1963 only 57 per cent of the storekeepers looked for a sales rise in the coming year and 10 per cent thought sales would go down. This year 87 per cent see bigger sales ahead and 1 per cent expect a drop.

The study is based on queries to 3,366 stores with aggregate sales this year of about $4.9 billion (b).

A big question about the past year naturally was the effect on retail store trade of the Federal income tax cut. Only 11 per cent said the tax cut caused a significant rise in sales but 49 per cent said it caused a moderate rise.

As for what tax savings were spent on dry goods stores, the women spent it for clothes, in most cases. Only 6 per cent of the stores thought the tax cut increased sales of furniture and other durables.

And it is in women's clothes that the department and specialty stores expect to make their best sales gains in 1965—with blouses and sportswear in top place followed in order by adult dresses and girls wear. Things for the menfolks are way down on the list.

A rise in credit buying is quite generally expected.

It is interesting that, for the first time in several years, the downtown stores are bothered more about such internal problems as inventory control and increasing the productivity of sales workers than about the decay of the center of the city and traffic congestion.

Only 3 to 4 per cent of the stores queried said they will open new suburban branches this year. Evidently the great move to the suburbs is subsiding.

More stores expect to "trade up means carrying a little better grade and higher priced merchandise than in the past.

Patino married Mme. Beatriz de Rivera in 1960, two years after he obtained a Mexican divorce from Princess Christina.

Princess Irene Big Hit With New Fashion

By LOUISE HICKMAN

ROME (AP) — Princess Irene Galitzine made a bid with bias Wednesday night in her spring and summer collection. It was a big hit.

Her evening show, topping the start of four days of Roman fashion presentations, was the first really gala, jam-packed opening on the program.

Subtly based on the bias, the collection was elegant and ladylike. But at the very last came great, fluttering butterfly dresses in glowing, shimmering silk prints.

Otherwise the look was so restrained, so pure as to seem easy. But such fluid shape comes only from the tricky technique of cutting on the cross.

Galitzine avoided not only the flutter of bias but for the most part its traditional fabrics also. One usually associates the cut with crepe. Linen was more typical in this collection.

High-crossing surplice bodices were frequent. For evening they shed one shoulder.

Skirts were soft but rarely full. Many were double, showing at most an inch of underskirt.

When there were belts, they were circles of soft knotted leather or lightly tied lengths of ribbon.

Nothing was allowed to clutter the look, not even buttons. Double-breasted closings were held by hidden snaps.

Shoulders were soft. Suits and coats had straight, rolled-cuff bracelet sleeves. Dresses were sleeveless or had slightly jutting caps. Summer and evening jackets had short kimono-type sleeves.

Galitzine did not hike hems. They just covered the knee. Pants in her couture collection were long, soft and skirty. They came in stiff shantung, cloque cotton, crepe and ribbon lace.

Girls could go dancing in what Galitzine makes for beach and bedtime. Backless bathing suits in clinging printed lycra had matching sarong skirts of silk jersey. Filmy flowered nighties seemed to have no seams. They were layered wrapping that revealed and concealed as the girl walked.

It is interesting that, for the first time in several years, the downtown stores are bothered more about such internal problems as inventory control and increasing the productivity of sales workers than about the decay of the center of the city and traffic congestion.

Only 3 to 4 per cent of the stores queried said they will open new suburban branches this year. Evidently the great move to the suburbs is subsiding.

More stores expect to "trade up means carrying a little better grade and higher priced merchandise than in the past.

Princess Defends Her Name in Society

PARIS (AP) — Princess Christina de Bourbon, divorced wife of Bolivian tin king Antenor Patino, claims Patino's present wife has no right to use the name "Madame Patino" in France.

The princess filed suit Wednesday in Paris, claiming that Mme. Patino had listed herself in the French social register "under my name."

Patino married Mme. Beatriz de Rivera in 1960, two years after he obtained a Mexican divorce from Princess Christina.

Princess Irene Big Hit With New Fashion

By LOUISE HICKMAN

ROME (AP) — Princess Irene Galitzine made a bid with bias Wednesday night in her spring and summer collection. It was a big hit.

Her evening show, topping the start of four days of Roman fashion presentations, was the first really gala, jam-packed opening on the program.

Subtly based on the bias, the collection was elegant and ladylike. But at the very last came great, fluttering butterfly dresses in glowing, shimmering silk prints.

Otherwise the look was so restrained, so pure as to seem easy. But such fluid shape comes only from the tricky technique of cutting on the cross.

Galitzine avoided not only the flutter of bias but for the most part its traditional fabrics also. One usually associates the cut with crepe. Linen was more typical in this collection.

High-crossing surplice bodices were frequent. For evening they shed one shoulder.

Skirts were soft but rarely full. Many were double, showing at most an inch of underskirt.

When there were belts, they were circles of soft knotted leather or lightly tied lengths of ribbon.

Nothing was allowed to clutter the look, not even buttons. Double-breasted closings were held by hidden snaps.

Shoulders were soft. Suits and coats had straight, rolled-cuff bracelet sleeves. Dresses were sleeveless or had slightly jutting caps. Summer and evening jackets had short kimono-type sleeves.

Galitzine did not hike hems. They just covered the knee. Pants in her couture collection were long, soft and skirty. They came in stiff shantung, cloque cotton, crepe and ribbon lace.

Girls could go dancing in what Galitzine makes for beach and bedtime. Backless bathing suits in clinging printed lycra had matching sarong skirts of silk jersey. Filmy flowered nighties seemed to have no seams. They were layered wrapping that revealed and concealed as the girl walked.

Land Banks for Urban Purpose Being Proposed

By JOHN PIERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Urban Renewal Commissioner William L. Slayton had a sleeper in one of his recent speeches. "We have land banks to meet agricultural needs," Slayton said, "why not land banks for urban purposes as well?"

A check with the Urban Renewal administration revealed that the agency is still a long way from coming up with anything that might be called an urban land bank program. But here's what they're driving at:

Back in the 20s and early 30s, farmers in the plains states plowed up the grassland and planted it to crops. Then came dry years and the land began to blow away. Many Americans remember the dust bowl.

The reason was not hard to come by. The grasslands had no business being plowed up and put to corn or cotton. Their best natural use was in grazing.

So the government began a conservation program designed to put land to its best natural use.

Slayton says it's high time cities started doing the same thing. "For the dust is starting to blow, and in quantity. A million acres of open land are being converted to urban uses each year," he says.

An urban land conservation program would be built along a few simple principles. For example, houses should not be built on flood plains; at worst it's dangerous, at best there's a drainage problem.

Tops of mountains and ridgelines should be kept in open space, for beauty's sake and to reduce the cost of roads and other public facilities. Woods can often hold soil and water on a hillside better and less expensively than concrete and riprap.

Slayton says that with these and other guidelines, a city can put land to its best use, making a better life for the residents and in the long run saving money.

In order to control land use, a city does not always have to buy the land, he says. A hiking trail across a piece of property can be secured by the simple device of an easement. Zoning is another tool. Land can be purchased and leased back to the former owners for limited uses.

Two Nigerians Accepted by Richmond Church

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia's largest Baptist church has overruled a recommendation of its deacons and voted full membership privileges for two Nigerian students.

The congregation of the all-white First Baptist Church also called for a study and consideration within six months of a revision of its membership policy in the light of "changed world conditions."

The vote by approximately 1,000 of the church's 4,200 members Wednesday night reversed a recommendation last week by the board of deacons that the students — sons of Baptist ministers in Nigeria — be taken into the church under its "watch-care" program.

This program provides that students away from home in another city be permitted non-membership affiliation in a Baptist church of their choice. The church pastor, Dr. Theodore F. Adams — a former president of the Baptist World Alliance — had asked that the students be admitted as members.

Reporters were barred from the four-hour meeting and also from the church building. Dr. Adams told a press conference later he was "glad" the congregation voted membership for the students.

The deacons will have the responsibility of carrying out the survey of membership procedures used in other churches and reporting their findings and recommendations, he said.

Should the church eventually vote to retain its 120-year-old policy of refusing membership Adams said the membership status of the Nigerian students — Adebokun Oshoniyi, 30, and Bisi Adegbile, 23 — would not be affected.

The two, both juniors at Virginia Union University, sought membership in the church Jan. 3. Bisi Adegbile, 23 — would not be. At a meeting last Sunday, the deacons recommended their admission under the "watch-care" program.

Johnson Devotes Most of Speech To U.S. Affairs

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The little that President Johnson had to say about foreign affairs in his inaugural address emerged in philosophical and inspirational terms as a plea for peace and a protest against hatred and destruction in the world.

He devoted Wednesday's address almost entirely to domestic affairs.

Thus, those who looked to the address for guidelines to Johnson administration foreign policy must now turn back to the Jan. 4 State of the Union message and to various other Johnson speeches and news conference statements — or await future pronouncements.

But the significance of emphasis on domestic issues in the inaugural speech and to a lesser degree in the State of the Union message strengthens the impression which has been growing here for several weeks that Johnson's first concern is with home front problems.

It is also true that Johnson is starting his new administration in a relatively peaceful though generally chaotic and still dangerous world.

The most serious dangers he confronts abroad are in most cases long range. The one clear exception to this is the struggle in Viet Nam.

The other most pressing foreign policy problem, as administration officials see it, is how to handle the spread of nuclear weapons. The Kremlin has been asked to explain how an underground test in central Russia last Friday could have blown radioactive fallout into the air so that small amounts were detectable as far away as the area of Japan.

Between the Western allies and the United States the major problems requiring presidential attention are reorganization of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the related question of what to do about proposed creation of a nuclear weapons force for NATO.

On these issues Johnson has put it up to the major interested countries, Britain and West Germany, to come up with some answers. Though he says he still wants to put through the U.S.-sponsored NATO multilateral nuclear force in some form, he has ceased to press the allies urgently for its acceptance.

He seeks to avoid alienating any ally, however sharp the disagreement with the United States, as shown in his effort to maintain contacts and minimize differences with French President Charles de Gaulle.

The purpose of curing sweet potatoes is to begin the conversion of starch to sugar and extend the marketing season over a longer period.

Land Banks for Urban Purpose Being Proposed

By JOHN PIERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Urban Renewal Commissioner William L. Slayton had a sleeper in one of his recent speeches. "We have land banks to meet agricultural needs," Slayton said, "why not land banks for urban purposes as well?"

A check with the Urban Renewal administration revealed that the agency is still a long way from coming up with anything that might be called an urban land bank program. But here's what they're driving at:

Back in the 20s and early 30s, farmers in the plains states plowed up the grassland and planted it to crops. Then came dry years and the land began to blow away. Many Americans remember the dust bowl.

The reason was not hard to come by. The grasslands had no business being plowed up and put to corn or cotton. Their best natural use was in grazing.

So the government began a conservation program designed to put land to its best natural use.

Slayton says it's high time cities started doing the same thing. "For the dust is starting to blow, and in quantity. A million acres of open land are being converted to urban uses each year," he says.

An urban land conservation program would be built along a few simple principles. For example, houses should not be built on flood plains; at worst it's dangerous, at best there's a drainage problem.

Tops of mountains and ridgelines should be kept in open space, for beauty's sake and to reduce the cost of roads and other public facilities. Woods can often hold soil and water on a hillside better and less expensively than concrete and riprap.

Slayton says that with these and other guidelines, a city can put land to its best use, making a better life for the residents and in the long run saving money.

In order to control land use, a city does not always have to buy the land, he says. A hiking trail across a piece of property can be secured by the simple device of an easement. Zoning is another tool. Land can be purchased and leased back to the former owners for limited uses.

Two Nigerians Accepted by Richmond Church

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia's largest Baptist church has overruled a recommendation of its deacons and voted full membership privileges for two Nigerian students.

The congregation of the all-white First Baptist Church also called for a study and consideration within six months of a revision of its membership policy in the light of "changed world conditions."

The vote by approximately 1,000 of the church's 4,200 members Wednesday night reversed a recommendation last week by the board of deacons that the students — sons of Baptist ministers in Nigeria — be taken into the church under its "watchcare" program.

This program provides that students away from home in another city be permitted nonmembership affiliation in a Baptist church of their choice. The church pastor, Dr. Theodore F. Adams — a former president of the Baptist World Alliance — had asked that the students be admitted as members.

Reporters were barred from the four-hour meeting and also from the church building. Dr. Adams told a press conference later he was "glad" the congregation voted membership for the students.

The deacons will have the responsibility of carrying out the survey of membership procedures used in other churches and reporting their findings and recommendations, he said.

Should the church eventually vote to retain its 120-year-old policy of refusing membership Adams said the membership status of the Nigerian students — Adebokun Oshoniyi, 30, and Bisi Adegbile, 23 — would not be affected.

The two, both juniors at Virginia Union University, sought membership in the church Jan. 3. Bisi Adegbile, 23 — would not be 3. At a meeting last Sunday, the deacons recommended their admission under the "watchcare" program.

Johnson Devotes Most of Speech To U.S. Affairs

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The little that President Johnson had to say about foreign affairs in his inaugural address emerged in philosophical and inspirational terms as a plea for peace and a protest against hatred and destruction in the world.

He devoted Wednesday's address almost entirely to domestic affairs.

Thus, those who looked to the address for guidelines to Johnson administration foreign policy must now turn back to the Jan. 4 State of the Union message and to various other Johnson speeches and news conference statements — or await future pronouncements.

But the significance of emphasis on domestic issues in the inaugural speech and to a lesser degree in the State of the Union message strengthens the impression which has been growing here for several weeks that Johnson's first concern is with home front problems.

It is also true that Johnson is starting his new administration in a relatively peaceful though generally chaotic and still dangerous world.

The most serious dangers he confronts abroad are in most cases long range. The one clear exception to this is the struggle in Viet Nam.

The other most pressing foreign policy problem, as administration officials see it, is how to handle the spread of nuclear weapons. The Kremlin has been asked to explain how an underground test in central Russia last Friday could have blown radioactive fallout into the air so that small amounts were detectable as far away as the area of Japan.

Between the Western allies and the United States the major problems requiring presidential attention are reorganization of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the related question of what to do about proposed creation of a nuclear weapons force for NATO.

On these issues Johnson has put it up to the major interested countries, Britain and West Germany, to come up with some answers. Though he says he still wants to put through the U.S.-sponsored NATO multilateral nuclear force in some form, he has ceased to press the allies urgently for its acceptance.

He seeks to avoid alienating any ally, however sharp the disagreement with the United States, as shown in his effort to maintain contacts and minimize differences with French President Charles de Gaulle.

The purpose of curing sweet potatoes is to begin the conversion of starch to sugar and extend the marketing season over a longer period.

Ft. Carson Man Found Guilty Of Robbery

committed "an unpardonable sin" sometime in the past. The nature of the sin was never explained.

Rebuttal witness for the prosecution, Dr. Paul Draper, said Johnson could adhere to the right and refrain from doing the wrong when the store was robbed and therefore in his opinion was legally sane.

He had examined him four times, and in reply to a question put by Deputy District Attorney Tom Gresham, "did not believe he had been fooled by the defendant."

Earlier witnesses during the second day of the trial included Police Patrolman Raymond Mays who said the victim of the robbery had given him a partial description of his assailant.

Between the 400 and 500 block of East Bijou Street Mays said he spotted a running man who answered the description. He shone his light on him and the suspect slowed down to a walk. Mays called to him to stop and he took off running again with a fellow officer in pursuit.

He was finally caught near Bijou and El Paso Streets and when Mays arrived at the scene Johnson was lying on the ground on his stomach with the other officer seated on his back. A large roll of dollar bills were found on him, the witness said.

In response to a question put by Bob Isaac who also represented the district attorney's office with Gresham, the witness said he did not smell any alcohol on the defendant's breath nor did he stagger in any way. It was the officer's opinion that Johnson was not drunk.

Johnson complained to the two officers that they were hurting him by sitting on his back and later said the handcuffs were too tight.

In the absence of the jury the defendant took the stand and said Police Officer Richard C. Ballard had interrogated him and told him the penalty for aggravated robbery was one or two years to life but that he would not receive such a sentence. "Most people get probation," the first time, the officer is alleged to have said, consequently the defendant signed a written statement. He added that Ballard told him it might be used against him but on the other hand might help if he cooperated.

Officer Ballard testified he took a signed statement from Johnson but had advised him of his constitutional rights earlier and had never made threats, promises or inducements.

Under cross-examination attorney Moyers asked the witness if probation had ever been mentioned during the interrogation and the officer said it had and believed he had brought it up.

Johnson, explained Ballard, wanted to know what would happen to him. The officer told him that the court would appoint an attorney to represent him and that he could be sent to the penitentiary, found not guilty or get probation.

He denied ever having told the defendant that he would receive a better chance if he cooperated. The witness said Johnson wanted to make a statement. Johnson also was said to have told Ballard he "had made a mistake and wanted to get the whole thing over as soon as possible." Ballard added that Johnson had been AWOL for several days and had originally gone to the liquor store "to buy another bottle."

In his closing statement to the jury attorney Moyers said there were three possible verdicts to choose from, not guilty, guilty as charged and not guilty by reason of insanity. Moyers said he did not ask the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty, "That would be absurd," he said. He requested a humane verdict and asked for a verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity.

Presiding judge Hunter D. Hardeman gave defense counsel 10 days in which to file a motion for a new trial.

New Objections Reported to Jenkins Probe

the coming session, and he wants that done.

"There was an unequivocal commitment that Jenkins would be brought before the committee for questioning," says Cooper, "and I want that commitment kept. It was made in good faith, and I want the committee to do what it said it would do and not defeate the purpose of the unanimous agreement.

"If the Democratic majority decides to transfer this investigation to the new Ethics Committee when it is organized, that's all right. But not until Jenkins has come before us and testified. That's what the committee unanimously agreed on, and that must be done. Anything less is wholly unacceptable, and I'll resist it as vigorously as I can."

The five Democratic committeemen who agreed to Cooper's demand that Jenkins be grilled are Senators R. Everett Jordan, N.C., chairman; Carl Hayden, Ariz.; Howard Cannon, Nev.; Claiborne Pell, R.I.; Joseph Clark, Pa.

Last July, before the presidential campaign and when Jenkins was a top White House assistant and had not yet been arrested on a morals charge, these Democrats balked at summoning him on the ground:

"In reality, the evidence of Jenkins as given or as he might testify in person has no significant importance insofar as the committee's legislative function is concerned."

But on December 9 there was no mention of this argument when Cooper again demanded Jenkins' appearance. Instead, after a brief discussion, Chairman Jordan stated the President's one-time confidant would be brought before the committee at its next meeting in the new year.

VACATIONING AND PARTYING

It still remains to be seen whether this "informal agreement," as White House insiders are suspiciously referring to it, is made good.

Outwardly, Jenkins is apparently fit to testify. After weeks in a hospital, he and his wife vacationed in Puerto Rico, and since their return to Washington have attended social affairs growing out of the reconvening of Congress and the presidential inauguration.

One of these parties was for fellow Texans given by Representative Ray Roberts, D-Tex. Jenkins and his wife were warmly welcomed.

Guests particularly commented on his rested and hale appearance.

Asked about his health, Jenkins quietly replied, "I feel a lot better than I did. My doctor tells me I'm improving. My blood pressure isn't what I'd like it to be, but we're working on that."

This hypertension has had no adverse effect on Jenkins' status as a colonel in the Air Force Reserve. No move has been made to release him, and he hasn't volunteered to leave.

Inside word around the White House is that Jenkins will move to Austin where a "good paying" job is waiting for him. Questions whether it is with the TV-radio station owned by the President's family are answered with noncommittal shrugs.

Another undecided issue facing the Rules Committee is summoning Jay McDonnell for questioning.

A former Baker assistant in the Senate, McDonnell is eager to testify. But Democrats on the committee have refused to call him. McDonnell has told newsmen that "Baker's office resembled a political headquarters during the 1960 presidential primary. Baker later had McDonnell fired.

Churchill's Condition Deteriorates

Churchill's life was at a "low ebb," he replied, "Yes."

As newsmen waiting near Churchill's Hyde Park Gate home sought additional information on the former prime minister's condition, Moran added: "His condition is stationary. There is nothing more I can say."

The reference to Sir Winston's circulation was the first since the initial bulletin last Friday which said he had had a cold, then developed a circulatory weakness following acerebreal thrombosis.

Churchill has apparently been sleeping or in a coma most of the time since he was stricken. Moran's medical reports have indicated he has felt no pain.

Churchill had been reported restless Tuesday, but at midday Wednesday Moran said the patient had slept peaceful through the night and morning.

Churchill, too ill to be moved to a hospital, lay in his ground floor back bedroom overlooking a garden behind the brick home at No. 28 Hyde Park Gate.

His family stayed close at hand in London, as they have done since the stroke.

Lady Churchill, who will be 80 next April, took an hour's drive Wednesday with her younger daughter, Mary, wife of Conservative politician Christopher Soames. She had left the house only twice before during the week-long vigil.

Three policemen stamped their feet against the cold as they stood guard in the street during the night. Only a dim hall light could be seen from the street.

A handful of newsmen kept watch at the entrance to the deadend street.

During the morning two busloads of tourists halted at the entrance to Hyde Park Gate

Over microphones inside the buses, the guides called attention to Churchill's home at the far end of the street.

Every head inside the bus turned, and the tourists gave a long look. Several men removed their hats.

Missing from the street scene was bearded Robert Wilson, a New Zealander who had kept a vigil in Hyde Park Gate since Sir Winston was stricken.

"We don't know where he's gone," said a police constable. "He wasn't here when I came on duty at 8 o'clock this morning."

Wilson, a familiar character at the famous speaker's corner in Hyde Park, had taken up a position outside the Churchill residence. From time to time he would walk into the street, drop on his knees and offer a prayer for Sir Winston.

He kept a Bible in his coat pocket.

In the bitter snowstorm Wednesday, however, he complained of being very cold.

Rep. Cook Wants Lower Property Taxes

Rep. T. Everett Cook (D-Fremont-Custer) reported this week he introduced three house bills in the current session of the state legislature designed to take the load off property taxpayers.

The bills would reduce the 30 per cent property tax to 5 per cent of the assessed valuation. The various bills offered by Cook concern: inventory, livestock, and personal property taxes when applied to equipment used to make a living.

Rep. Cook, a freshman in the house, has been appointed to the post of chairman of the natural resources committee, he said.

Dist. 11 School Boundaries Are Redrawn

edition of the Gazette Telegraph.

According to Superintendent Doherty, the boundary study has been underway for some time, and the redrawing has been done as objectively as possible. He was quick to point out that the boundaries will change in the future, that this redrawing was designed only to handle the immediate problem.

Doherty said that the Palmer High School population would probably level off at approximately 1,950 students for next year, Wasson High School will still be experiencing some growth next year with 1,850 students anticipated, and the new Billy Mitchell school will begin operation with approximately 1,250 students.

In other action the board agreed to names of two new elementary schools and a new junior high school, all three schools to be in operation by 1967.

A new elementary school in Holland Park is to be called the Andrew Jackson Elementary School, another elementary school in Palmer Village will be designated the Ulysses S. Grant Elementary School, and the junior high school to go up at East Pikes Peak Avenue and Academy Boulevard will be named the Ralph Waldo Emerson Junior High School.

The board also voted to continue the Manpower Development Training Program through the 1965-66 school year. The board was told that the funds for this program have been provided so far by the Federal Government, and that the program next year will probably be financed by both the State and Federal Governments.

In a report on the General William Mitchell High School, the computer working on the project reported that all structures are ahead of schedule, and should be completed by Aug. 16.

Sheriff Reports Theft Of Cash From Wallet

Mrs. Geraldine Hett, Marion, Kan., reported to the sheriff's office Wednesday that $129 had been stolen from her billfold while she was staying at the Chateau Motel, 1201 S. Nevada Ave.

Deputy Sheriff Ray Carey said Mrs. Hett had the billfold in her suit case and on Tuesday night had gone out to dinner with her husband after she had locked the motel room.

The money was discovered missing the following morning. There were no signs of forced entry and the motel room was still locked when the Hetts returned Tuesday night.

Civil Rights Campaign Continued in Selma, Ala.

found no cause to arrest the Negroes because, they said, they saw no violation of law.

The sheriff's officers picked the Negroes up on "suspicion."

Under Alabama law, the sheriff is the chief law enforcement officer in the county and has jurisdiction within the city limits it he chooses to exercise it.

The three Negroes were walking at the head of the group which had gone to the courthouse Wednesday afternoon in still another unsuccessful effort to register.

They were told they could go in one of the two main entrances to the court house but not in the other. Rather than be told which door to use, the Negroes turned around and went back to the church where the march had begun. No attempt was made to arrest them until they approached the church.

A bomb scare brought a flurry of uneasiness during the afternoon at the same church, Brown's Chapel AME. Police searched the building after an anonymous telephone caller said a bomb would explode at 4:45 p.m. None was found, and Negro boys and girls attending a youth meeting went on with their work.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who led the civil rights movement for the first two days, left Selma Tuesday night for an out-of-state speaking tour but promised to return Friday and take command again.

Longshoremen Indicate End Of Dock Strike

ventories of raw materials since the walkout began.

New York's loss is figured at $1.2 million a day.

The Gulf Coast walkout has more than quadrupled the import of bananas at Tampa, Fla., where dock workers are unaffected since they are under a separate contract. Most of the fruit was diverted from New Orleans.

Philadelphia officials estimate their area is losing $500,000 to $700,000 daily. Baltimore officials estimated a $20 million loss by the end of this week. New Orleans and Mobile, Ala., report $1.5 million and $250,000 losses a day, respectively.

The director of the Port of Houston, Tex., commented, "thirty cents of every dollar in the Houston area is tied to the port activity."

Most of the strikers have no strike benefits.

"We stay ready for a strike," said Willie Wells, president of Houston Local 1273. "We tell our people to save money for this purpose."

Union leaders have blamed the New York rejection on a misunderstanding and lack of information. They called it the best contract in union history, with a guaranteed annual wage of $5,860, and fringe benefits unmatched in any previous agreement.

In return the shippers won the right to cut work gangs from 20 to 17 men in four years — a concession to automation that the union has firmly opposed. This provision was blamed generally for rejecion of the contract, and the union has been conducting an intensive education campaign.

The commission said it will start the hearings in closed session, but may open them to the public later.

Anti-Wagner forces, including McKeon, are backing Sen. Jack E. Bronston of Queens and Assemblyman Stanley Steingut for the leadership posts in the Legislature. The Wagner faction supports Sen. Thomas J. Mackell of Queens and Assemblyman Anthony J. Travia of Brooklyn.

Bronston and Steingut are supported by county leaders aligned with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, who has professed his neutrality.

There have been 21 ballots taken in the Senate and 16 in the Assembly, but the issue remains unresolved.

Wagner forces, which have trailed in the voting, continue to oppose a binding vote by party members.

An Albany bank cleared up one matter Wednesday by agreeing to loan money to legislators and legislative employes without interest. There have been no salary payments since the session started because of the absence of leaders to certify the payrolls.

'Great Society Is Crowded,' Lyndon Declares

back to the White House at 12:30 a.m. that he'd be at work early.

In fact, he admonished the allgoers: "Don't stay up late. There's work to be done. We're on our way to the Great Society."

The nation's new 36th president and its 38th vice president were in a gay mood and the quips came fast on their three-hour cross-Washington excursion, heralded by "Hail to the Chief" and "Hello Lyndon."

Their first stop was at the Mayflower, where a dancing circle had been roped off for them and hundreds massed about. The President launched the dancing with his wife in her John Moore designed jonquil yellow satin ballgown and coat with sable-trimmed sleeves.

In minutes, he had changed partners 10 times to the delight of the crowd. Spotting Margaret Truman Daniel, daughter of former President Harry S. Truman, in a nearby box, Johnson beckoned her to dance. He even helped her clamber over a railing in her long pink gown. And, off they twirled, leaving her husband Clifton Daniel, behind, holding her pink evening bag.

Motorcading around the block for a 16-minute call at the Statler-Hilton, Johnson surprised the gathering there by announcing he had come to dance with Lady Bird, Muriel Humphrey "and any of the rest of you that will dance with me."

The biggest ball of all was at the armory — bedecked like the rest in shimmering satins with bunches of flowers hung from the ceiling. For the 12,000 guests, it featured a 300-foot long bar and bistro beside dancing for the $25 the ballgoers here and at the four others paid for tickets.

Led by Secret Service men, Johnson plunged into the packed crowd to dance. The going was so tough the presidential party broke its way out after a few twirls and left in 30 minutes.

At the Shoreham, Johnson said he was having a "wonderful time" and knew he had been at a Democratic gathering because the dancers were "all smiling, all happy, all optimistic and all believe in this country and want to do something to make it a better place for everybody."

At the windup, Mrs. Johnson's brother, A. J. Taylor of Sante Fe, N.M., stood aside quietly watching the hectic crush.

Asked what he thought of it all, he said: "I'm trying to bear up to it."

22 Windows Smashed In Wave of Vandalism

Vandals caused $200 damage to a house west of Ellicott belonging to R. E. Gunzelman of Stratford, Tex. the sheriff's office said Wednesday.

According to Deputy Sheriff Bob Snuggs the house is leased by Gunzelman to R. E. Harding who also lives near Ellicott, but it has not been occupied for several years. Twenty two windows were smashed, holes were shot in the walls and the kitchen stove badly damaged.

There was no indication when the incident happened.

Another case of vandalism was reported by Eugene E. Schooler of the Schooler Sand and Gravel Co., south of Colorado Springs. He told Deputy Sheriff Art Tolch that the right front and windshield of his caterpillar traxcavator had been broken out causing $40 damage.

Another Arctic Air Blast Hits Many U.S. Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A fresh blast of arctic air whipped into the northeastern section of the nation today while mild weather returned to Florida and the Gulf states after a severe cold wave.

Additional accumulations of from 2 to 4 inches of snow were expected in New York State, on top of the 8 inches already on the ground in some areas.

Showers dampened sections along the Gulf from Texas to northwest Florida. Thunderstorms moved into Arizona and New Mexico. Heavy snow was expected in southwestern mountain areas. In the Northwest, freezing rain added to traffic problems caused by fog.

Sunny and warmer weather was expected in the Midwest and east Gulf regions, with slightly lower temperatures and diminishing snow flurries in the eastern Great Lakes area.

Maximum temperatures around the nation Wednesday ranged from 13 at International Falls, Minn., to 80 at McAllen, Tex.

Corvette Stolen From Used Car Lot

A 1961 sports car valued at $2,000 was taken from a used car lot on South Spruce Street between 5 p.m. Tuesday and 7:45 a.m. Wednesday, police reported.

An employe of Mullins Used Car Lot, 2 S. Spruce St., told police the car, a 1961 white Corvette, was in the lot when he left at 5 p.m. Tuesday. He said the car was locked up tight, but that during the day several juveniles had been playing around the lot, and may have taken the keys from the car.

He said when he returned Wednesday at 7:45 a.m. the car was missing.

State Says Carson Should Leave Out Clay Deposits

The State Board of Land Commissioners Wednesday took the position that state school land with clay deposits should be excluded from the proposed expansion of Ft. Carson.

The board, in a formal statement, said that if the clay lands are included in Ft. Carson, the mineral (specifically clay) and the right to remove the mineral (at least 90 days each year) should be retained by the state.

"The gypsum on these lands should be reserved to the state with the right to mine gypsum whenever the land is no longer used for military purposes," the statement said.

Commissioners gave approval to the proposed 79,500 - acre expansion of Ft. Carson.

Commissioners said they were "anxious to make an exchange of state school lands needed by the Fort for 'surplus' lands at the Lowry Bombing Range that will be satisfactory to both the federal and state governments."

The Board said it "appears there is every reason to beleive a satisfactory arrangement, involving surface values of the state and federal properties, can be agreed upon."

The board reminded however the state land near Ft. Carson contains known large deposits of clay, and of gypsum upon which there is a mineral lease.

"It appears the income the state may receive from these deposits is so great that it is not practical to include these values in the exchange, and that it would be detrimental to the economic welfare of the state to prevent the mining of these minerals," the board said.

The board said if no satisfactory arrangement can be made on the disposition on the minerals, "it is the board's position that it must refuse to make the exchange and that the problem must be settled by the courts in condemnation proceedings."

"It is the position of the board that the value of the interest in these minerals held by the present lesses and their investment in the leases and the operations, should be recognized and compensated for, in case they are unable to proceed with mining operations," the statement said.

The statement was signed by Raymond H. Simpson, new president of the board, Howard M. Shults, register, Wesley E. Woodward, engineer.

The government filed suit in Denver U.S. District Court last December to acquire 45,131 acres in the proposed expansion.

The State Land Board's 22,630 acres in the planned expansion were not named in the suit.

In addition to clay, a Golden mining operator, F.S Saum, claims the area contains more than 826 tons of pure gypsum valued at millions of dollars.

U.S. Embassy Employe Found To Be Assassin

BUJUMBURA, Burundi (UPI)—A native employed by the U.S. Embassy assassinated the premier of Burundi, police said today.

But the alleged assassin, Gonzalve Muyzinzi, 30, was said to be close to left-wing Burundi politicians. The first result of the assassination of Premier Pierre Ngendandumwe has been a roundup of about 20 pro-Communist Chinese leaders here.

European circles here said King Mwambutsa IV is trying now to disentangle his country from an uneasy alliance with Peking and the Congolese rebels and renew friendly relations with the West.

Ngendandumwe was shot down Jan. 15 as he left the Prince Rwagasore Hospital where his wife had just delivered a baby.

Witnesses said his wife saw the shooting from her room and cried out to nuns, "Please do something! They are shooting my husband outside!"

Ngendandumwe was a moderate who had succeeded pro-Chinese Premier Albin Nyamoya in office. He had formed a moderate national cabinet only two days before his death.

Muyinzinzi, the alleged assassin, was arrested four days after the assassination in the African township of Le Belge. Police found him hiding inside an empty 55-gallon oil drum behind his home.

New Indonesia, Malaysia Clash Is Reported

KUALA LUMPER, Malaysia (AP) — A British army major was killed Wednesday and the Malaysian commander of the East Borneo brigade was seriously injured in the crash of a Malaysian air force helicopter.

Government sources said the helicopter was taking off from a point in Sabah about 50 miles from Indonesian Borneo, when the craft crashed for as yet unknown reasons.

Maj. Keith Milner was killed and Brig. Ahmad Bin Besar Burhanuddin, a member of the royal family in Negri Sembilan State, was seriously injured.

Reports that two unlighted, unidentified planes dropped parachutes Wednesday in southern Malaya touched off new invasion jitters.

Security forces rushed to the area but found no sign of parachutes or Indonesian raiders. One source said the planes were probably Royal Air Force planes operating in the area.

Gurkha and Indonesian forces clashed Wednesday. About 40 Indonesian soldiers crossed the central Borneo border and one Indonesian was reported killed.

It was the first reported engagement between Indonesians and forces of Malaysia since Dec. 30.

Radio Jakarta said today that the Indonesian ambassador to the United Nations, L.N. Palar, is en route to New York with formal notification of Indonesia's withdrawal from the world body. Palar left Jakarta Wednesday.

Foyt Breaks Vertebrae, Heel

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Physicians confirmed Wednesday that race driver A. J. Foyt, injured in a 500-miler last Sunday, suffered a fractured vertebrae in the accident.

The Indianapolis champion also has a broken heel on his left foot.

Doctors said the extent of Foyt's injury wasn't confirmed earlier because of the difficulty to reading Xrays clouded by internal bleeding.

Despite the seriousness of the vertebrae fracture, Foyt was expected to remain in Riverside Community Hospital only a few more days. His condition was listed as satisfactory.

Foyt was running third at Riverside Raceway when his 1965 Ford apparently lost its brakes at high speed. His car plunged end over end down a bank into the infield. Officials said a shoulder harness and roll bars surrounding Foyt probably saved his life.

Ft. Carson Man Found Guilty Of Robbery

committed "an unpardonable sin" sometime in the past. The nature of the sin was never explained.

Rebuttal witness for the prosecution, Dr. Paul Draper, said Johnson could adhere to the right and refrain from doing the wrong when the store was robbed and therefore in his opinion was legally sane.

He had examined him four times, and in reply to a question put by Deputy District Attorney Tom Gresham, "did not believe he had been fooled by the defendant."

Earlier witnesses during the second day of the trial included Police Patrolman Raymond Mays who said the victim of the robbery had given him a partial description of his assailant.

Between the 400 and 500 block of East Bijou Street Mays said he spotted a running man who answered the description. He shone his light on him and the suspect slowed down to a walk. Mays called to him to stop and he took off running again with a fellow officer in pursuit.

He was finally caught near Bijou and El Paso Streets and when Mays arrived at the scene Johnson was lying on the ground on his stomach with the other officer seated on his back. A large roll of dollar bills were found on him, the witness said.

In response to a question put by Bob Isaac who also represented the district attorney's office with Gresham, the witness said he did not smell any alcohol on the defendant's breath nor did he stagger in any way. It was the officer's opinion that Johnson was not drunk.

Johnson complained to the two officers that they were hurting him by sitting on his back and later said the handcuffs were too tight.

In the absence of the jury the defendant took the stand and said Police Officer Richard C. Ballard had interrogated him and told him the penalty for aggravated robbery was one or two years to life but that he would not receive such a sentence. "Most people get probation," the first time, the officer is alleged to have said, consequently the defendant signed a written statement. He added that Ballard told him it might be used against him but on the other hand might help if he cooperated.

Officer Ballard testified he took a signed statement from Johnson but had advised him of his constitutional rights earlier and had never made threats, promises or inducements.

Under cross-examination attorney Moyers asked the witness if probation had ever been mentioned during the interrogation and the officer said it had and believed he had brought it up.

Johnson, explained Ballard, wanted to know what would happen to him. The officer told him that the court would appoint an attorney to represent him and that he could be sent to the penitentiary, found not guilty or get probation.

He denied ever having told the defendant that he would receive a better chance if he cooperated. The witness said Johnson wanted to make a statement. Johnson also was said to have told Ballard he "had made a mistake and wanted to get the whole thing over as soon as possible." Ballard added that Johnson had been AWOL for several days and had originally gone to the liquor store "to buy another bottle."

In his closing statement to the jury attorney Moyers said there were three possible verdicts to choose from, not guilty, guilty as charged and not guilty by reason of insanity. Moyers said he did not ask the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty, "That would be absurd," he said. He requested a humane verdict and asked for a verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity.

Presiding judge Hunter D. Hardeman gave defense counsel 10 days in which to file a motion for a new trial.

New Objections Reported to Jenkins Probe

the coming session, and he wants that done.

"There was an unequivocal commitment that Jenkins would be brought before the committee for questioning," says Cooper, "and I want that commitment kept. It was made in good faith, and I want the committee to do what it said it would do and not defeate the purpose of the unanimous agreement.

"If the Democratic majority decides to transfer this investigation to the new Ethics Committee when it is organized, that's all right. But not until Jenkins has come before us and testified. That's what the committee unanimously agreed on, and that must be done. Anything less is wholly unacceptable, and I'll resist it as vigorously as I can."

The five Democratic committeemen who agreed to Cooper's demand that Jenkins be grilled are Senators R. Everett Jordan, N.C., chairman; Carl Hayden, Ariz.; Howard Cannon, Nev.; Claiborne Pell, R.I.; Joseph Clark, Pa.

Last July, before the presidential campaign and when Jenkins was a top White House assistant and had not yet been arrested on a morals charge, these Democrats balked at summoning him on the ground:

"In reality, the evidence of Jenkins as given or as he might testify in person has no significant importance insofar as the committee's legislative function is concerned."

But on December 9 there was no mention of this argument when Cooper again demanded Jenkins' appearance. Instead, after a brief discussion, Chairman Jordan stated the President's one-time confidant would be brought before the committee at its next meeting in the new year.

VACATIONING AND PARTYING

It still remains to be seen whether this "informal agreement," as White House insiders are suspiciously referring to it, is made good.

Outwardly, Jenkins is apparently fit to testify. After weeks in a hospital, he and his wife vacationed in Puerto Rico, and since their return to Washington have attended social affairs growing out of the reconvening of Congress and the presidential inauguration.

One of these parties was for fellow Texans given by Representative Ray Roberts, D-Tex. Jenkins and his wife were warmly welcomed.

Guests particularly commented on his rested and hale appearance.

Asked about his health, Jenkins quietly replied, "I feel a lot better than I did. My doctor tells me I'm improving. My blood pressure isn't what I'd like it to be, but we're working on that."

This hypertension has had no adverse effect on Jenkins' status as a colonel in the Air Force Reserve. No move has been made to release him, and he hasn't volunteered to leave.

Inside word around the White House is that Jenkins will move to Austin where a "good paying" job is waiting for him. Questions whether it is with the TV-radio station owned by the President's family are answered with noncommittal shrugs.

Another undecided issue facing the Rules Committee is summoning Jay McDonnell for questioning.

A former Baker assistant in the Senate, McDonnell is eager to testify. But Democrats on the committee have refused to call him. McDonnell has told newsmen that "Baker's office resembled a political headquarters during the 1960 presidential primary. Baker later had McDonnell fired.

Churchill's Condition Deteriorates

Churchill's life was at a "low ebb," he replied, "Yes."

As newsmen waiting near Churchill's Hyde Park Gate home sought additional information on the former prime minister's condition, Moran added: "His condition is stationary. There is nothing more I can say."

The reference to Sir Winston's circulation was the first since the initial bulletin last Friday which said he had had a cold, then developed a circulatory weakness following acerebreal thrombosis.

Churchill has apparently been sleeping or in a coma most of the time since he was stricken. Moran's medical reports have indicated he has felt no pain.

Churchill had been reported restless Tuesday, but at midday Wednesday Moran said the patient had slept peaceful through the night and morning.

Churchill, too ill to be moved to a hospital, lay in his ground floor back bedroom overlooking a garden behind the brick home at No. 28 Hyde Park Gate.

His family stayed close at hand in London, as they have done since the stroke.

Lady Churchill, who will be 80 next April, took an hour's drive Wednesday with her younger daughter, Mary, wife of Conservative politician Christopher Soames. She had left the house only twice before during the week-long vigil.

Three policemen stamped their feet against the cold as they stood guard in the street during the night. Only a dim hall light could be seen from the street.

A handful of newsmen kept watch at the entrance to the deadend street.

During the morning two busloads of tourists halted at the entrance to Hyde Park Gate

Over microphones inside the buses, the guides called attention to Churchill's home at the far end of the street.

Every head inside the bus turned, and the tourists gave a long look. Several men removed their hats.

Missing from the street scene was bearded Robert Wilson, a New Zealander who had kept a vigil in Hyde Park Gate since Sir Winston was stricken.

"We don't know where he's gone," said a police constable. "He wasn't here when I came on duty at 8 o'clock this morning."

Wilson, a familiar character at the famous speaker's corner in Hyde Park, had taken up a position outside the Churchill residence. From time to time he would walk into the street, drop on his knees and offer a prayer for Sir Winston.

He kept a Bible in his coat pocket.

In the bitter snowstorm Wednesday, however, he complained of being very cold.

edition of the Gazette Telegraph.

According to Superintendent Doherty, the boundary study has been underway for some time, and the redrawing has been done as objectively as possible. He was quick to point out that the boundaries will change in the future, that this redrawing was designed only to handle the immediate problem.

Doherty said that the Palmer High School population would probably level off at approximately 1,950 students for next year, Wasson High School will still be experiencing some growth next year with 1,850 students anticipated, and the new Billy Mitchell school will begin operation with approximately 1,250 students.

In other action the board agreed to names of two new elementary schools and a new junior high school, all three schools to be in operation by 1967.

A new elementary school in Holland Park is to be called the Andrew Jackson Elementary School, another elementary school in Palmer Village will be designated the Ulysses S. Grant Elementary School, and the junior high school to go up at East Pikes Peak Avenue and Academy Boulevard will be named the Ralph Waldo Emerson Junior High School.

The board also voted to continue the Manpower Development Training Program through the 1965-66 school year. The board was told that the funds for this program have been provided so far by the Federal Government, and that the program next year will probably be financed by both the State and Federal Governments.

In a report on the General William Mitchell High School, the computer working on the project reported that all structures are ahead of schedule, and should be completed by Aug. 16.

Rep. Cook Wants Lower Property Taxes

Rep. T. Everett Cook (D-Fremont-Custer) reported this week he introduced three house bills in the current session of the state legislature designed to take the load off property taxpayers.

The bills would reduce the 30 per cent property tax to 5 per cent of the assessed valuation. The various bills offered by Cook concern: inventory, livestock, and personal property taxes when applied to equipment used to make a living.

Rep. Cook, a freshman in the house, has been appointed to the post of chairman of the natural resources committee, he said.

Sheriff Reports Theft Of Cash From Wallet

Mrs. Geraldine Hett, Marion, Kan., reported to the sheriff's office Wednesday that $129 had been stolen from her billfold while she was staying at the Chateau Motel, 1201 S. Nevada Ave.

Deputy Sheriff Ray Carey said Mrs. Hett had the billfold in her suit case and on Tuesday night had gone out to dinner with her husband after she had locked the motel room.

The money was discovered missing the following morning. There were no signs of forced entry and the motel room was still locked when the Hetts returned Tuesday night.

found no cause to arrest the Negroes because, they said, they saw no violation of law.

The sheriff's officers picked the Negroes up on "suspicion."

Under Alabama law, the sheriff is the chief law enforcement officer in the county and has jurisdiction within the city limits it he chooses to exercise it.

The three Negroes were walking at the head of the group which had gone to the courthouse Wednesday afternoon in still another unsuccessful effort to register.

They were told they could go in one of the two main entrances to the court house but not in the other. Rather than be told which door to use, the Negroes turned around and went back to the church where the march had begun. No attempt was made to arrest them until they approached the church.

A bomb scare brought a flurry of uneasiness during the afternoon at the same church, Brown's Chapel AME. Police searched the building after an anonymous telephone caller said a bomb would explode at 4:45 p.m. None was found, and Negro boys and girls attending a youth meeting went on with their work.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who led the civil rights movement for the first two days, left Selma Tuesday night for an out-of-state speaking tour but promised to return Friday and take command again.

Longshoremen Indicate End Of Dock Strike

ventories of raw materials since the walkout began.

New York's loss is figured at $1.2 million a day.

The Gulf Coast walkout has more than quadrupled the import of bananas at Tampa, Fla., where dock workers are unaffected since they are under a separate contract. Most of the fruit was diverted from New Orleans.

Philadelphia officials estimate their area is losing $500,000 to $700,000 daily. Baltimore officials estimated a $20 million loss by the end of this week. New Orleans and Mobile, Ala., report $1.5 million and $250,000 losses a day, respectively.

The director of the Port of Houston, Tex., commented, "thirty cents of every dollar in the Houston area is tied to the port activity."

Most of the strikers have no strike benefits.

"We stay ready for a strike," said Willie Wells, president of Houston Local 1273. "We tell our people to save money for this purpose."

Union leaders have blamed the New York rejection on a misunderstanding and lack of information. They called it the best contract in union history, with a guaranteed annual wage of $5,860, and fringe benefits unmatched in any previous agreement.

In return the shippers won the right to cut work gangs from 20 to 17 men in four years — a concession to automation that the union has firmly opposed. This provision was blamed generally for rejecion of the contract, and the union has been conducting an intensive education campaign.

All are Democrats.

The commission said it will start the hearings in closed session, but may open them to the public later.

Anti-Wagner forces, including McKeon, are backing Sen. Jack E. Bronston of Queens and Assemblyman Stanley Steingut for the leadership posts in the Legislature. The Wagner faction supports Sen. Thomas J. Mackell of Queens and Assemblyman Anthony J. Travia of Brooklyn.

Bronston and Steingut are supported by county leaders aligned with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, who has professed his neutrality.

There have been 21 ballots taken in the Senate and 16 in the Assembly, but the issue remains unresolved.

Wagner forces, which have trailed in the voting, continue to oppose a binding vote by party members.

An Albany bank cleared up one matter Wednesday by agreeing to loan money to legislators and legislative employes without interest. There have been no salary payments since the session started because of the absence of leaders to certify the payrolls.

'Great Society Is Crowded,' Lyndon Declares

back to the White House at 12:30 a.m. that he'd be at work early.

In fact, he admonished the allgoers: "Don't stay up late. There's work to be done. We're on our way to the Great Society."

The nation's new 36th president and its 38th vice president were in a gay mood and the quips came fast on their three-hour cross-Washington excursion, heralded by "Hail to the Chief" and "Hello Lyndon."

Their first stop was at the Mayflower, where a dancing circle had been roped off for them and hundreds massed about. The President launched the dancing with his wife in her John Moore designed jonquil yellow satin ballgown and coat with sable-trimmed sleeves.

In minutes, he had changed partners 10 times to the delight of the crowd. Spotting Margaret Truman Daniel, daughter of former President Harry S. Truman, in a nearby box, Johnson beckoned her to dance. He even helped her clamber over a railing in her long pink gown. And, off they twirled, leaving her husband Clifton Daniel, behind, holding her pink evening bag.

Motorcading around the block for a 16-minute call at the Statler-Hilton, Johnson surprised the gathering there by announcing he had come to dance with Lady Bird, Muriel Humphrey "and any of the rest of you that will dance with me."

The biggest ball of all was at the armory — bedecked like the rest in shimmering satins with bunches of flowers hung from the ceiling. For the 12,000 guests, it featured a 300-foot long bar and bistro beside dancing for the $25 the ballgoers here and at the four others paid for tickets.

Led by Secret Service men, Johnson plunged into the packed crowd to dance. The going was so tough the presidential party broke its way out after a few twirls and left in 30 minutes.

At the Shoreham, Johnson said he was having a "wonderful time" and knew he had been at a Democratic gathering because the dancers were "all smiling, all happy, all optimistic and all believe in this country and want to do something to make it a better place for everybody."

At the windup, Mrs. Johnson's brother, A. J. Taylor of Sante Fe, N.M., stood aside quietly watching the hectic crush.

Asked what he thought of it all, he said: "I'm trying to bear up to it."

22 Windows Smashed In Wave of Vandalism

Vandals caused $200 damage to a house west of Ellicott belonging to R. E. Gunzelman of Stratford, Tex. the sheriff's office said Wednesday.

According to Deputy Sheriff Bob Snuggs the house is leased by Gunzelman to R. E. Harding who also lives near Ellicott, but it has not been occupied for several years. Twenty two windows were smashed, holes were shot in the walls and the kitchen stove badly damaged.

There was no indication when the incident happened.

Another case of vandalism was reported by Eugene E. Schooler of the Schooler Sand and Gravel Co., south of Colorado Springs. He told Deputy Sheriff Art Tolch that the right front and windshield of his caterpillar traxcavator had been broken out causing $40 damage.

Another Arctic Air Blast Hits Many U.S. Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A fresh blast of arctic air whipped into the northeastern section of the nation today while mild weather returned to Florida and the Gulf states after a severe cold wave.

Additional accumulations of from 2 to 4 inches of snow were expected in New York State, on top of the 8 inches already on the ground in some areas.

Showers dampened sections along the Gulf from Texas to northwest Florida. Thunderstorms moved into Arizona and New Mexico. Heavy snow was expected in southwestern mountain areas. In the Northwest, freezing rain added to traffic problems caused by fog.

Sunny and warmer weather was expected in the Midwest and east Gulf regions, with slightly lower temperatures and diminishing snow flurries in the eastern Great Lakes area.

Maximum temperatures around the nation Wednesday ranged from 13 at International Falls, Minn., to 80 at McAllen, Tex.

Corvette Stolen From Used Car Lot

A 1961 sports car valued at $2,000 was taken from a used car lot on South Spruce Street between 5 p.m. Tuesday and 7:45 a.m. Wednesday, police reported.

An employe of Mullins Used Car Lot, 2 S. Spruce St., told police the car, a 1961 white Corvette, was in the lot when he left at 5 p.m. Tuesday. He said the car was locked up tight, but that during the day several juveniles had been playing around the lot, and may have taken the keys from the car.

He said when he returned Wednesday at 7:45 a.m. the car was missing.

State Says Carson Should Leave Out Clay Deposits

The State Board of Land Commissioners Wednesday took the position that state school land with clay deposits should be excluded from the proposed expansion of Ft. Carson.

The board, in a formal statement, said that if the clay lands are included in Ft. Carson, the mineral (specifically clay) and the right to remove the mineral (at least 90 days each year) should be retained by the state.

"The gypsum on these lands should be reserved to the state with the right to mine gypsum whenever the land is no longer used for military purposes," the statement said.

Commissioners gave approval to the proposed 79,500 - acre expansion of Ft. Carson.

Commissioners said they were "anxious to make an exchange of state school lands needed by the Fort for 'surplus' lands at the Lowry Bombing Range that will be satisfactory to both the federal and state governments."

The Board said it "appears there is every reason to beleive a satisfactory arrangement, involving surface values of the state and federal properties, can be agreed upon."

The board reminded however the state land near Ft. Carson contains known large deposits of clay, and of gypsum upon which there is a mineral lease.

"It appears the income the state may receive from these deposits is so great that it is not practical to include these values in the exchange, and that it would be detrimental to the economic welfare of the state to prevent the mining of these minerals," the board said.

The board said if no satisfactory arrangement can be made on the disposition on the minerals, "it is the board's position that it must refuse to make the exchange and that the problem must be settled by the courts in condemnation proceedings."

"It is the position of the board that the value of the interest in these minerals held by the present lesses and their investment in the leases and the operations, should be recognized and compensated for, in case they are unable to proceed with mining operations," the statement said.

The statement was signed by Raymond H. Simpson, new president of the board, Howard M. Shults, register, Wesley E. Woodward, engineer.

The government filed suit in Denver U.S. District Court last December to acquire 45,131 acres in the proposed expansion.

The State Land Board's 22,630 acres in the planned expansion were not named in the suit.

In addition to clay, a Golden mining operator, F.S Saum, claims the area contains more than 826 tons of pure gypsum valued at millions of dollars.

U.S. Embassy Employe Found To Be Assassin

BUJUMBURA, Burundi (UPI)—A native employed by the U.S. Embassy assassinated the premier of Burundi, police said today.

But the alleged assassin, Gonzalve Muyzinzi, 30, was said to be close to left-wing Burundi politicians. The first result of the assassination of Premier Pierre Ngendandumwe has been a roundup of about 20 pro-Communist Chinese leaders here.

European circles here said King Mwambutsa IV is trying now to disentangle his country from an uneasy alliance with Peking and the Congolese rebels and renew friendly relations with the West.

Ngendandumwe was shot down Jan. 15 as he left the Prince Rwagasore Hospital where his wife had just delivered a baby.

Witnesses said his wife saw the shooting from her room and cried out to nuns, "Please do something! They are shooting my husband outside!"

Ngendandumwe was a moderate who had succeeded pro-Chinese Premier Albin Nyamoya in office. He had formed a moderate national cabinet only two days before his death.

Muyinzinzi, the alleged assassin, was arrested four days after the assassination in the African township of Le Belge. Police found him hiding inside an empty 55-gallon oil drum behind his home.

Government sources said the helicopter was taking off from a point in Sabah about 50 miles from Indonesian Borneo, when the craft crashed for as yet unknown reasons.

Maj. Keith Milner was killed and Brig. Ahmad Bin Besar Burhanuddin, a member of the royal family in Negri Sembilan State, was seriously injured.

Reports that two unlighted, unidentified planes dropped parachutes Wednesday in southern Malaya touched off new invasion jitters.

Security forces rushed to the area but found no sign of parachutes or Indonesian raiders. One source said the planes were probably Royal Air Force planes operating in the area.

Gurkha and Indonesian forces clashed Wednesday. About 40 Indonesian soldiers crossed the central Borneo border and one Indonesian was reported killed.

It was the first reported engagement between Indonesians and forces of Malaysia since Dec. 30.

Foyt Breaks Vertebrae, Heel

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Physicians confirmed Wednesday that race driver A. J. Foyt, injured in a 500-miler last Sunday, suffered a fractured vertebrae in the accident.

The Indianapolis champion also has a broken heel on his left foot.

Doctors said the extent of Foyt's injury wasn't confirmed earlier because of the difficulty to reading Xrays clouded by internal bleeding.

Despite the seriousness of the vertebrae fracture, Foyt was expected to remain in Riverside Community Hospital only a few more days. His condition was listed as satisfactory.

Foyt was running third at Riverside Raceway when his 1965 Ford apparently lost its brakes at high speed. His car plunged end over end down a bank into the infield. Officials said a shoulder harness and roll bars surrounding Foyt probably saved his life.

Scientific Wizardy Plays Part in Nation's Defense

Application of the aerospace age's scientific wizardy to the nation's air defense was outlined today by Arthur F. Kochman at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Senior League in the Moors Restaurant.

Kochman is technical assistant to the field design branch manager of the System Development Corp. This company has a major function in creating the Command and Control System complex in the NORAD combat operations center being built under Cheyenne Mountain.

"This Command and Control System is specifically designed to meet present and future requiremnets for NORAD's air defense role, he explained.

"The position of a system in the hierarchy of command appears to determine the degree of a pre-stated mixture of command and control," Kochman said.

"Air Defense systems such as SAGE (semi-automatic ground environment) and the Air Weapons Control stress the real-time control of intercepting vehicles including manned interceptors and ground-launched missiles."

He defined the term "real-time" as a process wherein the system or individual has almost instanteous control of an event, such as the data link control of an interceptor or the computer-controlled continuous flow chemical processing operations.

"As we ascend to the level of the NORAD Combat Operations Center and the Strategic Air Command Control System, we find emphasis placed upon the over-all management of lower echelon forces and limited effort placed in the actual real time direction of vehicles and personnel.

"A view at the top of the systems' ladder will disclose the USAF Command Post, the Joint Chiefs of Staff Command Post and the National Military Control System. At this echelon the very mechanisms for real-time control seldom exist and the prime activities are decision making, over-all direction and the assemblage of information for military and civilian leaders."

Creation of a command and control system follow three phases — design, experimentation and implementation. The design phase begins with a study group of military and civilian experts. The latter come from government agencies and not-for-profit corporations. The initial analysis is then turned over to a not-for-profit corporation to act as system designer, and then is submitted to equipment bidders.

"In the NORAD system, overall design and system engineering responsibility rests with the MITRE Corp." Kochman said. "Detailed computer program design and operator procedure development are responsibilities of the System Development Corp. Facility management and engineering services are tasks of the Burroughs Corp. Overall direction is provided by the NORAD System Program Office."

"In the second phase, the NORAD program incorporates an experimental facility for use during the period when the hardened site is being constructed in Cheyenne Mountain.

"This facility is housed in a two-story concrete block structure adjacent to Ent Air Force Base. The main floor is occupied by display console areas, computing equipment, telephone equipment and support areas.

"The upper floor contains office space and conference areas. A two-story command post occupies the east portion of the building. A commercial Philco 211 computer serves as the central data processor.

"The computer is linked to the display consoles by a Burroughs - manufactured display data controller. The display consoles produced by Data Display Inc. may function in a computer-driven or closed circuit television mode.

"The console operator may communicate with the central processor or other operational positions by means of switches, a photo-electric light pencil or an IBM Selectric typewriter.

"In the computer-driven mode displays on a 11x14 inch cathode-ray tube surface consist of upper and lower case characters, decimal numbers, lines, punctuation marks and a series of special symbols for facility and event locations.

"Each display console has a magnetic core memory providing computer mode displays. System displays include situational types with a geographic background of the North American Continent, the Eurasian land mass, the continental United States, and specific air defense regions. These displays may be expanded and centered around an element of interest.

"Tabular displays, line graphs and charts are also employed. The closed circuit television capability will be utilized to present hand-produced maps and charts. In contrast to the black and white capability of the display consoles, the command post area incorporates an additive color projection system which is computer driven and replicates the display console material. Coding of items in the data base specifies the color in which they appear upon the command post display.

"The display system is flexible in that any physical console may serve any positional function simply by notifying the computer via typewriter imput and replacing a set of labels designating switch functions.

"The program design is such that basic sets of display elements may be presented in an almost infinite number of combinations. A combination which proves usable for a specific task may be stored and recalled with a single switch action.

"The system is utilized by a set of military operators and experimental personnel. The military operators perform a series of operational procedures during structured experiments.

"The data resulting from such experimentation is analyzed in light of the operators extensive background in SAGE and associated command control systems, their knowledge of the design and goals of the NORAD system, and the experimenters design objectives.

"The output of this analysis serves to verify or modify the system design. Experimentation of this nature prior to finalizing the system design proves beneficial because the present state of the art has not provided a technique which will enable us to completely predict the complex interactions of operators and equipment."

Kochman described the implementation phase of system development as taking place when the complete program and equipment are tested in their operational environment. "The implementation phase is reality an extension of the experimental phase," he said.

"The implementation phase for the NORAD system will take place at the Cheyenne Mountain location. A three-story steel structure is being constructed with a series of interesting tunnels. "This structure will house the NORAD system and several additional command control and support systems. Over 700 personnel will occupy the facility. From this secure environment NORAD will perform its mission as aerospace defense of the North American Continent."

Kochman is a graduate of UCLA in the field of psychology. He has done graduate work in education, engineering and psychology. His experience with the System Development Corp. includes weapons system design and analysis work in the areas of electronic counter measures data processing, air surveillance and air traffic control. He previously held positions with the International Telephone and Telegraph Co., and Fullerton Junior College.

Veteran Actor Says He Still Has Stage Fright

By DANIEL F. CUFF

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — For 69 years, Finlay Currie has had a case of stage fright. It isn't getting any better.

The veteran of stage and screen, and even vaudeville, celebrated his 87th birthday Wednesday night by opening in a new play.

Currie frankly admitted he had a case of stage fright before the curtain went up.

"And for this play more than ever," he said. "I don't know why.

"But if you're not nervous you don't have the touch of soul that every actor must have."

Currie portrays Dr. Domingo Guzmano in his new play, "Diamond Orchid," which opened a pre-Broadway tryout run at New Haven's Shubert Theater.

There was champagne and cake for Currie and the rest of the cast after the curtain fell.

Currie, a portly man with a craggy face and a mane of white hair that rolls out at the back of his neck, cut into the cake and took a sip of champagne.

"God bless all of you for your kindness," he said to the cast.

There were kisses from the actresses and a gift of a meerschaum pipe.

Currie was born in Edinburgh and got his first taste of the stage there at 18.

Currie first came to the United States in 1899 then returned to England. He came back to this country in 1906 for an appearance at Tony Pastor's in New York.

He married Maude Courtney of Brooklyn and they toured on the Keith, Orpheum and Pantages vaudeville circuits as a team.

Currie played on Broadway in "Death of a Salesman." His last theater appearance in New York was eight years ago in "Too Late The Phalarope."

Currie makes his home outside London. He spends part of his time in an antique business that he operates.

"My wife died five years ago. There's just myself. My son lives in New Zealand. He is a builder there, and on the Auckland council. Perhaps he'll soon be mayor."

American battle fatalities classed as "unknown dead" numbered 8,491 during World War II, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.

GOP Chieftains Meet to Plan New Unification

By JAMES E. DWYER

CHICAGO (AP) — Republican leaders meet today for workshops and caucuses prior to a two-day conclave called to heal the wounds of November's Democratic landslide.

National Chairman Dean Burch was the first arrival Wednesday, and he promptly told newsmen that the Friday and Saturday meeting was a call for unification.

Burch, who is stepping down as GOP national chairman said Republican leaders can unify the party if they "quit jousting at windmills."

He called for a "strong, unified and dynamic party."

"I expect and hope this meeting will mark the end of the many discussions of personalities that recently preoccupied us," he said, "and that we can now begin to get on with the primary business of the Republican party: Namely winning victories and defeating Democrats."

Burch and Barry Goldwater, the unsuccessful 1964 GOP presidential candidate, announced last week that Burch would step down and Ray Bliss of Ohio would become chairman. At the time Goldwater said Burch would not command "a clear working mandate" from the GOP national committeemen.

Bliss arrived at the hotel later in the day and went into seclusion.

Goldwater was also in town, but unavailable for comment.

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon is scheduled to arrive tonight. Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said he will skip the meeting.

SPONGE RESEARCH

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)—Researchers at the Pennsylvania State University are trying to determine whether anything can be done to save the natural sponge from household oblivion.

At the request of the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries of the U.S. Department of Interior, the University has determined that since World War II most sponges have actually been synthetic compounds made to look like and act like a natural sponge, which is really the internal skeleton of certain marine animals.

During World War II, native underwater divers off the Florida coast were unable to collect sponges from their beds deep under water, and the sponges also were attacked by diseases. After the war, manufacturers began making sponges synthetically in different shapes, colors, and sizes, and at cheaper prices. Natural sponges still come mainly in brown, are oval-shaped and higher priced. Preliminary studies at Penn State indicate that many housewives reject the natural sponges because they have a drab appearance and are associated mainly with car-washing. The re-education of housewives to the qualities of a natural sponge will be the first job, researches have decided.

Scientific Wizardy Plays Part in Nation's Defense

Application of the aerospace age's scientific wizardy to the nation's air defense was outlined today by Arthur F. Kochman at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Senior League in the Moors Restaurant.

Kochman is technical assistant to the field design branch manager of the System Development Corp. This company has a major function in creating the Command and Control System complex in the NORAD combat operations center being built under Cheyenne Mountain.

"This Command and Control System is specifically designed to meet present and future requiremnets for NORAD's air defense role, he explained.

"The position of a system in the hierarchy of command appears to determine the degree of a pre-stated mixture of command and control," Kochman said.

"Air Defense systems such as SAGE (semi-automatic ground environment) and the Air Weapons Control stress the real-time control of intercepting vehicles including manned interceptors and ground-launched missiles."

He defined the term "real-time" as a process wherein the system or individual has almost instanteous control of an event, such as the data link control of an interceptor or the computer-controlled continuous flow chemical processing operations.

"As we ascend to the level of the NORAD Combat Operations Center and the Strategic Air Command Control System, we find emphasis placed upon the over-all management of lower echelon forces and limited effort placed in the actual real time direction of vehicles and personnel.

"A view at the top of the systems' ladder will disclose the USAF Command Post, the Joint Chiefs of Staff Command Post and the National Military Control System. At this echelon the very mechanisms for real-time control seldom exist and the prime activities are decision making, over-all direction and the assemblage of information for military and civilian leaders."

Creation of a command and control system follow three phases — design, experimentation and implementation. The design phase begins with a study group of military and civilian experts. The latter come from government agencies and not-for-profit corporations. The initial analysis is then turned over to a not-for-profit corporation to act as system designer, and then is submitted to equipment bidders.

"In the NORAD system, overall design and system engineering responsibility rests with the MITRE Corp." Kochman said. "Detailed computer program design and operator procedure development are responsibilities of the System Development Corp. Facility management and engineering services are tasks of the Burroughs Corp. Overall direction is provided by the NORAD System Program Office."

"In the second phase, the NORAD program incorporates an experimental facility for use during the period when the hardened site is being constructed in Cheyenne Mountain.

"This facility is housed in a two-story concrete block structure adjacent to Ent Air Force Base. The main floor is occupied by display console areas, computing equipment, telephone equipment and support areas.

"The upper floor contains office space and conference areas. A two-story command post occupies the east portion of the building. A commercial Philco 211 computer serves as the central data processor.

"The computer is linked to the display consoles by a Burroughs - manufactured display data controller. The display consoles produced by Data Display Inc. may function in a computer-driven or closed circuit television mode.

"The console operator may communicate with the central processor or other operational positions by means of switches, a photo-electric light pencil or an IBM Selectric typewriter.

"In the computer-driven mode displays on a 11x14 inch cathode-ray tube surface consist of upper and lower case characters, decimal numbers, lines, punctuation marks and a series of special symbols for facility and event locations.

"Each display console has a magnetic core memory providing computer mode displays. System displays include situational types with a geographic background of the North American Continent, the Eurasian land mass, the continental United States, and specific air defense regions. These displays may be expanded and centered around an element of interest.

"Tabular displays, line graphs and charts are also employed. The closed circuit television capability will be utilized to present hand-produced maps and charts. In contrast to the black and white capability of the display consoles, the command post area incorporates an additive color projection system which is computer driven and replicates the display console material. Coding of items in the data base specifies the color in which they appear upon the command post display.

"The display system is flexible in that any physical console may serve any positional function simply by notifying the computer via typewriter imput and replacing a set of labels designating switch functions.

"The program design is such that basic sets of display elements may be presented in an almost infinite number of combinations. A combination which proves usable for a specific task may be stored and recalled with a single switch action.

"The system is utilized by a set of military operators and experimental personnel. The military operators perform a series of operational procedures during structured experiments.

"The data resulting from such experimentation is analyzed in light of the operators extensive background in SAGE and associated command control systems, their knowledge of the design and goals of the NORAD system, and the experimenters design objectives.

"The output of this analysis serves to verify or modify the system design. Experimentation of this nature prior to finalizing the system design proves beneficial because the present state of the art has not provided a technique which will enable us to completely predict the complex interactions of operators and equipment."

Kochman described the implementation phase of system development as taking place when the complete program and equipment are tested in their operational environment. "The implementation phase is reality an extension of the experimental phase," he said.

"The implementation phase for the NORAD system will take place at the Cheyenne Mountain location. A three-story steel structure is being constructed with a series of interesting tunnels. "This structure will house the NORAD system and several additional command control and support systems. Over 700 personnel will occupy the facility. From this secure environment NORAD will perform its mission as aerospace defense of the North American Continent."

Kochman is a graduate of UCLA in the field of psychology. He has done graduate work in education, engineering and psychology. His experience with the System Development Corp. includes weapons system design and analysis work in the areas of electronic counter measures data processing, air surveillance and air traffic control. He previously held positions with the International Telephone and Telegraph Co., and Fullerton Junior College.

Veteran Actor Says He Still Has Stage Fright

By DANIEL F. CUFF

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — For 69 years, Finlay Currie has had a case of stage fright. It isn't getting any better.

The veteran of stage and screen, and even vaudeville, celebrated his 87th birthday Wednesday night by opening in a new play.

Currie frankly admitted he had a case of stage fright before the curtain went up.

"And for this play more than ever," he said. "I don't know why.

"But if you're not nervous you don't have the touch of soul that every actor must have."

Currie portrays Dr. Domingo Guzmano in his new play, "Diamond Orchid," which opened a pre-Broadway tryout run at New Haven's Shubert Theater.

There was champagne and cake for Currie and the rest of the cast after the curtain fell.

Currie, a portly man with a craggy face and a mane of white hair that rolls out at the back of his neck, cut into the cake and took a sip of champagne.

"God bless all of you for your kindness," he said to the cast.

There were kisses from the actresses and a gift of a meerschaum pipe.

Currie was born in Edinburgh and got his first taste of the stage there at 18.

Currie first came to the United States in 1899 then returned to England. He came back to this country in 1906 for an appearance at Tony Pastor's in New York.

He married Maude Courtney of Brooklyn and they toured on the Keith, Orpheum and Pantages vaudeville circuits as a team.

Currie played on Broadway in "Death of a Salesman." His last theater appearance in New York was eight years ago in "Too Late The Phalarope."

Currie makes his home outside London. He spends part of his time in an antique business that he operates.

"My wife died five years ago. There's just myself. My son lives in New Zealand. He is a builder there, and on the Auckland council. Perhaps he'll soon be mayor."

American battle fatalities classed as "unknown dead" numbered 8,491 during World War II, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Fowl Is A Treat

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The traditional all-American Sunday dinner used to be roast chicken with stuffing, giblet gravy, mountains of mashed potatoes, peas, homemade ice cream and chocolate cake.

The enormous output and low prices of broiler-fryer chickens in the past few years, however, more or less pushed plump roasting chickens and capons off the family menu. This Sunday, just for a change, why not treat your family to roast chicken or capon prepared a new way?

Baked Chicken, Jamaican Style
(6 servings)

6 lb. roasting chicken or capon
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground black pepper
Sweet potato stuffing
1 stick butter or margarine, melted
1½ cups hot water

Wash chicken or capon and wipe dry. Mix salt and black pepper and sprinkle inside of body cavity, crop and over outside skin. Fill body and neck cavities with sweet potato stuffing. Fasten neck skin to the back of neck with a skewer. Fold wings flat against the body. Lace the abdominal cavity with skewers and string. Tie legs together and fasten to the tail. Place chicken on a rack in an open shallow pan. Add butter or margarine to hot water. Dip a clean cheesecloth into mixture. Wring out lightly and spread over the chicken. Place in a preheated slow oven (325 degrees) and bake 3 to 31 hours. As cloth dries out during baking period, dip in hot butter-water. If breast and legs have a tendency to brown before the rest of the chicken, cover these parts with foil.

Sweet Potato Stuffing

1¼ cups mashed sweet potato
4 cups toasted bread cubes (croutons)
½ cup finely chopped celery
1-3 cup chopped fresh onion
6 links sausage
1¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
¼ teaspoon rubbed sage
¼ teaspoon crumbled whole majoram leaves.
½ teaspoon ground thyme
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Combine first 4 ingredients in a mixing bowl. Cut sausage links into ½-inch pieces, brown and add to the mixture. Discard fat. Blend in remaining ingredients. Mix well and spoon into the crop and body cavity of roasting chicken or capon.

NEW YORK (UPI) — There's a world of difference between the words "trim" and "cut" when it comes to hair styling, reports the Lilt Reference Service.

While an inch of hair or less is cut off for a trim, a cut can mean anything from one to six inches. To avoid unhappy tears after the fact, be specific with your hairdresser about length.

Fashionettes

United Press International

A fashion designer is only as good as the fabric with which he or she works, says Adele Simpson. Mrs. Simpson, New York designer - manufacturer, made the comment in connection with predictions of styles for the next five years. "We're in a great changing world," said Mrs. Simpson, "an era of the scientific. The minute we hit the moon I felt all our clothes were old–fashioned. But she added, she does see continuation of the almost-clothes, or bare look to fashion because of "the cult of the body. Women no longer just get a permanent or shampoo and set. They spend the day on beauty, with massage, facial, exercises. It's no longer just the face that counts," said Mrs. Simpson.

New in swimsuits are the "illusion midriffs" — suggesting nudity rather than being totally bare. Typical is a suit in checked cotton gingham that veils the mid-section wtih white cotton eyelet.

Stoles steal back onto the scene for spring. Designers show them in a variety of shapes, rectangular, square, triangular —sometimes of the same fabric as dress or suit, sometimes contrasting. They're an evening wear favorite to cover up otherwise bare shoulders.

Several spring fashion collections feature the look of the eilongated waistline, most frequently accomplished through belts of self-fabric or narrow string of leather riding down around the hipline.

Fowl Is A Treat

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The traditional all-American Sunday dinner used to be roast chicken with stuffing, giblet gravy, mountains of mashed potatoes, peas, homemade ice cream and chocolate cake.

The enormous output and low prices of broiler-fryer chickens in the past few years, however, more or less pushed plump roasting chickens and capons off the family menu. This Sunday, just for a change, why not treat your family to roast chicken or capon prepared a new way?

Baked Chicken, Jamaican Style
(6 servings)

6 lb. roasting chicken or capon
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
Sweet potato stuffing
1 stick butter or margarine, melted
1½ cups hot water

Wash chicken or capon and wipe dry. Mix salt and black pepper and sprinkle inside of body cavity, crop and over outside skin. Fill body and neck cavities with sweet potato stuffing. Fasten neck skin to the back of neck with a skewer. Fold wings flat against the body. Lace the abdominal cavity with skewers and string. Tie legs together and fasten to the tail. Place chicken on a rack in an open shallow pan. Add butter or margarine to hot water. Dip a clean cheesecloth into mixture. Wring out lightly and spread over the chicken. Place in a preheated slow oven (325 degrees) and bake 3 to 3½ hours. As cloth dries out during baking period, dip in hot butter-water. If breast and legs have a tendency to brown before the rest of the chicken, cover these parts with foil.

Sweet Potato Stuffing

1¼ cups mashed sweet potato
4 cups toasted bread cubes (croutons)
½ cup finely chopped celery
1-3 cup chopped fresh onion
6 links sausage
1¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
¼ teaspoon rubbed sage
¼ teaspoon crumbled whole majoram leaves.
½ teaspoon ground thyme
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Combine first 4 ingredients in a mixing bowl. Cut sausage links into ½-inch pieces, brown and add to the mixture. Discard fat. Blend in remaining ingredients. Mix well and spoon into the crop and body cavity of roasting chicken or capon.

NEW YORK (UPI) — There's a world of difference between the words "trim" and "cut" when it comes to hair styling, reports the Lilt Reference Service.

While an inch of hair or less is cut off for a trim, a cut can mean anything from one to six inches. To avoid unhappy tears after the fact, be specific with your hairdresser about length.

Fashionettes

United Press International

A fashion designer is only as good as the fabric with which he or she works, says Adele Simpson. Mrs. Simpson, New York designer - manufacturer, made the comment in connection with predictions of styles for the next five years. "We're in a great changing world," said Mrs. Simpson, "an era of the scientific. The minute we hit the moon I felt all our clothes were old-fashioned. But she added, she does see continuation of the almost-clothes, or bare look to fashion because of "the cult of the body. Women no longer just get a permanent or shampoo and set. They spend the day on beauty, with massage, facial, exercises. It's no longer just the face that counts," said Mrs. Simpson.

New in swimsuits are the "illusion midriffs" — suggesting nudity rather than being totally bare. Typical is a suit in checked cotton gingham that veils the mid-section wtih white cotton eyelet.

Stoles steal back onto the scene for spring. Designers show them in a variety of shapes, rectangular, square, triangular —sometimes of the same fabric as dress or suit, sometimes contrasting. They're an evening wear favorite to cover up otherwise bare shoulders.

Several spring fashion collections feature the look of the eilongated waistline, most frequently accomplished through belts of self-fabric or narrow string of leather riding down around the hipline.

When you are broiling hamburgers, it's a good idea to brush their surface with melted butter or margarine, or with salad oil; this treatment helps to make the hamburgers brown and crusty.

Television Helps Tutor Students In Dental School

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—Imagine 60 persons trying to look inside someone's mouth at once.

Dental schools agree it can't be done and finally have devised a method to demonstrate fixing a tooth smaller than a fingernail to dozens of students simultaneously.

Dentists at the New York State University at Buffalo are using television cameras to peer into the patient's mouth and act as the eyes of students. The mobile camer magnifies details about 10 times and transmitts the dental surgery to 14 classroom televisions sets.

Director Dr. Robert E. Pantera said television helps lessen the time students must spend in class before working on patients. He said many now begin clinical practice during sophomore rather than junior years.

The televised broadcasts at the university—the only state-owned dental school in New York—have been well received Pantera said. Because it is possible to close in and record fine details, students are better informed, ask more questions and are more attentive.

The professor gives a running commentary as he performs the video - taped operation. Later, hours of repetitive steps are chopped from the filmed version to condense lengthy demonstrations.

He said television can't replace experience, but it helps "to show the student what he should expect" in private practice. He said the televised demonstrations become invaluable aids whenever a dentist hits a snag in a supposedly - routine job and students are able to watch him work it out.

For a popular ice - cream cake, put two chocolate cake layers together with peppermint ice cream. Serve with hot fudge sauce!

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Listen, Gals . . .

I have heard from so many people who have scorched wool that I am beginning to wonder why . . .

"If" you press wool, always use a pressing cloth or press it on the "wrong side". There are more reasons that one for this.

You "might" scorch it! If you do scorch it (and I can't figure out how you could if you were using a pressing cloth), at least if you press it on the wrong side, you have eliminated completely the chance of burning fibers which actually show. And it's always first aid to take a scrap of the material and test it first just in case the thermostat on your iron isn't working.

The only way I know of to try to remove these scorches on "wool" is to use fine-grained sandpaper. Proessional cleaners often use this method. The fine sandpaper will remove the scorched fibers. But you have already cooked them to death when you scorched them, so don't expect it to look like new again.

We cannot put the fiber back into a piece of wool once it has been burned to a crisp (scorched); all we can do is make the best of it.

Suggestion: from now on use a pressing cloth. Better yet, I find that if you use a white paper napkin . . . whether it is dampened or not . . . that when the napkin starts scorching it will turn brown, and this is "Joe Blow" telling you that your iron is too hot. Turn your iron down and take another napkin and test it again. —Heloise

Letter Of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

I have the answer for "Desperate," the bachelor who had trouble keeping his no-iron shirttail from sliding out . . . "Marry a gal who likes to iron"—
—Donna K

Dear Heloise:

Here is another use for your famous vinegar:

When residue from ground-out cigarettes tends to cement itself to the bottom of beanbag-type ash trays, pour in enough white vinegar to cover the affected area.

Let stand (length of time: one smoked cigarette!), then just wipe away with paper towel.

The vinegar leaves the ash tray gleaming bright and prevents rust, often caused by using abrasives or steel wool. —William C. Neville

---

I tried this hint on two ash trays of this type, and it really shined them.

Just one little word of caution: Don't pour so much vinegar into the ash tray that it runs out the opening where the cigarette rest is located. I did . . . anyone for vinegar - soaked beans? —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

In regard to dusting windows before washing . . . why wait until one is ready to wash them?

Rub the vacuum cleaner brush - attachment over them, along with the top molding of the window and the places one dusts often.

If you don't have a cleaner, just use a clean rag.

The windows won't have to be washed as often, as grease and such in the home makes the dust stick! —Kansas Home Economist

Dear Heloise:

Here is a little hint for those who have to hang clothes outside on the line in cold weather:

I put on a pair of woolen gloves, then put my rubber gloves over these, making sure that my fingers are pushed far down into the tips of the gloves.

This not only keeps my hands dry, but also warm. It sounds clumsy, but is not nearly as clumsy as wet, cold fingers. —Opal.

Dear Heloise:

I just hate to waste lovely days doing menial chores, so I resolved that when it's raining, or my child is sick and I can't go anywhere, I do those jobs like cleaning closets or windows or other things that have accumulated.

Then, on nice days, I can go out and enjoy the day with an easy conscience. —A Housewife

Opening lead: Ten of ◇

South, the declarer at four spades, was under the impression that he had received a favorable lead in today's hand. Due to a blind spot, however, he turned the opening to his own disadvantage.

West opened the ten of diamonds which was taken in the closed hand by the jack. South was thankful that the opponents had not led a club, and he resolved to dispose of as many losers as possible without delay.

The ace of spades was cashed first, felling West's queen, and then declarer proceeded to run the diamonds. On the ace and king of diamonds he discarded North's deuce and six of clubs. East ruffed in on the third round with the nine of spades and then cashed the king.

East underled the ace of clubs next and West put up the king to drop dummy's queen. East's apparently daring play actually entailed little risk, for declarer's anxiety to obtain discards had clearly indicated that clubs was his weak suit. West shifted to the queen of hearts, covered by the king and ace, and ruffed in the closed hand.

South was left with three losers—the deuce of diamonds and the jack and nine of clubs. There were only two trumps in dummy, however, and after declarer ruffed out his clubs he was obliged to concede a diamond at the end to West — for the setting trick.

South was perhaps unduly concerned about the club situation. Observe, for example, that, even if West should get off to a club lead originally, the defense is limited to two tricks in the suit, the ace and king. Declarer's only other loser is the king of spades and, after the trumps are drawn, there is still a spade left in dummy to ruff the deuce of diamonds.

Although West's diamond opening did not give anything away, South could have taken 10 tricks with careful play. He may play a second high diamond if the chooses and discard the deuce of clubs. Then the ace of spades is cashed, and it is suggested that declarer continue to draw trump. East's best defense is to play king and another spade. South now plays a club to the queen. East is back in with the ace and returns the suit, since he cannot safely lead a heart. Declarer puts in the nine of clubs which forces out the king and establishes the jack as a winner.

Observe that, even if the nine of clubs should lose to the ten, there is still a trump left in dummy to cover declarer's third club and, if the diamonds are divided four-three, the rest of his hand becomes high.

Jack K. Agee Elected President of CFG Council

Jack K. Agee was re-elected president of the Pikes Peak Area Council of Camp Fire Girls at the organization's annual dinner meeting Monday evening. The dinner was held at the Valley Hi Country Club.

Other officers elected for 1965 are Mrs. Donald Wear, Milton M. Walker, and Mrs. J. F. Hemmie, vice presidents; Mrs. Charles T. Lowery, secretary, and Michael A. Bolster, treasurer.

Mrs. Lowery was elected to her first term as a director. Other new board members are Mrs. Noble Barrington, Nolan Drury, Mrs. Edwin T. Perkins, Miss Nancy J. Pollock and Mrs. Harold L. Shaw. Agee, Walker and Mrs. Hemmie were elected to second terms on the board.

The members also elected the 1965 nominating committee: Mrs. Donnell Carrington, Robert G. Hibbard, Mrs. A. Keith Mallgren, Mrs. Ralph D. Marker and Mrs. P. Robert Simpich.

Highlight of the evening was the presentation of a five-year leader pin to Mrs. Darold E. Holcomb, first to accumulate five years of leadership service to the local organization. Mrs. Holcomb is guardian of the Ta-MiKaWee group of Edison School where she also has been group organizer.

In addition she has been a Leaders Association officer and a member of the camping committee.

The award was made by Mrs. Clarence B. Kusma who received her ten-year leader pin in 1961 for service to Camp Fire groups in Nebraska, Denver and Castle Rock, as well as Colorado Springs.

In accepting the pin, Mrs. Holcomb said that the charter members of her first group, the Busy Blue Birds, are still active in the Camp Fire program.

For the Aya Ta Wa Ka group of Stratton Meadows, the leaders Mrs. Alvin Jersin and Mrs. Bernard Wadle accepted a certificate for highest group sales in the 1964 candy sale. Michael Bolster, sale chairman, presented the award and recognized other outstanding achievements by groups and individual girls.

Bolster said that the sales per girl averaged 22 boxes and that every leader and parent should be commended for helping the girls achieve another successful sale.

Invocation preceding dinner was given by Belmont S. Evans Jr. Special guests were representatives of Horizon Club, the high school Camp Fire program, Miss Myra Clabaugh and Miss Nancy Monaco.

Musical entertainment was presented by a combo of the Colorado School for the Deaf and Blind under the direction of Allen Uhles. Table decorations were made by Camp Fire Girls at Garfield School and the Air Force Academy, led by Mrs. Donnell Carrington and Mrs. Rinaldo Vachino.

In addition to directors and officers elected at the meeting, continuing board members are Jack L. Blackwell, Charles E. Buhl, Robert G. Hibbard, Mrs. Clarence B. Kusma, Mrs. Grady M. Ledwell, Mrs. Ralph D. Marker, Mrs. Eugene W. Nirk, Miss Marjorie Tudor and Mrs. Robert L. Turnbaugh.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

In Proportion!

DEAR ABBY: Can you tell me why there are more double beds sold in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, than in any other city its size? —BRUCE G.

DEAR BRUCE: No, but it might account for the size of Milwaukee.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing about my sister, who is an attractive, intelligent, middle - aged widow. About five years ago her husband committed suicide. It was a dreadful experience for her, but after five years we feel she should try to make a new life for herself. Several desirable men have shown an interest in her, but she has run away from them all. When I pinned her down she became very upset and told me that she had no right to "lead a man on" because she would have to tell him (if he didn't already know) the circumstances of her husband's death. She feels it is a reflection on HER that her husband took his own life. We've tried to tell her she is wrong, but we can't get through to her. Maybe you can. —N. Y.

DEAR N. Y.: Your sister is apparently suffering from guilt feelings (justified or otherwise) about what she failed to do that might have saved her husband. Psychiatrists say it's a typical reaction of one who has experienced a tragedy of this kind. Try to persuade your sister to seek professional help. Her future depends on it.

DEAR ABBY: About three months ago my sister (age 77) and her two daughters (53 and 50) came to visit me. We spent a lovely afternoon and they stayed for supper. After supper, my daughter (age 30) brought out a box of old family pictures. We passed them around and all had a good chuckle over the old-fashioned clothing and hair styles. Suddenly one of my nieces became enraged and shouted, "These are OUR pictures. You STOLE them from our house!" With that, my sister and her daughters stormed out of the house and I haven't seen or heard from them since.

Abby I am 73 years old, have been married 49 years and have never had any trouble with my own family, or my husband's. Those pictures were mine and I can't imagine what came over that niece of mine, and why my sister didn't put her in her place. However, this is my only living sister, and a day doesn't pass that I don't feel sick over this terrible incident. I haven't called her and she hasn't called me. What do you suggest? —HEAVY-HEARTED

DEAR HEAVY - HEARTED: Call your sister. Granted, she could have saved the situation by putting her accusing daughter in her place, but don't hold this against your sister forever. The daughter sounds sick, and maybe your sister isn't too well either.

Television Helps Tutor Students In Dental School

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—Imagine 60 persons trying to look inside someone's mouth at once.

Dental schools agree it can't be done and finally have devised a method to demonstrate fixing a tooth smaller than a fingernail to dozens of students simultaneously.

Dentists at the New York State University at Buffalo are using television cameras to peer into the patient's mouth and act as the eyes of students. The mobile camer magnifies details about 10 times and transmitts the dental surgery to 14 classroom televisions sets.

Director Dr. Robert E. Pantera said television helps lessen the time students must spend in class before working on patients. He said many now begin clinical practice during sophomore rather than junior years.

The televised broadcasts at the university—the only state-owned dental school in New York—have been well received Pantera said. Because it is possible to close in and record fine details, students are better informed, ask more questions and are more attentive.

The professor gives a running commentary as he performs the video - taped operation. Later, hours of repetitive steps are chopped from the filmed version to condense lengthy demonstrations.

He said television can't replace experience, but it helps "to show the student what he should expect" in private practice. He said the televised demonstrations become invaluable aids whenever a dentist hits a snag in a supposedly - routine job and students are able to watch him work it out.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Listen, Gals . . .

I have heard from so many people who have scorched wool that I am beginning to wonder why . . .

"If" you press wool, always use a pressing cloth or press it on the "wrong side". There are more reasons that one for this.

You "might" scorch it! If you do scorch it (and I can't figure out how you could if you were using a pressing cloth), at least if you press it on the wrong side, you have eliminated completely the chance of burning fibers which actually show. And it's always first aid to take a scrap of the material and test it first just in case the thermostat on your iron isn't working.

The only way I know of to try to remove these scorches on "wool" is to use fine-grained sandpaper. Proessional cleaners often use this method. The fine sandpaper will remove the scorched fibers. But you have already cooked them to death when you scorched them, so don't expect it to look like new again.

We cannot put the fiber back into a piece of wool once it has been burned to a crisp (scorched); all we can do is make the best of it.

Suggestion: from now on use a pressing cloth. Better yet, I find that if you use a white paper napkin . . . whether it is dampened or not . . . that when the napkin starts scorching it will turn brown, and this is "Joe Blow" telling you that your iron is too hot. Turn your iron down and take another napkin and test it again. —Heloise

Letter Of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

I have the answer for "Desperate," the bachelor who had trouble keeping his no-iron shirttail from sliding out . . . "Marry a gal who likes to iron"—Donna K

Dear Heloise:

Here is another use for your famous vinegar:

When residue from ground-out cigarettes tends to cement itself to the bottom of beanbag-type ash trays, pour in enough white vinegar to cover the affected area.

Let stand (length of time: one smoked cigarette!), then just wipe away with paper towel.

The vinegar leaves the ash tray gleaming bright and prevents rust, often caused by using abrasives or steel wool. —William C. Neville

---

I tried this hint on two ash trays of this type, and it really shined them.

Just one little word of caution: Don't pour so much vinegar into the ash tray that it runs out the opening where the cigarette rest is located. I did . . . anyone for vinegar - soaked beans? —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

In regard to dusting windows before washing . . . why wait until one is ready to wash them?

Rub the vacuum cleaner brush - attachment over them, along with the top molding of the window and the places one dusts often.

If you don't have a cleaner, just use a clean rag.

The windows won't have to be washed as often, as grease and such in the home makes the dust stick! —Kansas Home Economist

Dear Heloise:

Here is a little hint for those who have to hang clothes outside on the line in cold weather:

I put on a pair of woolen gloves, then put my rubber gloves over these, making sure that my fingers are pushed far down into the tips of the gloves.

This not only keeps my hands dry, but also warm. It sounds clumsy, but is not nearly as clumsy as wet, cold fingers. —Opal.

Dear Heloise:

I just hate to waste lovely days doing menial chores, so I resolved that when it's raining, or my child is sick and I can't go anywhere, I do those jobs like cleaning closets or windows or other things that have accumulated.

Then, on nice days, I can go out and enjoy the day with an easy conscience. —A Housewife

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ◇

South, the declarer at four spades, was under the impression that he had received a favorable lead in today's hand. Due to a blind spot, however, he turned the opening to his own disadvantage.

West opened the ten of diamonds which was taken in the closed hand by the jack. South was thankful that the opponents had not led a club, and he resolved to dispose of as many losers as possible without delay.

The ace of spades was cashed first, felling West's queen, and then declarer proceeded to run the diamonds. On the ace and king of diamonds he discarded North's deuce and six of clubs. East ruffed in on the third round with the nine of spades and then cashed the king.

East underled the ace of clubs next and West put up the king to drop dummy's queen. East's apparently daring play actually entailed little risk, for declarer's anxiety to obtain discards had clearly indicated that clubs was his weak suit. West shifted to the queen of hearts, covered by the king and ace, and ruffed in the closed hand.

South was left with three losers—the deuce of diamonds and the jack and nine of clubs. There were only two trumps in dummy, however, and after declarer ruffed out his clubs he was obliged to concede a diamond at the end to West — for the setting trick.

South was perhaps unduly concerned about the club situation. Observe, for example, that, even if West should get off to a club lead originally, the defense is limited to two tricks in the suit, the ace and king. Declarer's only other loser is the king of spades and, after the trumps are drawn, there is still a spade left in dummy to ruff the deuce of diamonds.

Although West's diamond opening did not give anything away, South could have taken 10 tricks with careful play. He may play a second high diamond if the chooses and discard the deuce of clubs. Then the ace of spades is cashed, and it is suggested that declarer continue to draw trump. East's best defense is to play king and another spade. South now plays a club to the queen. East is back in with the ace and returns the suit, since he cannot safely lead a heart. Declarer puts in the nine of clubs which forces out the king and establishes the jack as a winner.

Observe that, even if the nine of clubs should lose to the ten, there is still a trump left in dummy to cover declarer's third club and, if the diamonds are divided four-three, the rest of his hand becomes high.

Jack K. Agee Elected President of CFG Council

Jack K. Agee was re-elected president of the Pikes Peak Area Council of Camp Fire Girls at the organization's annual dinner meeting Monday evening. The dinner was held at the Valley Hi Country Club.

Other officers elected for 1965 are Mrs. Donald Wear, Milton M. Walker, and Mrs. J. F. Hemmie, vice presidents; Mrs. Charles T. Lowery, secretary, and Michael A. Bolster, treasurer.

Mrs. Lowery was elected to her first term as a director. Other new board members are Mrs. Noble Barrington, Nolan Drury, Mrs. Edwin T. Perkins, Miss Nancy J. Pollock and Mrs. Harold L. Shaw. Agee, Walker and Mrs. Hemmie were elected to second terms on the board.

The members also elected the 1965 nominating committee: Mrs. Donnell Carrington, Robert G. Hibbard, Mrs. A. Keith Mallgren, Mrs. Ralph D. Marker and Mrs. P. Robert Simpich.

Highlight of the evening was the presentation of a five-year leader pin to Mrs. Darold E. Holcomb, first to accumulate five years of leadership service to the local organization. Mrs. Holcomb is guardian of the TaMiKaWee group of Edison School where she also has been group organizer.

In addition she has been a Leaders Association officer and a member of the camping committee.

The award was made by Mrs. Clarence B. Kusma who received her ten-year leader pin in 1961 for service to Camp Fire groups in Nebraska, Denver and Castle Rock, as well as Colorado Springs.

In accepting the pin, Mrs. Holcomb said that the charter members of her first group, the Busy Blue Birds, are still active in the Camp Fire program.

For the Aya Ta Wa Ka group of Stratton Meadows, the leaders Mrs. Alvin Jersin and Mrs. Bernard Wadle accepted a certificate for highest group sales in the 1964 candy sale. Michael Bolster, sale chairman, presented the award and recognized other outstanding achievements by groups and individual girls.

Bolster said that the sales per girl averaged 22 boxes and that every leader and parent should be commended for helping the girls achieve another successful sale.

Invocation preceding dinner was given by Belmont S. Evans Jr. Special guests were representatives of Horizon Club, the high school Camp Fire program, Miss Myra Clabaugh and Miss Nancy Monaco.

Musical entertainment was presented by a combo of the Colorado School for the Deaf and Blind under the direction of Allen Uhles. Table decorations were made by Camp Fire Girls at Garfield School and the Air Force Academy, led by Mrs. Donnell Carrington and Mrs. Rinaldo Vachino.

In addition to directors and officers elected at the meeting, continuing board members are Jack L. Blackwell, Charles E. Buhl, Robert G. Hibbard, Mrs. Clarence B. Kusma, Mrs. Grady M. Ledwell, Mrs. Ralph D. Marker, Mrs. Eugene W. Nirk, Miss Marjorie Tudor and Mrs. Robert L. Turnbaugh.

Dear Abby--

In Proportion!

DEAR ABBY: Can you tell me why there are more double beds sold in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, than in any other city its size? —BRUCE G.

DEAR BRUCE: No, but it might account for the size of Milwaukee.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing about my sister, who is an attractive, intelligent, middle - aged widow. About five years ago her husband committed suicide. It was a dreadful experience for her, but after five years we feel she should try to make a new life for herself. Several desirable men have shown an interest in her, but she has run away from them all. When I pinned her down she became very upset and told me that she had no right to "lead a man on" because she would have to tell him (if he didn't already know) the circumstances of her husband's death. She feels it is a reflection on HER that her husband took his own life. We've tried to tell her she is wrong, but we can't get through to her. Maybe you can. —N. Y.

DEAR N. Y.: Your sister is apparently suffering from guilt feelings (justified or otherwise) about what she failed to do that might have saved her husband. Psychiatrists say it's a typical reaction of one who has experienced a tragedy of this kind. Try to persuade your sister to seek professional help. Her future depends on it.

DEAR ABBY: About three months ago my sister (age 77) and her two daughters (53 and 50) came to visit me. We spent a lovely afternoon and they stayed for supper. After supper, my daughter (age 30) brought out a box of old family pictures. We passed them around and all had a good chuckle over the old-fashioned clothing and hair styles. Suddenly one of my nieces became enraged and shouted, "These are OUR pictures. You STOLE them from our house!" With that, my sister and her daughters stormed out of the house and I haven't seen or heard from them since.

Abby I am 73 years old, have been married 49 years and have never had any trouble with my own family, or my husband's. Those pictures were mine and I can't imagine what came over that niece of mine, and why my sister didn't put her in her place. However, this is my only living sister, and a day doesn't pass that I don't feel sick over this terrible incident. I haven't called her and she hasn't called me. What do you suggest? —HEAVY-HEARTED

DEAR HEAVY - HEARTED: Call your sister. Granted, she could have saved the situation by putting her accusing daughter in her place, but don't hold this against your sister forever. The daughter sounds sick, and maybe your sister isn't too well either.

Stockholders Approve Merger

CHICAGO — Stockholders of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad voted by a majority of 8-to-1 to approve merger of the Rock Island and Union Pacific Railroad, it was announced today. Of the total shares voted, more than 88.5 per cent were in favor of merger. Only 11.5 per cent voted against.

Holders of 2,280,789 shares, or 78.2 per cent of the 2,916,911 shares outstanding, voted to approve the merger. Holders of 297,380 shares, or 10.2 per cent of the outstanding shares voted against the merger.

Following the meeting in Chicago, Jervis Langdon Jr., chairman of the board of the Rock Island, and Frank E. Barnett, vice president and general counsel of the Union Pacific, said they were highly gratified by the vote. The two roads now plan to move ahead before the Interstate Commerce Commission to obtain approval of the merger.

Following ICC approval of the merger, Rock Island stockholders whose stock remains on deposit under the Exchange Offer will receive in exchange for each Rock Island share deposited one share of Union Pacific $1.80 convertible preferred stock and a contingent cash payment.

This payment will equal the amount by which $1.80 per share annually for the period from July 1, 1964 to the earlier of June 30, 1967, or the date of consummation of the Exchange Offer, exceeds the aggregate dividends paid during the period on each share of Rock Island common stock.

Barnett announced that, as distinguished from the proxy vote, the number of shares deposited or assented by stockholders under the terms of the Union Pacific Exchange Offer totaled 2,220,540 or 76.1 per cent of the total shares outstanding.

Langdon hailed the merger vote as a giant stride toward improved transcontinental rail service. He said that shippers, the traveling public and communities served by the merged railroads would benefit from the $200,000,000 outlay planned by the Union Pacific to upgrade, repair and replace cars, locomotives, tracks and bridges on the Rock Island.

Edd H. Bailey, president of the UP and chief executive officer of the transportation division, said that if the merger is approved, Union Pacific intends to go ahead with major improvements in the Rock Island announced shortly after the merger was first proposed in 1963.

Among the major projects planned are: $75,000,000 — for replacement and additions to Rock Island's existing freight car fleet; $38,000,000 — for the purchase of new diesel motive power; $15,000,000 — for a new modern railroad yard in the Chicago area; $8,600,000 — for replacement of the Rock Island's suburban equipment.

Union Pacific management believes that $30,000,000 should be spent for improvements on the lines between Chicago and Kansas City and between Chicago and Council Bluffs, Iowa, and $18,000,000 for upgrading and rehabilitating the 300 mile St. Louis to Kansas City line.

"The competitive capability of the area served by the Union Pacific is now threatened by strong single line service to both south and north," Bailey said.

"The economic well - being of shippers and commuiters in cities and towns served by Union Pacific depends on our being able to establish strong single line service with faster and more efficient transportation between Chicago and the Pacific coast.

"We expect to provide the kind of facilities needed to attract traffic now going by other modes of transportation," Bailey added.

"A major advantage of a UP-Rock Island merger is that the two railroads would largely be joined, end-to-end, with few overlapping facilities involved. Any major savings would come not from tearing up track and facilities, but instead from building a more efficient operation that would give better service to the shipping and traveling public," Mr. Bailey said.

"The principal rail opponent of a UP - Rock Island affiliation," Bailey said, "has now negotiated merger agreements that will give a single road control of three of the six rail connections between Chicago and the Missouri River.

The argument that the public interest would be served by denying the UP access to Chicago while giving this opposing road yet a fourth rail link to the West in the Rock Island is not one that we believe will stand up under any serious examination.

On the other hand we believe an affiliation between the Union Pacific and Rock Island is vital if there is to be the competitive balance required for the best interest of shippers and the general public."

Gypsum Firm Buys Brick Co. For $2 Million

H. F. Korholz, president of American Gypsum Company, and S. M. Ferguson, president of Kelsey-Ferguson Brick Company, jointly announced the acquisition of all outstanding Kelsey-Ferguson stock by American Gypsum in exchange for 386,000 shares of American Gypsum stock. American Gypsum has been trading nationally on the over-the-counter market at $6.00 per share, placing the value of the transaction at $2,316,000.

Kelsey-Ferguson had sales of approximately $2,500,000 for the year 1964, and after-tax profits of $280,000 for the same period. Kelsey-Ferguson is presently building the first completely automated brick plant, not only in the United States, but in the entire world, in Middleboro, Mass., just outside Boston. The new plant is scheduled to go on stream next July and will more than double present capacity and sales.

American Gypsum also announced sales July 1, 1964 to Dec. 30, 1964, were $10,054,825 (unaudited), including $1,400,000, on a pooling of interest basis with Kelsey-Ferguson, as compared to $6,463,056 for 1963. Pre-tax profits for the six months amounted to $1,108,000 (unaudited), as compared to $755,974 for the same period last year. After-tax profits increased 10 per cent due to higher tax rates applicable on 1964 income.

Ben Langella Receives SWAP Club Award

The SWAP (Salesmen With a Purpose) Club presented Ben Langella, owner of the Mademoiselle of Colorado, their outstanding salesmanship award at morning meeting in Ruth's Oven the Club's regular Monday morning meeting in Ruth's Oven

In making the presentation Bill Pilcher, committee member, stated that Langella has set a record of incredible accomplishments under extremely difficult beginnings, synonymous with early day America.

He pointed out that Langella was born in New York City of immigrant parents. His father has been a cab driver in New York City for 42 years. early in his career Langella's liking turned to journalism.

He graduated from the School of Graphic Arts N.Y.C.

He was discharged from the U.S. Army in 1946, but during his service he met and married a Georgia girl. The couple now have four children, a grandson and grandaughter.

"Whatever Langella did he seemed to gravitate up to leading and responsible positions," Pilcher said.

Upon discharge, the Langellas settled in a small town in South Georgia where he managed the local department store, and also was general manager of the Cincinnati owned Class D baseball Club.

He was sports editor of the local newspaper and in addition he found time to act as director of the Georgia and Florida leagues.

At various times he held titles of Semi - pro commissioner, president of the junior Chamber of Commerce and was part time pitcher for his baseball team.

Following the serious set-back of Minor League baseball in 1953 he decided on the clothing business and like everything else he gave it all he had.

He inaugurated many new ideas in selling while he managed the Colorado Springs Fashion Bar. "He seems to have a mind that is constantly on the go, seeking new and better ways to serve people," Pilcher said.

On Sept. 10, 1964 Langella opened the first of the Mademoiselle of Colorado stores and already he is thinking in terms of several other outlets in Colorado Springs areas other than the Pikes Peak Plaza.

As a matter of fact he speaks in terms of national franchising of his plan of operation.

In spite of his short time in the Pikes Peak Plaza shopping district the businessmen in that area have chosen him to be president of the merchants Association.

Whenever Langella speaks about events and ideas pertaining to selling or promotion, it is with enthusiasm and excitement.

Any business group would find it profitable to hear Langella as a guest speaker. "There's a suggestion of merit to our program chairman. There is something about him that is contagious," Pilcher added.

Second Home Appliance Store Now in Security

The name has been changed, but the service, products and ownership remains the same. Modern Appliance, Television and Furniture Center, in the Fountain Valley Shopping Center in Security, has changed its name to Home Appliance Co. No. 2. The main outlet is located at 1834 E. Platte Ave.

Blanton Cogburn, owner of both Home Appliance stores, announced the name change this week. He has owned the Security store for the past six months, but just recently decided to change its name. Cogburn has been associated with the appliance sales business for 18 years, 10 of which have been spent at the Platte Avenue location.

Bob White has managed the Security outlet for the past six months. It first opened under different ownership last February. White has been working in the retail appliance sales business for the past four years, most of which were spent in Lamar.

Both Home Appliance stores sell many makes and models of appliances, furniture, televisions and hi-fis. The Security location has about the same amount of floor space and inventory as the Colorado Springs outlet, approximately 5,500 square feet of display area.

Home Appliance No. 2 is featuring special sale prices on certain furniture and appliances in conjunction with the change in name, says White. Prices on most items are the same in both stores, featuring no money down and bank financing.

The Fountain Valley Shopping Center was built some six years ago. It is located on old highway 85-87, across from the Security turnoff.

Among the brand name items featured at both stores are Frigidaire, Maytag, Norge and Zenith.

White lives with his wife, Pat, and their two children at 1504 Evergreen Dr.

Brothers Fined On Reckless Driving Counts

Two brothers, Kelly, 21, and Patrick Lucas, 18, 1627 Clemson Dr., were found guilty Wednesday by Municipal Court Judge Allan Asher of reckless driving.

Judge Asher reduced the charges from drag racing against the two, and levied fines of $75. He suspended $50 on condition the brothers have no further violations involving speed this year, and on condition they attend the traffic lecture Feb. 17 in the City Auditorium.

The brothers had been cited in mid-December by Colorado State Patolman Kent Moline who said he observed the two approaching him in the left and right lanes of South Circle Drive.

Lt. Moline said the two cars were not "specifically opposite each other" but were almost in a line. Both vehicles, he said, were going over the 35-mile speed limit. As they came around a curve to their right, the cars "leaned" to the left, the officer said.

Lt. Moline said he tried this later and had to go over 45 miles an hour to "lean."

"In a drag race," Patrick asked, "don't two cars have to start off together and then do their maximums?" Moline said "not necessarily."

"Does a drag race always have to involve maximum speed of the two vehicles?" Deputy City Attorney Roger Hunt asked. Moline said no.

Kelly, who was driving a Falcon Sprint, said it was "kind of ridiculous for me to be dragging with my brother who was driving an old '55 Ford."

When Hunt asked him the maximum speed of his Sprint, Kelly said it would do 120 miles an hour. "Have you driven it that fast?" Hunt asked. Kelly said he had, on local drag strips.

Judge Asher told the two brothers that they had been driving on "borrowed time," that there was no doubt they could have made the curve at higher speeds, but it was a dangerous practice, and could have resulted in disaster if another driver had been coming towards them.

"You both understand cars, you like them, and that's good," he told the two, but cautioned them to confine their actions on racing strips.

Charges of speeding and disobeying a stop sign against Walter Aments, 19, 3616 W. High St., were combined to a charge of careless driving and a $20 fine levied.

A charge of driving on a roadway laned for traffic against Linda Grogan, 24, 3609 Anemone Ct., was converted to a warning.

Hobert Clark, 22, 2208 W. Vermijo St., was fined $75 on his guilty plea to reckless driving. He was also suspended from driving in the city for 30 days. Clark was clocked driving 85 miles an hour at 1:55 a.m. Dec. 12 on West Colorado Avenue.

When Judge Asher asked why, Clark said, "no reason, sir."

Clark was warned that if he is caught driving within the next 30 days, he will be brought into court on a contempt charge, and this will mean a jail sentence.

John Polley, 21, 530 S. 30th St., was fined $35 on his guilty plea to disobeying a traffic signal, his fourth violation in 1964.

Pats' Fullback Undergoes Surgery

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Patriots fullback Larry Garron underwent surgery to repair a ligament in his right knee today at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Garron, previously hospitalized for a hip injury suffered in the American Football League All-Star game, suffered the knee injury during the regular season but was able to finish the campaign.

His physician, Dr. John Dorgan, said the surgery has nothing to do with the hip injury, which he will continue to treat through traction only.

The ant may be industrious, but it is not very brainy. Its nervous system has only about 250 nerve cells, compared with ten billion for a human being.

Holders of 2,280,789 shares, or 78.2 per cent of the 2,916,911 shares outstanding, voted to approve the merger. Holders of 297,380 shares, or 10.2 per cent of the outstanding shares voted against the merger.

Following the meeting in Chicago, Jervis Langdon Jr., chairman of the board of the Rock Island, and Frank E. Barnett, vice president and general counsel of the Union Pacific, said they were highly gratified by the vote. The two roads now plan to move ahead before the Interstate Commerce Commission to obtain approval of the merger.

Following ICC approval of the merger, Rock Island stockholders whose stock remains on deposit under the Exchange Offer will receive in exchange for each Rock Island share deposited one share of Union Pacific $1.80 convertible preferred stock and a contingent cash payment.

This payment will equal the amount by which $1.80 per share annually for the period from July 1, 1964 to the earlier of June 30, 1967, or the date of consummation of the Exchange Offer, exceeds the aggregate dividends paid during the period on each share of Rock Island common stock.

Barnett announced that, as distinguished from the proxy vote, the number of shares deposited or assented by stockholders under the terms of the Union Pacific Exchange Offer totaled 2,220,540 or 76.1 per cent of the total shares outstanding.

Langdon hailed the merger vote as a giant stride toward improved transcontinental rail service. He said that shippers, the traveling public and communities served by the merged railroads would benefit from the $200,000,000 outlay planned by the Union Pacific to upgrade, repair and replace cars, locomotives, tracks and bridges on the Rock Island.

Edd H. Bailey, president of the UP and chief executive officer of the transportation division, said that if the merger is approved, Union Pacific intends to go ahead with major improvements in the Rock Island announced shortly after the merger was first proposed in 1963.

Among the major projects planned are: $75,000,000 — for replacement and additions to Rock Island's existing freight car fleet; $38,000,000 — for the purchase of new diesel motive power; $15,000,000 — for a new modern railroad yard in the Chicago area; $8,600,000 — for replacement of the Rock Island's suburban equipment.

Union Pacific management believes that $30,000,000 should be spent for improvements on the lines between Chicago and Kansas City and between Chicago and Council Bluffs, Iowa, and $18,000,000 for upgrading and rehabilitating the 300 mile St. Louis to Kansas City line.

"The competitive capability of the area served by the Union Pacific is now threatened by strong single line service to both south and north," Bailey said.

"The economic well - being of shippers and commuters in cities and towns served by Union Pacific depends on our being able to establish strong single line service with faster and more efficient transportation between Chicago and the Pacific coast.

"We expect to provide the kind of facilities needed to attract traffic now going by other modes of transportation," Bailey added.

"A major advantage of a UP-Rock Island merger is that the two railroads would largely be joined, end-to-end, with few overlapping facilities involved. Any major savings would come not from tearing up track and facilities, but instead from building a more efficient operation that would give better service to the shipping and traveling public," Mr. Bailey said.

"The principal rail opponent of a UP - Rock Island affiliation," Bailey said, "has now negotiated merger agreements that will give a single road control of three of the six rail connections between Chicago and the Missouri River.

The argument that the public interest would be served by denying the UP access to Chicago while giving this opposing road yet a fourth rail link to the West in the Rock Island is not one that we believe will stand up under any serious examination.

On the other hand we believe an affiliation between the Union Pacific and Rock Island is vital if there is to be the competitive balance required for the best interest of shippers and the general public."

Gypsum Firm Buys Brick Co. For $2 Million

H. F. Korholz, president of American Gypsum Company, and S. M. Ferguson, president of Kelsey-Ferguson Brick Company, jointly announced the acquisition of all outstanding Kelsey-Ferguson stock by American Gypsum in exchange for 386,000 shares of American Gypsum stock. American Gypsum has been trading nationally on the over-the-counter market at $6.00 per share, placing the value of the transaction at $2,316,000.

Kelsey-Ferguson had sales of approximately $2,500,000 for the year 1964, and after-tax profits of $280,000 for the same period. Kelsey-Ferguson is presently building the first completely automated brick plant, not only in the United States, but in the entire world, in Middleboro, Mass., just outside Boston. The new plant is scheduled to go on stream next July and will more than double present capacity and sales.

American Gypsum also announced sales July 1, 1964 to Dec. 30, 1964, were $10,054,825 (unaudited), including $1,400,000, on a pooling of interest basis with Kelsey-Ferguson, as compared to $6,463,056 for 1963. Pre-tax profits for the six months amounted to $1,108,000 (unaudited), as compared to $755,974 for the same period last year. After-tax profits increased 10 per cent due to higher tax rates applicable on 1964 income.

Second Home Appliance Store Now in Security

The name has been changed, but the service, products and ownership remains the same. Modern Appliance, Television and Furniture Center, in the Fountain Valley Shopping Center in Security, has changed its name to Home Appliance Co. No. 2. The main outlet is located at 1834 E. Platte Ave.

Blanton Cogburn, owner of both Home Appliance stores, announced the name change this week. He has owned the Security store for the past six months, but just recently decided to change its name. Cogburn has been associated with the appliance sales business for 18 years, 10 of which have been spent at the Platte Avenue location.

Bob White has managed the Security outlet for the past six months. It first opened under different ownership last February. White has been working in the retail appliance sales business for the past four years, most of which were spent in Lamar.

Both Home Appliance stores sell many makes and models of appliances, furniture, televisions and hi-fis. The Security location has about the same amount of floor space and inventory as the Colorado Springs outlet, approximately 5,500 square feet of display area.

Home Appliance No. 2 is featuring special sale prices on certain furniture and appliances in conjunction with the change in name, says White. Prices on most items are the same in both stores, featuring no money down and bank financing.

The Fountain Valley Shopping Center was built some six years ago. It is located on old highway 85-87, across from the Security turnoff.

Among the brand name items featured at both stores are Frigidaire, Maytag, Norge and Zenith.

White lives with his wife, Pat, and their two children at 1504 Evergreen Dr.

Ben Langella Receives SWAP Club Award

The SWAP (Salesmen With a Purpose) Club presented Ben Langella, owner of the Mademoiselle of Colorado, their outstanding salesmanship award at morning meeting in Ruth's Oven the Club's regular Monday morning meeting in Ruth's Oven

In making the presentation Bill Pilcher, committee member, stated that Langella has set a record of incredible accomplishments under extremely difficult beginnings, synonymous with early day America.

He pointed out that Langella was born in New York City of immigrant parents. His father has been a cab driver in New York City for 42 years. early in his career Langella's liking turned to journalism.

He graduated from the School of Graphic Arts N.Y.C.

He was discharged from the U.S. Army in 1946, but during his service he met and married a Georgia girl. The couple now have four children, a grandson and grandaughter.

"Whatever Langella did he seemed to gravitate up to leading and responsible positions," Pilcher said.

Upon discharge, the Langellas settled in a small town in South Georgia where he managed the local department store, and also was general manager of the Cincinnati owned Class D baseball Club.

He was sports editor of the local newspaper and in addition he found time to act as director of the Georgia and Florida leagues.

At various times he held titles of Semi - pro commissioner, president of the junior Chamber of Commerce and was part time pitcher for his baseball team.

Following the serious set-back of Minor League baseball in 1953 he decided on the clothing business and like everything else he gave it all he had.

He inaugurated many new ideas in selling while he managed the Colorado Springs Fashion Bar. "He seems to have a mind that is constantly on the go, seeking new and better ways to serve people," Pilcher said.

On Sept. 10, 1964 Langella opened the first of the Mademoiselle of Colorado stores and already he is thinking in terms of several other outlets in Colorado Springs areas other than the Pikes Peak Plaza.

As a matter of fact he speaks in terms of national franchising of his plan of operation.

In spite of his short time in the Pikes Peak Plaza shopping district the businessmen in that area have chosen him to be president of the merchants Association.

Whenever Langella speaks about events and ideas pertaining to selling or promotion, it is with enthusiasm and excitement.

Any business group would find it profitable to hear Langella as a guest speaker. "There's a suggestion of merit to our program chairman. There is something about him that is contagious," Pilcher added.

Brothers Fined On Reckless Driving Counts

Two brothers, Kelly, 21, and Patrick Lucas, 18, 1627 Clemson Dr., were found guilty Wednesday by Municipal Court Judge Allan Asher of reckless driving.

Judge Asher reduced the charges from drag racing against the two, and levied fines of $75. He suspended $50 on condition the brothers have no further violations involving speed this year, and on condition they attend the traffic lecture Feb. 17 in the City Auditorium.

The brothers had been cited in mid-December by Colorado State Patolman Kent Moline who said he observed the two approaching him in the left and right lanes of South Circle Drive.

Lt. Moline said the two cars were not "specifically opposite each other" but were almost in a line. Both vehicles, he said, were going over the 35-mile speed limit. As they came around a curve to their right, the cars "leaned" to the left, the officer said.

Lt. Moline said he tried this later and had to go over 45 miles an hour to "lean."

"In a drag race," Patrick asked, "don't two cars have to start off together and then do their maximums?" Moline said "not necessarily."

"Does a drag race always have to involve maximum speed of the two vehicles?" Deputy City Attorney Roger Hunt asked. Moline said no.

Kelly, who was driving a Falcon Sprint, said it was "kind of ridiculous for me to be dragging with my brother who was driving an old '55 Ford."

When Hunt asked him the maximum speed of his Sprint, Kelly said it would do 120 miles an hour. "Have you driven it that fast?" Hunt asked. Kelly said he had, on local drag strips.

Judge Asher told the two brothers that they had been driving on "borrowed time," that there was no doubt they could have made the curve at higher speeds, but it was a dangerous practice, and could have resulted in disaster if another driver had been coming towards them.

"You both understand cars, you like them, and that's good," he told the two, but cautioned them to confine their actions on racing strips.

Charges of speeding and disobeying a stop sign against Walter Aments, 19, 3516 W. High St., were combined to a charge of careless driving and a $20 fine levied.

A charge of driving on a roadway laned for traffic against Linda Grogan, 24, 3609 Anemone Ct., was converted to a warning.

Hobert Clark, 22, 2208 W. Vermijo St., was fined $75 on his guilty plea to reckless driving. He was also suspended from driving in the city for 30 days. Clark was clocked driving 85 miles an hour at 1:55 a.m. Dec. 12 on West Colorado Avenue.

When Judge Asher asked why, Clark said, "no reason, sir."

Clark was warned that if he is caught driving within the next 30 days, he will be brought into court on a contempt charge, and this will mean a jail sentence.

John Polky, 21, 530 S. 30th St., was fined $35 on his guilty plea to disobeying a traffic signal, his fourth violation in 1964.

Pats' Fullback Undergoes Surgery

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Patriots fullback Larry Garron underwent surgery to repair a ligament in his right knee today at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Garron, previously hospitalized for a hip injury suffered in the American Football League All-Star game, suffered the knee injury during the regular season but was able to finish the campaign.

His physician, Dr. John Dorgan, said the surgery has nothing to do with the hip injury, which he will continue to treat through traction only.

The ant may be industrious, but it is not very brainy. Its nervous system has only about 250 nerve cells, compared with ten billion for a human being.

New Combat Plane Makes Test Hops

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The F111, a combat plane being built for the Air Force and the Navy, made its fourth test hop Wednesday. General Dynamics, the builder, called the 35-minute flight a success.

A spokesman said the plane did not attain supersonic speed because of a cloud cover that obscured a good view of the flight from the ground.

The maiden flight last Dec. 21 was curtailed after the wing flaps failed to retract. But it was flown successfully Jan. 6.

EXPANDS SCHEDULE

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—The International League has expanded its 1965 baseball schedule to 147 games after originally deciding on a 140-game slate during its convention at Houston. The extension will include more doubleheaders.

Jaycees Will Award DSA

Parking to Be Prohibited On Part of East Uintah

City Traffic Engineer Don Smith said Wednesday that effective Feb. 1 parking will be prohibited on Uintah Street between Prospect Street and Palmer Park Boulevard.

This will be done to alleviate a traffic bottleneck because the street between those two points is only 30 feet wide and two-way traffic cannot be properly maintained when two vehicles are parked approximately opposite each other.

After carefully studying the situation for several months, Smith said "the increasing volume of vehicles makes it necessary to utilize all available roadway to facilitate and expedite their safe movement."

The traffic engineer said widening Uintah Street between Prospect Street and Palmer Park Boulevard would be the desirable thing to do "but that is not financially possible at this time."

The parking prohibition will inconvenience a relatively few persons, Smith said. There are 45 houses on both sides of Uintah Street in the seven block area.

Twenty two of those 45 are situated on corner locations and have immediate access to curb side vehicle parking on the side street. All houses have some type of off - street parking, either driveway, garage or both.

Additionally, Smith said, vehicle parking will be prohibited on the northwest side of Palmer Park Boulevard between San Miguel and Uintah Streets. This is adjacent to one block of vacant property opposite a church on the southeast side of the block.

Even though parking is now sporadic in the seven block area, Smith said "it is still a serious impediment to the high volume of through traffic. The fact that parking is presently permitted is an equally serious potential impediment."

Studies by the Traffic Engineering Department show that traffic volume is high and is heaviest between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m.; one count showed 4,259 vehicles using the stretch during this time. This was an average of 355 vehicles per hour in both directions, but 69 per cent of the total were eastbound.

Smith said "No Parking Anytime" signs will be installed. Pavement markings will provide for three traffic lanes by installation of an off-set (double yellow) center line and skip lines.

This will provide for two lanes of moving eastbound traffic and one lane for westbound traffic, since about 69 per cent of Uintah Street traffic in this area is eastbound.

Smith said a 24 - hour traffic count at Palmer Park Boulevard and Uintah Street showed 10,000 vehicles using the intersection during a week day, but the count for signalization was met only from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Turning movements at the intersection were studied and counted. He said this study determined channelization was indicated for eastbound Uintah Street traffic and southwest bound Palmer Park Boulevard vehicles.

"We intend to designate the inside eastbound Uintah Street lane as left turn only between Hancock Avenue and Palmer Park Boulevard. This will be done by pavement parkings and 30 by 36 inch overhead signs," he said.

There will also be a lane for right turn only for southwest bound Palmer Park Boulevard vehicles desiring to turn right onto Uintah Street.

The traffic engineer said the northwest corner of Palmer Park Boulevard and Uintah Street will be remodeled to a larger radius to accommodate and expedite the heavy right turn movement.

Clay Mining, Large and Small In Jeopardy With Expansion

By JOHN KUGLIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Large and small clay mining operations are in jeopardy with Ft. Carson's announced 79,500-acre expansion.

East of Stone City near Penrose is the strip mine and processing plant of the Denver Fire Clay Co. A. L. Wands has been its foreman since 1927.

Fire clay is stripped in layers with bulldozers, then trucked to hoppers. Clay is dried in a furnace fired with crude oil. After 120 minutes most of the moisture is removed. This operation produces 200 to 300 tons of untreated clay a month and a large quantity of dried clay.

Clay from this operation and other mines re on land leased other mines are on land leased from the State Land Board near the southern boundary of the land the Army wants.

Two mules may also lose their jobs.

They are "Pete" and "Lynn," the power plant of an underground mine for "plastic clay" at Stone City.

The "mule railroad" disappears into the portal of the shallow mine and the very narrow gauge track continues for three city blocks.

Two miners load the one ton mule carts by hand. Sometimes they help the straining animals move the filled carts on the trip up.

Then loads are weighed and carts are unloaded by hand. The clay is trucked to a General Refractories' plant in Utah.

The average daily production per miner-mule team is about 15 carts. That's about 32 tons a day for the entire mine at a going price of $5 a ton.

Up the hill from its mule mine General Refractories has a larger strip mining operation using heavy diesel machinery.

Fire clay is used by brick manufacturers in Colorado Springs, Denver, Canon City and Pueblo. Clay mined from these deposits lines the chimneys of Pueblo's Colorado Fuel & Iron Corp's. steel mill.

Denver Fire Clay Co. officials say they will have to close their 89-year-old business and fire their 150 employes if their leased clay land is taken for Army maneuvers.

The land acquisition is in the hands of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, based in Omaha, Neb. They are exploring the possibility of altering expansion boundaries to preserve the clay, by order of Maj. Gen. A. J. Maround, commander of Ft. Carson and the 5th Infantry Division (Mech.).

The Defense Department claims Ft. Carson must be expanded from its present 60,000 acres to properly train the 5th Division.

Springs Symphony, Iturbi will Offer Patrons Rich Program

Pianist Jose Iturbi and the Colorado Springs Symphony, conducted by Walter Eisenberg, will offer a rich program of music Monday night, in the third concert of the symphony's winter season.

Nearly the same program will be presented again at the children's concert at 3 p.m. Wednesday, although the selections will be changed somewhat for the younger audience.

Monday night's program will open with the overture to Glinka's "Russlan and Ludmilla." This opera, the first distinctly Russian opera, was heard for the first time in St. Petersburg in 1842. The overture is gay and brilliant.

The second work on the program will be a performance of Sibelius' Symphony No. 1 in E minor. The Colorado Springs Symphony is playing this work as a tribute to Jean Sibelius, in conjunction with orchestras throughout the world. To celebrate the hundredth anniversary of his birthday, the year 1965 has been designated by the Finnish Government as Sibelius Year. Throughout most of his career as a composer, Sibelius was considered a national hero of Finland.

The symphonies by Sibelius are the music of the North, full of heroic ideas and the rhythms of nature. Into the first symphony the composer wove moods that are brooding, defiant, and tragic.

The last two movements only of the Sibelius symphony will be played again at the children's concert, but the entire work will be performed on Monday.

Following the evening's intermission, Iturbi will appear playing the well - known "Rhapsody in Blue" with the orchestra. Just as Gershwin succeeded in bringing jazz to the serious purposes of concert music, so Iturbi has helped to establish the "Rhapsody" in symphony programs.

This popular work, to be played here by one of America's favorite concert artists, should prove to be a highly enjoyable experience. The "Rhapsody in Blue" will also be played for the younger audience on Wednesday.

The final number on Monday evening will be the Concerto No. 20 in D minor for piano and orchestra by Mozart. Composed in 1785, the D minor Concerto became the best - known of Mozart's many concertos. It also is the most expressive of deep emotion and intensity.

In performing the two extremely different compositions of Mozart and Gershwin, Iturbi will demonstrate his own versatility in taste and skill.

Since all seats for the season are sold out, ticket holders who cannot attend the concert on Monday are urged to notify the symphony office in order to accommodate the long waiting list. The concert is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. at Palmer High School.

Williamsburg Seeks Water From Florence System

The town of Williamsburg, seeking to establish a contract with Florence to buy water direct from the new filtration plant, sent a delegation of town officials to the Florence city county meeting Monday night.

Headed by Anthony Scutti, town clerk, the Williamsburg people asked the council first if they could buy water and have it taken directly from the plant by 12-inch line, second if the city would give the town a water rate for consideration.

The council has directed its water committee and attorney to draw up a recommendation for further council discussion.

In other business Monday night, the council heard the annual police report from Chief John Camerlo, reveiewed a recent juvenile case and its treatment through municpal court, authorized City Manager Frank Carochi to attend a Union Ditch Stockholder's meeting and vote the city proxy for its 1,792 shares of stock, and requested the manager to write to Congressman Frank Evans regarding the status of the city's request for matching federal aid funds to improve the local water system.

At the request of Mayor Charles Cristelli, the council also went on record to write a letter to the Colorado Municipal League stating that the City of Florence is opposed to any increase in the cigarette tax as proposed by Gov. John Love.

The council, still shy of funds for purchase of the fire truck recently bid in by the Vendetti Chevrolet company, postponed further action on the measure until sufficient cigarette tax funds have been collected to pay cash for the chassis. There was also some concern expressed by the council over paying for the remainder of the truck during the year 1965.

It was explained by Councilman B. A. Lopez, chairman of the city's finance committee, that the general fund should not be used to pay for the truck balance, and cigarette tax revenues are below the first anticipation.

City Manager Frank Carochi reported that the city is currently repairing a leak in the standpipe south of Florence and reported that crews have cleaned the huge storage tank during the repair work.

In other routine business, the council passed on second reading Ordinance No. 506 regarding malicious mischief and okayed the transfer of $3,000 from the systems improvement fund to the general fund.

Before adjournment, Manager Carochi reported to the council that the Sulpher Chemical company of Green River, Wyo., has agreed to donate 23,000 tons of soda ash for use in lining Reservoir No. 3. The agreement has been approved by Henry Moore, president of the Wyoming concern.

The Florence manager stated that only the matter of transporting the product now remains to be settled. It is expected, however, that a local trucking concern will be given the contract to return the soda ash to Florence from Green River.

Apparent Low Bid Submitted For Paving

Brederick and Gibbons Inc. submitted the apparent low bid to supply the city with 15,000 tons of plant mixed asphalt surfacing material for 1965.

The firm bid $4.70 per tons, less 5 per cent if paid in cash by the 10th of each month. The bid price with the cash discount was $4.37 per ton.

The only other bidder at $4.50 per ton was Rocky Mountain Oil Paving Inc. This firm did not include a cash discount.

Officials in the Department of Public Works said a recommendation on the bids would be sent to the City Council next Tuesday.

The successful bidder will deliever the plant mixed asphalt to city trucks in various amounts throughout the rest of the year.

The Rocky Mountain Paving firm supplied the asphalt to the city during 1964 at a cost of $4.58 per ton.

The city closed its own asphalt plant Jan. 1, 1964. During 1964 the city used about 4,000 tons of asphalt in its street patching program.

Pay Phones Rifled at Hospital

Two pay phones on the wall of the lobby in Penrose Hospital have been tampered with and the coin box of one removed sometime during the past 10 days, police reported.

Henry S. Krzyzanowski, an employee of the Mountain States Telephone Co., told police one of the telephone money boxes had been removed, and he estimated the amount of money stolen at $60. Both locks on the coin boxes of the two telephones had been damaged, and Krzyzanowski said it would cost $25 to replace them.

Police said a lock pick was probably used, and the locks had to be drilled out to open the doors because part of the lock pick was broken off in the locks.

Headed by Anthony Scutti, town clerk, the Williamsburg people asked the council first if they could buy water and have it taken directly from the plant by 12-inch line, second if the city would give the town a water rate for consideration.

The council has directed its water committee and attorney to draw up a recommendation for further council discussion.

In other business Monday night, the council heard the annual police report from Chief John Camerlo, reveiewed a recent juvenile case and its treatment through municpal court, authorized City Manager Frank Carochi to attend a Union Ditch Stockholder's meeting and vote the city proxy for its 1,792 shares of stock, and requested the manager to write to Congressman Frank Evans regarding the status of the city's request for matching federal aid funds to improve the local water system.

At the request of Mayor Charles Cristelli, the council also went on record to write a letter to the Colorado Municipal League stating that the City of Florence is opposed to any increase in the cigarette tax as proposed by Gov. John Love.

The council, still shy of funds for purchase of the fire truck recently bid in by the Vendetti Chevrolet company, postponed further action on the measure until sufficient cigarette tax funds have been collected to pay cash for the chassis. There was also some concern expressed by the council over paying for the remainder of the truck during the year 1965.

It was explained by Councilman B. A. Lopez, chairman of the city's finance committee, that the general fund should not be used to pay for the truck balance, and cigarette tax revenues are below the first anticipation.

City Manager Frank Carochi reported that the city is currently repairing a leak in the standpipe south of Florence and reported that crews have cleaned the huge storage tank during the repair work.

In other routine business, the council passed on second reading Ordinance No. 506 regarding malicious mischief and okayed the transfer of $3,000 from the systems improvement fund to the general fund.

Before adjournment, Manager Carochi reported to the council that the Sulpher Chemical company of Green River, Wyo., has agreed to donate 23,000 tons of soda ash for use in lining Reservoir No. 3. The agreement has been approved by Henry Moore, president of the Wyoming concern.

The Florence manager stated that only the matter of transporting the product now remains to be settled. It is expected, however, that a local trucking concern will be given the contract to return the soda ash to Florence from Green River.

Apparent Low Bid Submitted For Paving

Brederick and Gibbons Inc. submitted the apparent low bid to supply the city with 15,000 tons of plant mixed asphalt surfacing material for 1965.

The firm bid $4.70 per tons, less 5 per cent if paid in cash by the 10th of each month. The bid price with the cash discount was $4.37 per ton.

The only other bidder at $4.50 per ton was Rocky Mountain Oil Paving Inc. This firm did not include a cash discount.

Officials in the Department of Public Works said a recommendation on the bids would be sent to the City Council next Tuesday.

The successful bidder will deliever the plant mixed asphalt to city trucks in various amounts throughout the rest of the year.

The Rocky Mountain Paving firm supplied the asphalt to the city during 1964 at a cost of $4.58 per ton.

The city closed its own asphalt plant Jan. 1, 1964. During 1964 the city used about 4,000 tons of asphalt in its street patching program.

Planners Say There Are 1,336 Streets

How many streets are there in Colorado Springs, Manitou Springs, Broadmoor, Stratmoor Hills, Stratmoor Valley, Security, Widefield and vicinity?

At last count the total was 1,336.

Even though the City Planning Department just completed a street index, the number of streets is constantly increasing because of new annexations and developments.

The City of Colorado Springs added about 36 miles of streets in 1964 and has added about 129 miles to its street system in the past five years. Colorado Springs had 365 miles in its street system to start this year

Pay Phones Rifled at Hospital

Two pay phones on the wall of the lobby in Penrose Hospital have been tampered with and the coin box of one removed sometime during the past 10 days, police reported.

Henry S. Krzyzanowski, an employee of the Mountain States Telephone Co., told police one of the telephone money boxes had been removed, and he estimated the amount of money stolen at $60. Both locks on the coin boxes of the two telephones had been damaged, and Krzyzanowski said it would cost $25 to replace them.

Police said a lock pick was probably used, and the locks had to be drilled out to open the doors because part of the lock pick was broken off in the locks.

The theft wasn't discovered until Wednesday, according to the report.

Rites Set Friday For Mrs. Sanchez

Graveside services for Mrs. Lillian Crespin Sanchez, who died Monday, will be held at 10 a.m. Friday in Evergreen Cemetery. She was married only Saturday and was found dead in a room the couple occupied at 138 E. Navajo St. Deputy Coroner Clarence West said death was caused by carbon monoxide poisoning from a defective heater.

Mrs. Sanchez was born in Trinidad April 26, 1945. She was a member of the Catholic Church. She is survived by her husband, Bennie P. Sanchez; her father, Alfonso Crespin; her mother, Mrs. Emily Crespin; two brothers, Joseph Crespin and Frank Crespin; three sisters, Miss Anita Crespin, Miss Barbara Crespin and Miss Magdela Crespin, all of Colorado Springs.

Friends may call at the Nolan Drawing Room until 9 o'clock tonight.

Amnesia Victim Being Sought In Springs Area

Local law enforcement officials are searching for Conrad Herman, 25, of Oklahoma City, Okla. who may be in this area and is believed to be suffering from amnesia, the sheriff's office said Wednesday.

Herman left for work in Oklahoma City the morning of Dec. 31 in apparent good spirits but never arrived there. His car was found abandoned Jan. 1 at Chaney, Kan.

He was traced as far as Rocky Ford, Colo., where he was last seen Jan. 3. The missing man is an electronics technician and was working for the Melpar Corp. but thrown out of work in September when the plant closed.

He then got a job as an insurance agent, and according to his brother, Dorman Herman was doing well. "I think he has lost track of everything that has happened since September," his brother said. "He thinks he's still out of work.

Herman is 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighs 175 pounds and has dark heavy hair and brown eyes. He also has a distinguishing mole on his left cheek and was last seen wearing a dark gray suit, white shirt and maroon tie.

He is expected to be applying for work in some area of the electronics field or in the grocery business as he has had experience in both jobs.

Anyone with any information should get in touch with the sheriff's department, telephone 632-5511.

Crash Helmet Removed From Cycle at School

A $27 plastic crash helmet was taken from a motorcycle parked in the parking lot of North Junior High School Tuesday, police reported today.

Roger J. Brown, 617 N. Foote St., told police the helmet was white with a black rubber border, and had a leather chin strap. Brown said the helmet was taken between 8:20 a.m. and 3:10 p.m. Tuesday.

Looking at Hollywood

EX-DIRECTOR WALSH IS BREEDING RACE HORSES

HOLLYWOOD— Raoul Walsh, who directed more than 400 pictures, came in for a chat. I hadn't seen him in years. He runs a big ranch up the coast where he breeds race horses. Sells them and lets others race 'em. He has eight brood mares, all in foal, and thinks this life is more exciting than any picture he ever directed. But he has one story he longs to do. Wants to film it in Japan where he's very popular. He won't do it without Jackie Gleason and Cantinflas, and Gleason won't fly. "Why don't you plane down to Miami? He may have changed his mind by now," I said. "I think I will," Walsh said. It takes 14 days by boat to Japan, and Gleason couldn't play golf on a boat.

Barbara Bel Geddes is here playing a lady doctor in a Dr. Kildare segment. But I'll bet she won't be allowed to leave after that. Now that we've got her, let's keep her. After two and one-half years on Broadway in "Mary, Mary," she relaxed with her husband and two daughters, Susan and Betsy, in Putnam, Conn., where they have a farm. "What about your home in Ireland?" I asked. "Too far to commute," Barbara said. "We sold it and now I'm sorry."

Duke Wayne, tall in the saddle again doing "Sons of Katie Elder," finds himself overshadowed in the Durango, Mexico, location by Dean Martin's stand-in, Jose Trinidad Villa, youngest son of Pancho. He's 45 and handsome, and hopes to hit Hollywood some day. Director Henry Hathaway took his two stars into Durango for dinner for the first — and last — time. While they were dining at the Posado hotel (former home of Dolores Del Rio), a mob descended on them, and only the police kept Wayne and Martin from being carried off on the crowd's shoulders. They loved it, but Hathaway had a horrible feeling he might lose both stars.

Martha Hyer packed for Durango as though she were going to the end of the earth. On arrival, she learned that Gov. Enrique Ceniceros was giving a party to welcome her, and had to fly in a suitable dress from Mazatlan. Then his excellency, detained at an agrarian meeting, didn't show.

Some studio would do itself a favor by filming Marguerite Henry's delightful book, "White Stallion of Lipizza." It's a tale of the baker's son who falls in love with the biggest white stallion and makes up his mind to ride one of them before the king. By golly, he does. It's a wonderful book, with beautiful illustrations by Wesley Dennis.

You think our film stars get mail? What nonsense! Last week the Barbee Doll Fan Club got 35,000 pieces of mail. Six hundred thousands little girls are card-carrying memebers of the club. Barbee is the million-dollar baby created by Ruth and Elliott Handler in 1959 and named after their own daughter who now is married and has a little girl of her own. Ruth was a former Paramount secretary. They now live in Bel Air; own their own toy factory which employs 4,000 daily.

Tuesday Weld arrived on the "Cincinnati Kid" set complete with Ping-pong table and dart board for her amusement between scenes. She took on Steve McQueen at darts, but he refused to be photographed. "I must protect my image — I'm the guy who rides motorcycles," he said. Bill Holden used to throw darts in his dressing room. His targets were pictures of all but one of his leading ladies. She wasn't impressed. Tuesday played second fiddle to McQueen on their first day's work. He did a bathing scene in flesh-colored trunks and plenty of suds, while she stood by.

Hugh Marlowe, who recently finished a road tour of "My Fair Lady" as Professor Higgins, co-stars with Betsy Palmer and Sylvia Sidney in "Bell, Book and Candle" in Atlanta, Ga., next month. Later he does the same play with Rhonda Fleming in San Diego.

Aldo Ray joins Lee Tracy in Steptoe and Son, popular TV series in England, following which Aldo does "The Earth Shook, the Sky Burned," about the San Francisco quake. The Rays expect their second child next month.

Henry Backus tells me Jim is one of the finest golfers in the country. Played hooky from school to go around the links with Walter Hagen. He came in fifth one year at the Crosby tournament. They'll both be there from the 20th to the 24th; and will celebrate 22 happy years on the 30th at the Maury Parks' home.

David Rich has been elevated from the TV ranks to direct Lana Turner in "Madam X," his first picture.

Look for Dean Jones to play the young male lead in "Battle of the Bulge" and George Sega to do ditto in "Virginia Woolf."

Copter Crash Blamed On Pilot's Alcohol

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board has ruled that the crash of a civil defense helicopter during rioting here last summer was caused by alcohol in the pilot's bloodstream.

The CAB said Wednesday that a post-mortem finding of .08 per cent alcohol in the bloodstream of James B. Docharty, Page Airways pilot, was "considered an amount sufficient to cause diminution of attention, judgment and control."

Docharty, 45, flew civil defense director Robert M. Abbott, 47, and another pilot, Robert Cannioto, 31, on an inspection tour of riot-torn areas of the city on July 26.

Cannioto was the only survivor.

Docharty and two men in the house into which the helicopter crashed were killed. Abbott died a month later of severe burns.

Two Workmen Killed In Gas Line Explosion

SEABROOK, Tex. (AP) — Two workmen were killed as a gas line exploded and flames shot up while they were repairing a leak near here late Wednesday.

Asst. Police Chief A. L. Wilco said Charles C. Carson, 61, co said Charles C. Carson, 61, of Sour Lake, Tex., was working in a six-foot hole when a spark from his tools apparently set off the blast.

Carson, the contractor on the job for Gulf Oil Corp., and B. Cravan Martin, 61, of Willis, Tex., were killed.

Flames destroyed two pickup trucks and burned 50 acres of pasture.

The Charles Johnson family were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Baltrunas on the Blue Mesa.

The Ute Pass Home Makers club met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Carol White near Crystola. Members present were: Mollie Lutz, Barbara Whiston, Barbara Gafford, Maxine Sumner, Phyllis Giles, Jan Pettit, Joan Baird, Eunice Mathes, Jennie Wyatt and the hostess. Lena Bost was a guest. The morning was spent knitting, sewing and some of the ladies enjoyed playing cards. Refreshments of hot cinnamon rolls and coffee were served during the morning. The next meeting will be February 10th at the home of Maxine Sumner.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stafford, of Woodland Park, and Mr. and Mrs. Archie Coffman, of Colorado Springs, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Shore. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Conrad were also callers in the afternoon.

College Students Seek Permission to Drink

HIRAM, Ohio (AP) — Members of the Hiram College student senate are perturbed over what they call a curtailment of individual freedoms — there is no place in "dry" Hiram township where a student can hoist a friendly glass of ale.

The seven-member student senate has presented a resolution to Village Solicitor Chester Enlow stating that legal counsel will be sought and that a special election may be requested.

A spokesman said Wednesday the chief reason for the resolution was that many students consider it dangerous to drive to other communities to drink beer, then return to campus with cars loaded with students.

Feud Between Castro, Tito Is Reported

By LEO NDENNEN

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Now it is Fidel Castro and Yugoslavia's President Tito who are reported to be feuding over the proper "Revolutionary strategy" in Latin America.

Their quarrel, according to U.S. intelligence, has increased the confusion that already exists in the Red world as a result of the conflict between Russia and China.

Castro apparently continues to hope that his type of revolution with all its extremism will continue to serve as a model for the rest of Latin America.

Since the demise of President Goulart and his Red partisans in Brazil, Cuba's bearded dictator has been trying desperately to regain his image of Latin's America's Communist hero.

He has been pressing hard for the resumption of terrorism and guerrilla warfare in the Caribbean countries, especially in oil-rich Venezuela.

This, however, is contrary to Russia's current go-slow strategy in Latin America, which is also backed by Tito. The Yugoslav president is said to have warned Castro against using the "adventuriest" tacts of Red ina's Mao Tse-tung.

At the recent Cairo conference of "unaligned" nations, Tito even charged openly that Castro and Indonesia's President Sukarno were against Moscow's policy of peaceful coexistence. He hinted strongly that they were "natural" on the side of Red China.

This was followed up with a sharp attack by Yugoslavia's official newspaper Politika, which said bluntly that Castro's policy of terrorism and armed struggle in Venezuela was a failure since most people refused to back it.

Because of Cuba's "adventurist" policy in Venezuela, Politika said, the extreme left in that country was being increasingly isolated.

Castro's press, in turn, derided Tito's attitude as "hostile, insulting, disloyal and harmful to Cuba."

As seen by specialists on Latin America, the Castro - Tito feud, like most such quarrels among secondary leaders in the Red world, merely reflects the conflict between the two Communist giants, Russia an Red China.

As in most Latin American countries, the Reds in Venezuela are also badly split between adherents of Mao Tse-tung's revolutionary brinkmanship and Moscow's "peaceful coexistence."

The election of pro-Western President Leoni in December, and the failure of the pro-Castro terrorists to keep him from taking office has led to considerable soul-searching and maneuvering within Venezuela's extreme left. For several months guerrilla warfare in Venezuela came to a virtual stop.

However, according to U.S. intelligence, the Reds' armed attacks are about to be resumed. E. Gallego's, the Communist leader who works closely with Fidel Castro, is known to have returned recently from China with orders to renew guerrilla warfare against President Leoni's regime.

This is believed to be the reason for Tito's warning to Fidel Castro.

Will the Russians and their Yugoslav ally continue to support Castro and the Venezuela terrorists?

It is the concensus of specialists on communism that should Venezuela's Reds succeed in launching serious terrorist activity, Moscow and Yugoslavia are likely to add their open support to that of Cuba and Red China—if only to keep up with Mao Tse-tung.

H. L. Hunt Writes

Throughout most of recorded history violence has been an everyday part of man's life.

From the first barbaraian raiders to the Panzer columns of Nazi Germany, organized violence has laid waste some of the fairest portions of a green and peaceful earth. Historical evidence shows that government itself came into being in many lands solely as a protection against violence. All too often, then, government became itself the greatest aggressor.

In view of this, it is especially striking that against this long and dark tale of violence, one period stands out. From the civ-Franco-Prussian War in Europe il War in America, and the Franco-Prussian War in Europe to the First World War, a period of approximately fifty years, there was peace on earth, the crime rate in civilized countries reached an all-time low, men and women could live out their lives and make their own fortunes without fear. In New York City, they could walk peacefully in Central Park even at night.

This was the period when freedom was in the ascendant, and every trace of socialism was firmly rejected by the nations of the West, whose governments concentrated on keeping the peace.

Socialism, because it relies on the aggressive use of force to take from some and give to others, to control and to regulate, has cast the ancient shadow of violence once more over human life. Only freedom and limited government can remove it.

As in most Latin American countries, the Reds in Venezuela are also badly split between adherents of Mao Tse-tung's revolutionary brinkmanship and Moscow's "peaceful coexistence."

The election of pro-Western President Leoni in December, and the failure of the pro-Castro terrorists to keep him from taking office has led to considerable soul-searching and maneuvering within Venezuela's extreme left. For several months guerrilla warfare in Venezuela came to a virtual stop.

However, according to U.S. intelligence, the Reds' armed attacks are about to be resumed. E. Gallego's, the Communist leader who works closely with Fidel Castro, is known to have returned recently from China with orders to renew guerrilla warfare against President Leoni's regime.

This is believed to be the reason for Tito's warning to Fidel Castro.

Will the Russians and their Yugoslav ally continue to support Castro and the Venezuela terrorists?

It is the concensus of special ists on communism that should Venezuela's Reds succeed in launching serious terrorist activity, Moscow and Yugoslavia are likely to add their open support to that of Cuba and Red China—if only to keep up with Mao Tse-tung.

H.L. Hunt Writes

Throughout most of recorded history violence has been an everyday part of man's life.

From the first barbaraian raiders to the Panzer columns of Nazi Germany, organized violence has laid waste some of the fairest portions of a green and peaceful earth. Historical evidence shows that government itself came into being in many lands solely as a protection against violence. All too often, then, government became itself the greatest aggressor.

In view of this, it is especially striking that against this long and dark tale of violence, one period stands out. From the civ-Franco-Prussian War in Europe il War in America, and the Franco-Prussian War in Europe to the First World War, a period of approximately fifty years, there was peace on earth, the crime rate in civilized countries reached an all-time low, men and women could live out their lives and make their own fortunes without fear. In New York City, they could walk peacefully in Central Park even at night.

This was the period when freedom was in the ascendant, and every trace of socialism was firmly rejected by the nations of the West, whose governments concentrated on keeping the peace.

Socialism, because it relies on the aggressive use of force to take from some and give to others, to control and to regulate, has cast the ancient shadow of violence once more over human life. Only freedom and limited government can remove it.

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — On a day when members of Congress were far less interested in the state of the world than in where they could scrounge a few extra inaugural tickets, President Johnson chose to send to Capitol Hill a long and philosophical policy report on this nation's defense posture.

The timing of the special message was certainly odd, although as everybody must know by now, Lyndon B. Johnson is a complex character whose motivations often defy professional analysts.

But inasmuch as the President decided to inject a most serious note as political love of Lyndon was busting out all over this Texas barbecue pre-inaugural atmosphere, it would be only fair to play along with him.

What, for example, does Johnson think about the state of the world as he prepares to be sworn in for a four-year term?

With a slight qualification he told Congress in his defense message that "the hope of peace is sturdier than at any other time" since the end of World War II — 20 years ago.

This cautious optimism may or may not be warranted. But it reflects the President's inherent confidence that he can operate on the world scene with the effectiveness he has displayed in dealing with domestic problems.

Several times in the last few weeks there have been authoritative tips from those who have talked privately with Johnson on the foreign situation that he thinks that in 1964 this country's world position had markedly improved.

He has, for example, been said to feel that if there are problems with some of our Allies, they are not deep-seated ones. And to have the attitude that in dealing with our ever-loving Allies, his approach would instinctively be the same as in dealing with Congress.

LITTLE TO CHEER ABOUT, THE EXPERTS SAY

He revealed some of this characteristic Johnson optimism about the effectiveness of his technique in his message today, when he concluded that, generally speaking, "international tensions have diminished."

Just because the President says he thinks this is so doesn't of course, make it a fact. Some of the more realistic operatives in John McCone's CIA and Dean Rusk's State Department have been saying privately for some time that there is damn little to cheer about except that the lid has been kept on explosive situations, more by luck than by design.

One lucky break was the switch to two - man Kremlin control from Nikita Khrushchev's off-and-on-again bellicose operations. It is expected to be another year before the Russian Communists conclude their power struggle, with no telling at this time whether the man finally emerging on top will be a warmonger or peacemonger.

This Russian situation is considered fraught with real peril. So is the whole African situation, especially in the Congo. So, too, according to the experts, is the Red China problem, now that Peking has nuclear weapon potential.

Then here is Southeast Asia Nam. The President referred to the problem in this area in his defense report today, but in a vague way — only about how we could "continue to honor our commitments."

RECALLING THE 1961 KENNEDY REPORT

Regardless of Johnson's instinctive optimism, there is confusion, uncertainty, danger and elements of chaos pretty much around the world. Some of it, incidentally, touching on our difficulties with our NATO partners and the operations of the United Nations.

The President's decision to speel out his strong national military policy, while at the same time finding the outlook for peace greatly improved, was said reliably to have been prompted by a somewhat similar report John F. Kennedy made on March 28, 1961.

That Kennedy message marked the first time a President, soon after taking office, spelled out for all the world to note the nation's military policy. It disclosed Kennedy's defense spending plans and the basically peaceful purpose of our might in arms.

Johnson is reported to have considered that Kennedy message one of the late President's great state papers. So he adopted the same format in the message received by Congress today.

But there was a distinct difference in the approach. Kennedy did not find in the spring of 1961 that peace was just over the horizon. He warned instead of the necessity to "chart a fresh, clear course for our security in a time of rising dangers and persistent hope."

'THE PRIMARY PURPOSE OF OUR ARMS'

Throughout the Kennedy report there was an emphasis on the dangers inherent in the cold war. Johnson today quoted briefly from his predecessor's message to the effect that "the primary purpose of our arms is peace, not war."

But that quotation, as expanded on by Kennedy, was in effect a hard warning to the Communists. What Kennedy actually said was: "The primary purpose of our arms is peace, not war — to make certain that they will never have to be used — to deter all wars, general or limited, nuclear or conventional, large or small — to convince all potential aggressors that any attack would be futile."

Chicago's Old Morrison, Coming Down

CHICAGO (AP) — The Morrison Hotel's days are ending, but the memories are lingering.

The last guest has checked out, the bubble of bellboys and conventioneers has faded and the furnishings are on the auction block.

The closedown of the 46-story Morrison, once the tallest hotel in the world, winds up more than a century of turbulent real estate dealings.

The hotel's site — the corner of Clark and Madison Sts. in the Loop—originally was purchased in 1838 by Orsemus Morrison for $250.

Morrison came to Chicago in 1833, hired to clear a channel linking the Chicago River with Lake Michigan. It enabled ships to navigate the river inland to Chicago, then a village of 250 persons.

Morrison became Chicago's first coroner.

A modest hostelry was built on his swampy bit of land south of the river in 1860.

The Morrison now is owned by the First National Bank of Chicago. The bank also has acquired three acres adjacent to the hotel and plans to build a $60 million skyscraper to enlarge its facilities.

Back in 1871, the Chicago Fire destroyed the first Morrison Hotel and all its records. Two years later, an eight-story hotel was erected. The famed Boston Oyster House was established by John S. Wilson the same year in the basement of the hotel. It became a popular Midwestern center for seafood specialties.

Series of Misfortunes

A short time later, ownership of the ground passed into other hands. It began when the wife of Capt. Edward W. Morrison, nephew of the original owner, was visited by a lacemaker whose son was crippled.

Mrs. Balbena Morrison was so moved by the woman's story that she gave away her husband's coat. Resting on a chair, it contained $79,000 cash and an equal amount of bonds and securities.

The captain's bookkeeping system was such that the gifts might never have been discovered, but the lacemaker broadcast her good luck.

Various persons offered their services to help Capt. Morrison recover his property. A few years later the captain was sued for some of these services and judgments were secured against him.

His attorney is said to have suggested: "If you have no property, the judgment is not good. Deed everything to me and they can't collect."

The captain signed away the Morrison site and everything else he possessed.

When the Central Trust Company, acting as receiver, sought to assemble his assets, they were able to collect $11.73.

Several years of litigation followed. The Morrison fortune had swelled to $3 million and was turned back to Capt. Morrison in 1922.

Capt. Morrison, who was a seaman on a whaler and was Chicago's first fire chief, died at age 93 in 1929. A trust fund was set up from his estate to provide for an old people's home.

Tallest in the World

Harry C. Moir, who had worked as a waiter in a La Salle Street restaurant, acquired control of the Morrison property during its receivership. He set out in 1903 to make the hotel the largest in the world.

The first two 21-story units were completed in 1911 and 1916. The 46-story section, which earned the hotel the title of the "tallest hotel in the world," Americana Hotel, New York, completed in 1962, now is the tallest.)

The final 21-story unit was completed in 1931. It brought the guest room facility to 2,210 rooms. In 1937, the fourth section was sold for taxes as the Morrison ran into financial difficulties. It was leased as the Chicagoan Hotel and was operated separately.

In 1953, the Chicagoan was purchased by the First National Bank of Chicago and leased to the Morrison Hotel for operation.

'That Morrison Crowd'

Meanwhile the Morrison was building a colorful reputation as a center for show business folk, political pow-wows and trade conventions.

In 1926, a federal prohibition agent disguised with a monocle and a British accent, tried to padlock the hotel after finding liquor there.

Ed Kelly and Pat Nash, Democratic boss, were known as the Kelly-Nash machine. During the early days, Nash had no set room in the hotel to hold meetings. He would check in and summon party leaders to his room.

A permanent office was set up by the Democratic organization in the 1930s on the third floor of the Morrison. Political observers say that the inner offices were the smoke-filled rooms where careers of governors, senators, aldermen, judges and others were made or broken.

Chicagoans often referred to the Chicago politicians as "that Morrison crowd."

Willard Rutzen, who spent 35 years in the hotel, becoming its manager, promoted the hotel whenever he could.

Rutzen created the Strawberry Queen, the Corn Queen, the Blossom Queen and the National Cherry Pie Queen.

The hotel's Terrace Casino, seating 1,200 persons, became a mecca for such people as Sophie Tucker, Clyde McCoy, Gus Edwards, Ted Lewis and Martha Raye. Jack Dempsey led the sports world as a frequent guest in the hotel.

The Morrison's flag pole, 637 feet above the street, attracted the attention of Joe Powers, a flag pole sitter. He talked Rutzen into letting him try to break Shipwreck Kelly's world record of 12 days.

Powers went aloft July 1, 1927, and came down 16 days later the champion. He survived a windstorm that tossed him against the pole's cables and knocked out six of his teeth.

In 1952, the Morrison was purchased by a syndicate and renovated at a cost of $1.2 million.

By March 1963, the Morrison was in arrears in unpaid personal property taxes amounting to $300,000, according to county records.

When the Morrison is razed, which began Jan. 1, it will be the tallest demolition job ever undertaken. In 15 months the Morrison will provide 25,000 tons of steel salvage and more than 300,000 tons of debris.

Racial Boycott Leader Says He Will Continue

NEW YORK (AP) — The leader of two massive racial boycotts against New York City public schools in 1964 says he'll continue his current campaign to shut down a school for maladjusted children — desipte his arrest and a court injunction.

The Rev. Milton A. Galamison, 41, a stocky Negro Presbyterian minister, was taken into custody Wednesday for urging absenteeism at a Brooklyn school which handles unruly children.

He has announced plans to close all 15 of the city's schools for emotionally disturbed children by Feb. 3. That coincides with the date a year ago of a mass walkout he led which kept 464,000 children out of classes.

Eugene Cavanagh, chief school attendance officer, arrested Galamison at Brooklyn's South Third Street Methodist Church, where Galamison was helping to oversee 30 pupils from P.S. 617. That school is the first target of the new boycott.

"Get your hands off me," the minister snapped. "Stay where you are," he said to the children when Cavanagh told them to go back to classes.

"Do you have a warrant to come to church," he asked Cavanagh.

"You're under arrest," Cavanagh said, adding he didn't need a warrant to act in his official capacity. Galamison was charged with violating the state education law which makes attendance compulsory.

In Family Court, Galamison also was served with a temporary injunction against the boycott, obtained by the city. He was released without bail for trial next month on the charge of urging children to stay away from school.

He termed the arrest "another harassment, using the law to prevent people from obtaining their civil rights."

"We're going ahead," Galamison said of his boycott plans. "We have a job to do."

If convicted, he faces a 10-day jail sentence.

The 15 schools — called "600" schools — handle 2,000 of the city's tough and often mentally-troubled youngsters. Most of them are Negroes and Puerto Ricans.

Galamison wants to close them all because, he said, they provide inferior education, inadequate facilities and untrained teachers.

"A reprehensible act," said James A. Donovan, school board president. "A disgusting use of sick children."

The boycott kept 136 of the 152 pupils out of P.S. 617 Tuesday. Twenty adult pickets outside the building turned the pupils away.

She Pushed Wrong Button for Voting

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — State Rep. Ellen McCaffree, a Seattle Republican, voted against a move Wednesday to bring to a vote a legislative reapportionment measure she had helped to draw up.

But she hadn't changed her mind, Mrs. McCaffree said afterward.

She had just broken her glasses and couldn't see to push the right button on the electric voting machine.

SECOND SNOW

LONDON (UPI)—The second snow of the year fell on London Wednesday. There was no accumulation. Up to an inch fell in other sections of England and Wales, causing Midday traffic.

The Question of Authority

From whence does authority arise in this world?

Realistically and morally, it arises from the ownership of property. The person who owns anything is the authority over it. A man owns a home. He is the authority over that home. He may invite into it those he chooses, and keep out those he chooses. His rights are total over what he owns. He is the authority over his property.

Each man owns himself. He is the authority over himself. No other man may rightfully assume an authority over him without his consent. This does not mean that he somehow acquires authority over the property of other men. He does not and cannot. However, he can contract with other persons in such a way that certain privileges are extended.

Thus, the man owning the house can invite another man to enter the house and to stay in it. The person owning the house retains all authority over the house. Still, he can lease (assign some of his property in use) to another man. Provided the second man does not abuse this grant of proprietary interest, he can act, within the limits prescribed, as though he were the owner. But in final analysis, the owner is the authority.

A man owns a business. He is the authority over the business. He may hire workers, including a manager to run it for him. But since he is the owner, he is the ultimate authority.

All rightful authority arises from the ownership of property. Each person owns himself and then he owns whatever properties he honestly acquires from others. All such properties are merely extensions of himself and he is the authority over them in the same way that he is the authority over himself.

All socialism is an attempt to undermine this authority in whole or in part. The socialist format rests upon the idea that through some process or other, some men who are not owners can acquire authority over other men who are owners.

The first attempt to create such authority arose in pagan times where it was presumed that various deities had established contact with certain humans, and these humans, acting for one or another of the pagan pantheon, had some kind of divine sanction to exercise authority over others. There was evidence of no such condition in nature. So the first authoritarians fell back on pagan superstition to establish their authority.

The second such effort was actually an extension of the first. This effort, which led to the establishment of royal lineage and the inheritances of power, presumed that the various gods had endowed a special being with extraordinary authority and that this authority was passed on down through his children.

Thomas Paine, one of the great American writers of the revolutionary period, rather thoroughly abolished this idea in his booklet, "Common Sense."

Following "Common Sense," one of the truly epochal essays of history, efforts toward "democracy" multiplied. It was believed that majorities some how obtained authority by the weight of numbers. Never mind the rights of individuals, they could always be set aside if a majority so ruled. The number of persons in the group or the number in the majority is a detail. The divine right of majorities became virtually a way of life for many people. "Vox populi, vox dei" — "The voice of the people is the voice of God."

Today, majority decision-making has reached a very high point on the political trajectory. But there are indications that it may be replaced in either of two ways. We may convert to a concept of rule by the philosophers. This was an original suggestion by Plato. The extent of influence in government proceeding from certain favored institutions of learning is an indication.

Or, conceivably, with the great emphasis now upon electronics and calculation done by machines, we may convert to government by electronic robots.

The effect, in any case, will be much the same. Rightful authority descends upon each of us to the extent that we are owners. A manufactured authority which is designed by a special group and endowed with military and police power, comes into existence only because we propose in some degree to violate some authority that a person holds over himself or his property. Whether we are ruled by a pagan god, a king, a majority, a philosopher, or a robot, we will no longer be the authority over ourselves.

Blind Spots

It is difficult today to convince people that they should be responsible for themselves; and even more difficult for many to consider the importance of assuming responsibility in the area of enterprise.

Dutch Eliminate TV Station

A free - enterprise television station which operated off the coast of Holland has been closed down by Dutch police and naval forces.

For four months, the station has been operating from a tower built on pilings two miles beyond the limits of Dutch sovereignty.

But the operators were giving the bureaucrats trouble. They were not broadcasting subversive material. They were not even evading taxes, nor were they interfering with domestic broadcasts.

What they were doing, which the bureaucrats didn't like, was to broadcast programs which were financed by advertising, just like commercial television in the United States and some other parts of the world. North Sea TV, as the station was called, was airing programs which were good enough so that the Dutch people who could get the channel were watching them instead of the government-operated and subsidized channels.

The Dutch government bans advertising on its subsidized stations and protects them from competition. And it provides the people with the kind of programs the government thinks is good for them.

But this station, which, the government called a pirate, was giving the public what the public wanted. It had to or it could not get viewers and thus would not be able to sell advertising time. The "pirate" station thus was making the government look silly. This the bueaucrats could not stand, so they put the station out of business.

Here in this country a different method is used. The television stations are licensed by the government. And when in California a firm found a way to compete with the licensed stations, by using telephone lines and offering its services for sale, the television stations joined the movie houses and got an initiative on the ballot to put the competition out of business by vote of a majority.

Bad Aspects of Medicare

By OSCAR COOLEY
Associate Professor of Economics
Ohio Northern University

Not since the 1930's has such a destructive State-of-the-Union message as that of President Johnson been presented to Congress. Vague and general as it was every proposal if enacted would destroy some part of the free market economy which has been laboriously built up over the years.

In place of the market mechanism, by which price rations cut goods and services in proportion to the peoples' demand, Johnson would substitute government orders and officials. In place of freedom and responsibility, he would substitute regimentation and irresponsibility.

Consider "Medicare." The service to be supplied is hospitalization. The consumers to whom it will be offered are people of 65 or over. They are invited to accept the service in any quantity they desire up to 60 days per year and at an exceedingly low price: the charge for the first day in the hospital, which over the nation averages about $20. For every day after the first, the government will pick up the tab.

Thus, whether one is in the hospital two days or 60, the cost to him will be the same.

Immediately one wonders: what inducement will there be for a patient to go home from the hospital? After the first day, his bill will be underwritten for two months; why not stay and live it up?

Many people enjoy life in a hospital. You are waited on by uprightly, immaculate nurses and nurses' aides. They rub your back even though it had not occurred to you your back needed rubbing.

You are served not only breakfast in bed but dinner and supper as well. If you don't have a TV set, your roommate probably does. Flowers, ditto.

Far from being lonesome, one can hardly keep up with the social whirl as visitors crowd the corridors and wards at all hours of day and evening. Every day the doctor looks in to care for your body and behind him comes the chaplain to care for your soul. What swanky hotel does as much for its customers?

Now, as soon as you reach 65, the bill for all this will be paid for you. Surely, one's cup runneth over.

If hospital rooms were as abundant as air, this program would be workable — and unnecessary. But they are not; they are scarce. In fact, in many communities hospital rooms are so scarce with relation to demand that beds have to be set up in hospital corridors in order to make room for the people who really need them.

This is mainly because the spread of voluntary hospital insurance in recent years has made the paying of hospital bills easier and so has increased consumption of hospital services. Medicare will make the paying of hospital bills even easier, in fact will practically cancel such bills for the age group that patronizes hospitals most. Obviously, the consumption will increase still more. To accommodate the extra beds needed, the corridors will have to be widened!

This pinpoints the foolishness of Medicare. Its advocates naively assume that by merely reducing the price of a service to zero, you can overcome its scarcity and make it available to all.

They assume this because they don't understand that the function of price is to ration scarce goods and services. They look upon price as just a millstone that profit-seeking sellers hang around the necks of poor buyers.

Price, on the contrary, is a great blessing to the poor as well as to the rich. Because of price the poor man can sell his services for a substantial price. With the money he can then claim goods in the market — goods that have been reserved for him by price. To scrap price is to destroy the rationing mechanism and return us to a world of "first come-first-served and-devil-take-the-hindmost."

Medicare will provide only hospitalization and only to the elderly. But the market destroyers are never satisfied with a little destruction; they will press for expansion of the program to medical care and to younger, probably all, age groups.

Many doctors will protest but they will be dismissed as profit-seeking entrepreneurs, as indeed they are, but not to their discredit.

The problem of the people who want to preserve high grade medical and hospital care will be to prevent doctors and hospitals from deteriorating under the pressure to increase their quantity. Such deterioration can only be prevented by preserving price and entrepreneurship in medicine.

SALESMEN NEEDED

President Johnson has been advocating a great society and his address before congress the other day surely indicated he meant business on an all-out basis.

His intentions were so all-inclusive that I was reminded of election campaign that the word extreme was used. The things he advocates are extreme to say the least, and if a near approach of such a society is gained many more Americans are going to have to get more extreme in their goals and intentions.

The difference between the American economy and other nations is the fact that we have had the inspiration and leadership of sales oriented private enterprisers. We will need many more salesmen and a much higher quality of salesmanship if we attain or make a substantial approach to the conditions the president outlined in his speech.

No matter how well educated and trained the citizens are there will be enough jobs to go around only if we have enough men qualified to successfully manage private enterprises which furnish the jobs. The emphasis must be on selling.

QUESTION OF WELFARE

To the Editor:

Where do these "do-gooders," these Socialists, get the idea that the Constitution provides for the federal government promoting the welfare of the individual citizens of the sovereign states? I suggest they refer to the Preamble of the Constitution wherein is found this phrase — "promote the general welfare" and in Article One, Section Eight — "and provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States." Remember the Constitution was a "deal" offered to the states. NOWHERE is there such a phrase as "welfare of the people" and most likely omitted because of the general acceptance of the idea that "welfare of the people" was the prerogative of each state. Thus there is NO CONSTITUTIONAL AUTHORITY for the federal usurpation of the sovereign right of each state to look after its own citizens — to remove any or all artificial handicaps or obstructions to individual well being of them but leaving to them their individual rights and RESPONSIBILITIES!

Federal meddling in education, health, corporate as well as individual farming, care of the needy, affairs of "small business" men, etc., are entirely OUTSIDE constitutional authority! Those who are responsible for this UN constitutional meddling in the affairs of sovereign states really should be impeached — or at least removed from office — but how? The Constitution grants the authority to impeach to the very ones who are guilty of UNconstitutional legislation! All this dabbling in various business and commercial enterprises, to the detriment of taxpayers, is ENTIRELY OUTSIDE the constitutional perrogatives of the Federal Government. How much longer are we going to stand for it? OR IS THAT WHAT WE WANT, the way we want this country to be run? Or is it what merely 37 per cent of the registered voters want — Socialist autocracy on to Communist despotism?

DRINKING AND RELIGION

To the Editor:

On the front page of today's (Jan. 15) Gazette Telegraph there is an article that presents the view of a university professor that "Drinkers Want 'Holiness.'"

The view is also presented that the people who drink are thinking much about life, death, and eternity and from this the professor concludes that religion therefore regards drinking as competition.

There are several things I'd like to remark on after reading this article. For one thing, thoughts of life, death, and eternity are common to all mankind of different age groups in all parts of the earth. Just recently a teen-ager asked a seminary student what we are on the earth for and the student responded that he didn't know.

Another point that this article has further convinced me of is that highly educated men, regardless of what vocation they are in, do not always manifest the best judgment. Education does not change character or give integrity.

People in religious work recognize the harms of alcohol as a competition indeed, but not necessarily from the money angle. Anyone who loves their fellowmen cannot stand by and see very intelligent people destroy the cells of their brains with alcohol without saying a word against the harmful use of alcohol.

Indeed there is competition, but it is for the souls and minds of men that the true Christian will struggle with the evils of his society.

Any student of the Bible knows that both the old and new testament give warnings against the harmful effects of strong drink. Drunkards are among the list of those who cannot enter the Kingdom of God (Galations 5: 19-21).

Any observing person knows that alcohol removes inhibitions and people under its influence will do things, quite harmful and shameful at times, that they would not do when sober.

Many crimes, indeed most crimes are caused by people under the influence of alcohol. Most divorces occur as a result of one or both parties drinking alcohol. Most accidents are the result of alcohol on our highways during holiday vacations, and this means crippled children as well as disabled parents.

The only time I personally could be indifferent to the harms done by alcohol would be if my blood would turn to ice water and I just had no love at all left for either God or man.

A Powerful Idea

From The Richmond (VA.) News Leader

The Foundation for Economic Education is one of those grisly specters of the Right that have been conjured up in recent weeks by assorted necromancers of fear. FEE, as it is called, is one of those radical groups that are opposed to socialism, even democratic socialism.

The fear of FEE is justified, because FEE believes in one powerful idea. It believes that men ought to be free to make their own economic decisions. It believes that the regimentation of the planned economy is degrading and inefficient. It believes that the most productive and hence most humanitarian economic system is the free-market.

Just how powerful this idea can be is revealed in a Fortune magazine article, "When Executives Turned Revolutionaries." Fortune explains that the Brazilian revolt against President Goulart last March—the revolt which saved Brazil from a Communist dictatorship — was organized because one man had been inspired by materials from FEE.

The important thing is that FEE had no knowledge of the impending revolution, and no part in the planning. About 14 years ago, FEE'S president, Leonard E. Read, had a chance luncheon with a Sao Paulo businessman, Paulo Ayres Filho. The Brazilian was impressed by FEE's economic theory, and began to translate and distribute the foundation's publications in his own country. At this time, Brazil was going off on its mad inflationary spiral. Whom the gods would destroy, they first make mad, said the Greeks. And in Brazil, a whole coterie of Communists was pushing Brazil into an insane economy.

While these groups were urging ever-increasing nationalizing and centralization of planning and control, Ayres was organizing the Brazilian Institute of Social Research and Studies. The institute's belief in a free economy ran into hard opposition not only from outright Communists, but also from students, intellectuals, and from the inefficient and cartelized businessmen who wanted to control the economy to suit their own interests. By 1962, however, the institute spawned a whole group of anticommunist action organizations, organized into small chapters in each city, and ready to do battle at elections, meetings and rallies.

By early March of this year word was received that the Communists were about to take over the government either by making Goulart a puppet or by removing him entirely. Ayres' group of businessmen was ready. When Goulart bowed down to leftist elements during the sailors' strike the military became alarmed and the revolt began.

In the aftermath the problems are still economic. Inflation has ruined savings and made the interest on loans fantastic. Inventories have been overbought as a hedge against rising prices. But fiscal sanity and freedom are worth the price to be paid.

A decade ago the ideas promoted by FEE sounded reactionary even radical in Brazil. Paulo Ayres must have thought he was fighting a losing battle opposed as he was by big businessmen liberal intellectuals and Communists. His methods must have appeared antidemocratic and antisocialist. But now both Americans and Brazilians are thankful that he was moved by a powerful idea.

Leading Educators

By RUFUS L. PORTER

We read every once in awhile that some egg-head professor or "doctor" is one of "America's leading educators." Among those most often mentioned thusly is Dr. James Conant, an advocate of complete government control of schools. Dr. Conant even goes so far as to say that any schools, private or parochial, that do not rigidly conform with the government schools are "divisive" and should be abolished.

According to him, children educated in such schools would tend to disrupt the peaceful habits of those who had been taught "life adjustment" and togetherness—and little else in the government schools. The even tenor of their ways should not be exposed to nonconformity, and the only way to prevent it would be to make them ALL conform. These are not Conant's exact words, but, in essence, they give his exact meaning.

It seems to me that we have too many such leading educators who are leading our children into strange paths and about as far away from education as it is possible to get. In the stockyards, especially where slaughter-houses are present, they have leading goats, known as "Judas goats," that lead the sheep straight up to the slaughtering chutes.

I do not mean to imply that our leading educators lead the children to their deaths—at least not physically. But they do lead them into a death-like conformity where their brains are more apt to atrophy than to come alive, expand, accept new ideas and learn to dream magnificent dreams.

There is a sameness about all government schools. From one end of the nation to the other, this sameness is evident. In most instances, there is a sameness in the architecture of the newer school buildings. There is a sameness in the training of the teachers, as though a great effort has been made to pour them all into the same mold. I hasten to add here that there are many excellent teachers who have refused to conform totally. But they MUST conform to a certain extent before they can obtain the coveted license to teach, which is granted, not on the teacher's knowledge of the subjects, but on how many hours he or she has had of methodology.

And, since the above pertains to the teachers in private and parochial schools as well as government ones, a good deal of sameness (conformity) has also crept into these schools in the past decade or so. Nobody can teach in any school who does not have a government teacher's license.

But the private schools have managed, so far, to keep some degree of individuality, an aura of difference, a nonconformity about them. As a rule, they offer a chance for better learning from better text books taught by better teachers. They offer a wider choice of studies and, in the case of parochial schools at least, some moral training. And that is one thing they can't get in the government schools.

If I had to choose for my kids between education (training) without moral teaching and moral teaching without education (training), I would unhesitatingly choose the latter. I have used ("training") in parentheses to indicate that government education is really more a matter of training than of true education.

Education without moral training breeds delinquents, whereas moral training without education breeds honest and upright citizens who are fully capable of educating themselves, as many have done.

So, before we allow our governor and the state legislature, not to mention LBJ and his grandiose plans, to tax us to death in the holy name of "education," let us pause and consider wither our "leading educators" are leading us.

Question Box

Question No. 640: "Since you call your newspaper a 'Freedom Newspaper' what do you understand freedom and-or liberty to mean?"

Answer: Freedom to our mind is something which we have never had and probably never will have, even if the Declaration of Independence says we are endowed with life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. We have never had liberty. One is endowed with the moral right to attain more liberty and freedom and to keep it.

The best summary we have of what we mean by freedom and-or liberty is that a man is only free when he has 100 per cent control of his life and all he has acquired through voluntary means and 0 per cent control of what others have acquired through voluntary means.

Our idea that we have never had freedom or liberty is pretty well summarized by John W. Burgess' "Reconciliation of Government With Liberty." He contended that after we had freed the slaves up until we passed the graduated income tax we more nearly reconciled liberty with government than any other time in our history or more nearly than it was ever reconciled by any other nation.

Freedom is an ideal image that we want to strive for. It isn't an end in itself, because only to the degree that we have freedom and liberty, to that degree can man develop spiritually and mentally and preserve his life.

To that degree he can approach the joy of living.

Questions are limited to general human relations, questions that will improve the well being of all mankind on this earth.

The Knolls

By BUTLER D. SHAFFER

Just south of the city of Lincoln, Nebraska, is a residential development known as the Knolls. It was begun some 10 to 12 years ago, and has catered to persons interested in building more expensive homes. Each lot contains one acre of ground, and there are presently some 70 to 80 lots. At the present time, there are 20 homes in The Knolls, with construction costs for each ranging from about $50,000 to some that cost around $200,000. Assuming that the average home cost around $100,000, twenty homes would mean a total value of approximately $2 million for these homes. In addition, there is a restaurant and privately owned golf course in this development. With all this valuable property, one would imagine that the "city fathers" are quite anxious to bring The Knolls into the city, so as to have the benefit of added tax revenues. Well, they are!

Normally, when one thinks of extending the city limits into an outlying region, it is because the adjacent area is getting all the benefits of the city government's so-called "services." How does this argument stand up in this case.

As far as police protection is concerned, The Knolls has the services of the county sheriff's patrol which, by the way, makes its rounds through this area far more often than the city police would ever be seen in a residential section of town. For fire protection, The Knolls has contracted with a rural fire district which, for an annual fee, will provide such service. Again, it should be noted that the rural fire station is closer to The Knolls than any city station.

When it comes to electrical power, the city of Lincoln is served by one public power district, while The Knolls is serviced by a different rural power district. The Knolls has its own private water supply and sanitary sewer system. It is located in a rural school district, with the school building about three-quarters of a mile away, and not the Lincoln public school district, whose schools are at least a mile and a half from The Knolls.

Another interesting feature of this area is that the man who developed it put in his own roads, which comprise about one and a half miles of asphalt streets. He put in his own street lighting system, as well, charging the cost of both off against the price of the lots. Most people would argue that we must have some form of government if, for no other reason, than the building of streets. "After all," these people maintain, "how can private enterprise build streets." And yet the developer of The Knolls did. Why? He found that people were more inclined to build a house on one of his lots if there was a street in front of it, than if they had to walk through a mile of cornfields to get to their home.

While the county department of roads clears the streets of snow in the winter-time, there is one man who lives in The Knolls who has his own snowplow, and makes his services available for snow removal for a fee.

Now that the city of Lincoln is trying, desperately, to bring The Knolls into the city limits — and by the way, there is one mile of nothing but corn-fields between the present city limits and The Knolls, which shows you how anxious the city is for all that tax money. The residents of this development are arguing, "Why should we pay taxes to the City of Lincoln for 'services' which we are either providing ourselves, or which we are getting from some source other than the City of Lincoln?"

In answer to the city's claim that "we only want to provide police protection for The Knolls," the developer, who also owns the golf course, stated: "All you really want is to come out here and burden us with your taxes so that you will have more money available to go out and build city-owned golf courses to compete with my private enterprise course."

The issue could not have been stated much more clearly, and points out just how far government will stretch its case in order to get more people to coerce and more property to steal.

The Question of Authority

From whence does authority arise in this world?

He may invite into it those he chooses, and keep out those he chooses. His rights are total over what he owns. He is the authority over his property.

Each man owns himself. He is the authority over himself. No other man may rightfully assume an authority over him without his consent. This does not mean that he somehow acquires authority over the property of other men. He does not and cannot. However, he can contract with other persons in such a way that certain privileges are extended.

Thus, the man owning the house can invite another man to enter the house and to stay in it. The person owning the house retains all authority over the house. Still, he can lease (assign some of his property in use) to another man. Provided the second man does not abuse this grant of proprietary interest, he can act, within the limits prescribed, as though he were the owner. But in final analysis, the owner is the authority.

A man owns a business. He is the authority over the business. He may hire workers, including a manager to run it for him. But since he is the owner, he is the ultimate authority.

All rightful authority arises from the ownership of property. Each person owns himself and then he owns whatever properties he honestly acquires from others. All such properties are merely extensions of himself and he is the authority over them in the same way that he is the authority over himself.

All socialism is an attempt to undermine this authority in whole or in part. The socialist format rests upon the idea that through some process or other, some men who are not owners can acquire authority over other men who are owners.

The first attempt to create such authority arose in pagan times where it was presumed that various deities had established contact with certain humans, and these humans, acting for one or another of the pagan pantheon, had some kind of divine sanction to exercise authority over others. There was evidence of no such condition in nature. So the first authoritarians fell back on pagan superstition to establish their authority.

The second such effort was actually an extension of the first. This effort, which led to the establishment of royal lineage and the inheritances of power, presumed that the various gods had endowed a special being with extraordinary authority and that this authority was passed on down through his children.

Thomas Paine, one of the great American writers of the revolutionary period, rather thoroughly abolished this idea in his booklet, "Common Sense."

Following "Common Sense," one of the truly epochal essays of history, efforts toward "democracy" multiplied. It was believed that majorities some how obtained authority by the weight of numbers. Never mind the rights of individuals, they could always be set aside if a majority so ruled. The number of persons in the group or the number in the majority is a detail. The divine right of majorities became virtually a way of life for many people. "Vox populi, vox dei" — "The voice of the people is the voice of God."

Today, majority decision-making has reached a very high point on the political trajectory. But there are indications that it may be replaced in either of two ways. We may convert to a concept of rule by the philosophers. This was an original suggestion by Plato. The extent of influence in government proceeding from certain favored institutions of learning is an indication.

Or, conceivably, with the great emphasis now upon electronics and calculation done by machines, we may convert to government by electronic robots.

The effect, in any case, will be much the same. Rightful authority descends upon each of us to the extent that we are owners. A manufactured authority which is designed by a special group and endowed with military and police power, comes into existence only because we propose in some degree to violate some authority that a person holds over himself or his property. Whether we are ruled by a pagan god, a king, a majority, a philosopher, or a robot, we will no longer be the authority over ourselves.

Blind Spots

It is difficult today to convince people that they should be responsible for themselves; and even more difficult for many to consider the importance of assuming responsibility in the area of enterprise.

Dutch Eliminate TV Station

A free - enterprise television station which operated off the coast of Holland has been closed down by Dutch police and naval forces.

For four months, the station has been operating from a tower built on pilings two miles beyond the limits of Dutch sovereignty.

But the operators were giving the bureaucrats trouble. They were not broadcasting subversive material. They were not even evading taxes, nor were they interfering with domestic broadcasts.

What they were doing, which the bureaucrats didn't like, was to broadcast programs which were financed by advertising, just like commercial television in the United States and some other parts of the world. North Sea TV, as the station was called, was airing programs which were good enough so that the Dutch people who could get the channel were watching them instead of the government-operated and subsidized channels.

The Dutch government bans advertising on its subsidized stations and protects them from competition. And it provides the people with the kind of programs the government thinks is good for them.

But this station, which, the government called a pirate, was giving the public what the public wanted. It had to or it could not get viewers and thus would not be able to sell advertising time. The "pirate" station thus was making the government look silly. This the bueaucrats could not stand, so they put the station out of business.

Here in this country a different method is used. The television stations are licensed by the government. And when in California a firm found a way to compete with the licensed stations, by using telephone lines and offering its services for sale, the television stations joined the movie houses and got an initiative on the ballot to put the competition out of business by vote of a majority.

Bad Aspects of Medicare

By OSCAR COOLEY
Associate Professor of Economics
Ohio Northern University

Not since the 1930's has such a destructive State-of-the-Union message as that of President Johnson been presented to Congress. Vague and general as it was every proposal if enacted would destroy some part of the free market economy which has been laboriously built up over the years.

In place of the market mechanism, by which price rations cut goods and services in proportion to the peoples' demand, Johnson would substitute government orders and officials. In place of freedom and responsibility, he would substitute regimentation and irresponsibility.

Consider "Medicare." The service to be supplied is hospitalization. The consumers to whom it will be offered are people of 65 or over. They are invited to accept the service in any quantity they desire up to 60 days per year and at an exceedingly low price: the charge for the first day in the hospital, which over the nation averages about $20. For every day after the first, the government will pick up the tab.

Thus, whether one is in the hospital two days or 60, the cost to him will be the same.

Immediately one wonders: what inducement will there be for a patient to go home from the hospital? After the first day, his bill will be underwritten for two months; why not stay and live it up?

Many people enjoy life in a hospital. You are waited on by uprightly, immaculate nurses and nurses' aides. They rub your back even though it had not occurred to you your back needed rubbing.

You are served not only breakfast in bed but dinner and supper as well. If you don't have a TV set, your roommate probably does. Flowers, ditto.

Far from being lonesome, one can hardly keep up with the social whirl as visitors crowd the corridors and wards at all hours of day and evening. Every day the doctor looks in to care for your body and behind him comes the chaplain to care for your soul. What swanky hotel does as much for its customers?

Now, as soon as you reach 65, the bill for all this will be paid for you. Surely, one's cup runneth over.

If hospital rooms were as abundant as air, this program would be workable — and unnecessary. But they are not; they are scarce. In fact, in many communities hospital rooms are so scarce with relation to demand that beds have to be set up in hospital corridors in order to make room for the people who really need them.

This is mainly because the spread of voluntary hospital insurance in recent years has made the paying of hospital bills easier and so has increased consumption of hospital services. Medicare will make the paying of hospital bills even easier, in fact will practically cancel such bills for the age group that patronizes hospitals most. Obviously, the consumption will increase still more. To accommodate the extra beds needed, the corridors will have to be widened!

This pinpoints the foolishness of Medicare. Its advocates naively assume that by merely reducing the price of a service to zero, you can overcome its scarcity and make it available to all.

They assume this because they don't understand that the function of price is to ration scarce goods and services. They look upon price as just a millstone that profit-seeking sellers hang around the necks of poor buyers.

Price, on the contrary, is a great blessing to the poor as well as to the rich. Because of price the poor man can sell his services for a substantial price. With the money he can then claim goods in the market — goods that have been reserved for him by price. To scrap price is to destroy the rationing mechanism and return us to a world of "first come-first-served and devil-take-the-hindmost."

Medicare will provide only hospitalization and only to the elderly. But the market destroyers are never satisfied with a little destruction; they will press for expansion of the program to medical care and to younger, probably all, age groups.

Many doctors will protest but they will be dismissed as profit-seeking entrepreneurs, as indeed they are, but not to their discredit.

The problem of the people who want to preserve high grade medical and hospital care will be to prevent doctors and hospitals from deteriorating under the pressure to increase their quantity. Such deterioration can only be prevented by preserving price and entrepreneurship in medicine.

SALESMEN NEEDED

President Johnson has been advocating a great society and his address before congress the other day surely indicated he meant business on an all-out basis.

His intentions were so all-inclusive that I was reminded of election campaign that the word extreme was used. The things he advocates are extreme to say the least, and if a near approach of such a society is gained many more Americans are going to have to get more extreme in their goals and intentions.

The difference between the American economy and other nations is the fact that we have had the inspiration and leadership of sales oriented private enterprisers. We will need many more salesmen and a much higher quality of salesmanship if we attain or make a substantial approach to the conditions the president outlined in his speech.

No matter how well educated and trained the citizens are there will be enough jobs to go around only if we have enough men qualified to successfully manage private enterprises which furnish the jobs. The emphasis must be on selling.

QUESTION OF WELFARE

To the Editor:

Where do these "do-gooders," these Socialists, get the idea that the Constitution provides for the federal government promoting the welfare of the individual citizens of the sovereign states? I suggest they refer to the Preamble of the Constitution wherein is found this phrase — "promote the general welfare" and in Article One, Section Eight — "and provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States." Remember the Constitution was a "deal" offered to the states. NOWHERE is there such a phrase as "welfare of the people" and most likely omitted because of the general acceptance of the idea that "welfare of the people" was the prerogative of each state. Thus there is NO CONSTITUTIONAL AUTHORITY for the federal usurpation of the sovereign right of each state to look after its own citizens — to remove any or all artificial handicaps or obstructions to individual well being of them but leaving to them their individual rights and RESPONSIBILITIES!

Federal meddling in education, health, corporate as well as individual farming, care of the needy, affairs of "small business" men, etc., are entirely OUTSIDE constitutional authority! Those who are responsible for this UN constitutional meddling in the affairs of sovereign states really should be impeached — or at least removed from office — but how? The Constitution grants the authority to impeach to the very ones who are guilty of UNconstitutional legislation! All this dabbling in various business and commercial enterprises, to the detriment of taxpayers, is ENTIRELY OUTSIDE the constitutional perrogatives of the Federal Government. How much longer are we going to stand for it? OR IS THAT WHAT WE WANT, the way we want this country to be run? Or is it what merely 37 per cent of the registered voters want — Socialist autocracy on to Communist despotism?

DRINKING AND RELIGION

To the Editor:

On the front page of today's (Jan. 15) Gazette Telegraph there is an article that presents the view of a university professor that "Drinkers Want 'Holiness.'"

The view is also presented that the people who drink are thinking much about life, death, and eternity and from this the professor concludes that religion therefore regards drinking as competition.

There are several things I'd like to remark on after reading this article. For one thing, thoughts of life, death, and eternity are common to all mankind of different age groups in all parts of the earth. Just recently a teen-ager asked a seminary student what we are on the earth for and the student responded that he didn't know.

Another point that this article has further convinced me of is that highly educated men, regardless of what vocation they are in, do not always manifest the best judgment. Education does not change character or give integrity.

People in religious work recognize the harms of alcohol as a competition indeed, but not necessarily from the money angle. Anyone who loves their fellowmen cannot stand by and see very intelligent people destroy the cells of their brains with alcohol without saying a word against the harmful use of alcohol.

Indeed there is competition, but it is for the souls and minds of men that the true Christian will struggle with the evils of his society.

Any student of the Bible knows that both the old and new testament give warnings against the harmful effects of strong drink. Drunkards are among the list of those who cannot enter the Kingdom of God (Galations 5: 19-21).

Any observing person knows that alcohol removes inhibitions and people under its influence will do things, quite harmful and shameful at times, that they would not do when sober.

Many crimes, indeed most crimes are caused by people under the influence of alcohol. Most divorces occur as a result of one or both parties drinking alcohol. Most accidents are the result of alcohol on our highways during holiday vacations, and this means crippled children as well as disabled parents.

The only time I personally could be indifferent to the harms done by alcohol would be if my blood would turn to ice water and I just had no love at all left for either God or man.

Leading Educators

By RUFUS L. PORTER

We read every once in awhile that some egg-head professor or "doctor" is one of "America's leading educators." Among those most often mentioned thusly is Dr. James Conant, an advocate of complete government control of schools. Dr. Conant even goes so far as to say that any schools, private or parochial, that do not rigidly conform with the government schools are "divisive" and should be abolished.

According to him, children educated in such schools would tend to disrupt the peaceful habits of those who had been taught "life adjustment" and togetherness—and little else in the government schools. The even tenor of their ways should not be exposed to nonconformity, and the only way to prevent it would be to make them ALL conform. These are not Conant's exact words, but, in essence, they give his exact meaning.

It seems to me that we have too many such leading educators who are leading our children into strange paths and about as far away from education as it is possible to get. In the stockyards, especially where slaughter-houses are present, they have leading goats, known as "Judas goats," that lead the sheep straight up to the slaughtering chutes.

I do not mean to imply that our leading educators lead the children to their deaths—at least not physically. But they do lead them into a death-like conformity where their brains are more apt to atrophy than to come alive, expand, accept new ideas and learn to dream magnificent dreams.

There is a sameness about all government schools. From one end of the nation to the other, this sameness is evident. In most instances, there is a sameness in the architecture of the newer school buildings. There is a sameness in the training of the teachers, as though a great effort has been made to pour them all into the same mold. I hasten to add here that there are many excellent teachers who have refused to conform totally. But they MUST conform to a certain extent before they can obtain the coveted license to teach, which is granted, not on the teacher's knowledge of the subjects, but on how many hours he or she has had of methodology.

And, since the above pertains to the teachers in private and parochial schools as well as government ones, a good deal of sameness (conformity) has also crept into these schools in the past decade or so. Nobody can teach in any school who does not have a government teacher's license.

But the private schools have managed, so far, to keep some degree of individuality, an aura of difference, a nonconformity about them. As a rule, they offer a chance for better learning from better text books taught by better teachers. They offer a wider choice of studies and, in the case of parochial schools at least, some moral training. And that is one thing they can't get in the government schools.

If I had to choose for my kids between education (training) without moral teaching and moral teaching without education (training), I would unhesitatingly choose the latter. I have used ("training") in parentheses to indicate that government education is really more a matter of training than of true education.

Education without moral training breeds delinquents, whereas moral training without education breeds honest and upright citizens who are fully capable of educating themselves, as many have done.

So, before we allow our governor and the state legislature, not to mention LBJ and his grandiose plans, to tax us to death in the holy name of "education," let us pause and consider wither our "leading educators" are leading us.

Nation's Press

A Powerful Idea

From The Richmond (VA.) News Leader

The Foundation for Economic Education is one of those grisly specters of the Right that have been conjured up in recent weeks by assorted necromancers of fear. FEE, as it is called, is one of those radical groups that are opposed to socialism, even democratic socialism.

The fear of FEE is justified, because FEE believes in one powerful idea. It believes that men ought to be free to make their own economic decisions. It believes that the regimentation of the planned economy is degrading and inefficient. It believes that the most productive and hence most humanitarian economic system is the free-market.

Just how powerful this idea can be is revealed in a Fortune magazine article, "When Executives Turned Revolutionaries." Fortune explains that the Brazilian revolt against President Goulart last March—the revolt which saved Brazil from a Communist dictatorship — was organized because one man had been inspired by materials from FEE.

The important thing is that FEE had no knowledge of the impending revolution, and no part in the planning. About 14 years ago, FEE'S president, Leonard E. Read, had a chance luncheon with a Sao Paulo businessman, Paulo Ayres Filho. The Brazilian was impressed by FEE's economic theory, and began to translate and distribute the foundation's publications in his own country. At this time, Brazil was going off on its mad inflationary spiral. Whom the gods would destroy, they first make mad, said the Greeks. And in Brazil, a whole coterie of Communists was pushing Brazil into an insane economy.

While these groups were urging ever-increasing nationalizing and centralization of planning and control, Ayres was organizing the Brazilian Institute of Social Research and Studies. The institute's belief in a free economy ran into hard opposition not only from outright Communists, but also from students, intellectuals, and from the inefficient and cartelized businessmen who wanted to control the economy to suit their own interests. By 1962, however, the institute spawned a whole group of anticommunist action organizations, organized into small chapters in each city, and ready to do battle at elections, meetings and rallies.

By early March of this year word was received that the Communists were about to take over the government either by making Goulart a puppet or by removing him entirely. Ayres' group of businessmen was ready. When Goulart bowed down to leftist elements during the sailors' strike the military became alarmed and the revolt began.

In the aftermath the problems are still economic. Inflation has ruined savings and made the interest on loans fantastic. Inventories have been overbought as a hedge against rising prices. But fiscal sanity and freedom are worth the price to be paid.

A decade ago the ideas promoted by FEE sounded reactionary even radical in Brazil. Paulo Ayres must have thought he was fighting a losing battle opposed as he was by big businessmen liberal intellectuals and Communists. His methods must have appeared antidemocratic and antisocialist. But now both Americans and Brazilians are thankful that he was moved by a powerful idea.

Question Box

Question No. 640: "Since you call your newspaper a 'Freedom Newspaper' what do you understand freedom and-or liberty to mean?"

Answer: Freedom to our mind is something which we have never had and probably never will have, even if the Declaration of Independence says we are endowed with life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. We have never had liberty. One is endowed with the moral right to attain more liberty and freedom and to keep it.

The best summary we have of what we mean by freedom and-or liberty is that a man is only free when he has 100 per cent control of his life and all he has acquired through voluntary means and 0 per cent control of what others have acquired through voluntary means.

Our idea that we have never had freedom or liberty is pretty well summarized by John W. Burgess' "Reconciliation of Government With Liberty." He contended that after we had freed the slaves up until we passed the graduated income tax we more nearly reconciled liberty with government than any other time in our history or more nearly than it was ever reconciled by any other nation.

Freedom is an ideal image that we want to strive for. It isn't an end in itself, because only to the degree that we have freedom and liberty, to that degree can man develop spiritually and mentally and preserve his life.

To that degree he can approach the joy of living.

Questions are limited to general human relations, questions that will improve the well being of all mankind on this earth.

The Knolls

By BUTLER D. SHAFFER

Just south of the city of Lincoln, Nebraska, is a residential development known as the Knolls. It was begun some 10 to 12 years ago, and has catered to persons interested in building more expensive homes. Each lot contains one acre of ground, and there are presently some 70 to 80 lots. At the present time, there are 20 homes in The Knolls, with construction costs for each ranging from about $50,000 to some that cost around $200,000. Assuming that the average home cost around $100,000, twenty homes would mean a total value of approximately $2 million for these homes. In addition, there is a restaurant and privately owned golf course in this development. With all this valuable property, one would imagine that the "city fathers" are quite anxious to bring The Knolls into the city, so as to have the benefit of added tax revenues. Well, they are!

Normally, when one thinks of extending the city limits into an outlying region, it is because the adjacent area is getting all the benefits of the city government's so-called "services." How does this argument stand up in this case.

As far as police protection is concerned, The Knolls has the services of the county sheriff's patrol which, by the way, makes its rounds through this area far more often than the city police would ever be seen in a residential section of town. For fire protection, The Knolls has contracted with a rural fire district which, for an annual fee, will provide such service. Again, it should be noted that the rural fire station is closer to The Knolls than any city station.

When it comes to electrical power, the city of Lincoln is served by one public power district, while The Knolls is serviced by a different rural power district. The Knolls has its own private water supply and sanitary sewer system. It is located in a rural school district, with the school building about three-quarters of a mile away, and not the Lincoln public school district, whose schools are at least a mile and a half from The Knolls.

Another interesting feature of this area is that the man who developed it put in his own roads, which comprise about one and a half miles of asphalt streets. He put in his own street lighting system, as well, charging the cost of both off against the price of the lots. Most people would argue that we must have some form of government if, for no other reason, than the building of streets. "After all," these people maintain, "how can private enterprise build streets." And yet the developer of The Knolls did. Why? He found that people were more inclined to build a house on one of his lots if there was a street in front of it, than if they had to walk through a mile of cornfields to get to their home.

While the county department of roads clears the streets of snow in the winter-time, there is one man who lives in The Knolls who has his own snowplow, and makes his services available for snow removal for a fee.

Now that the city of Lincoln is trying, desperately, to bring The Knolls into the city limits — and by the way, there is one mile of nothing but corn-fields between the present city limits and The Knolls, which shows you how anxious the city is for all that tax money. The residents of this development are arguing, "Why should we pay taxes to the City of Lincoln for 'services' which we are either providing ourselves, or which we are getting from some source other than the City of Lincoln?"

In answer to the city's claim that "we only want to provide police protection for The Knolls," the developer, who also owns the golf course, stated: "All you really want is to come out here and burden us with your taxes so that you will have more money available to go out and build city-owned golf courses to compete with my private enterprise course."

The issue could not have been stated much more clearly, and points out just how far government will stretch its case in order to get more people to coerce and more property to steal.

Computers Aid In Predicting Of Crimes

By RUTH ABAT

NEW YORK (NEA) — Quietly, a patrol car turns into a street off a busy avenue and parks at the curb. Shortly afterward, three men head down the avenue in a late modern sedan. They stop just before reaching a liquor store and two hurry inside to rob the proprietor.

From the opposite end of the block, a dilapidated convertible with two plainclothes detectives moves slowly toward the getaway car. Inside the store, the thugs lock the owner and a customer in the back room, and raid the cash register.

Minutes later, the plainclothesmen in the convertible hold the driver at gunpoint while the patrolmen seize the robbers inside.

It sounds like a classic piece of law enforcement—but there is a difference. The crime had been predicted by the policeman's speediest partner, an electronic computer.

Criminal data processing spans a broad field ranging from a punched card machine was invented at the end of the 19th century, only recently have police departments found special applications for their problems.

The police can quickly forecast a robbery by checking a deck of punched cards documenting criminal operating methods, including times and locations of previous offenses.

Throughout the United States today, advances in data processing and availability of equipment help an increasing number of cities to foresee crime, get rapid - fire criminal identification and co - ordinate traffic violations with payment of fines.

Computer crime reports in the metropolitan areas, Chicago and New York in particular, free policemen from time-consuming paper work for more active duty in investigating, making arrests and covering beats. New York's "crime index" tells the exact location of every crime on every beat in every precinct.

In Chicago, an IBM 1401 computer analyzes criminals' methods of operation and isolates potential trouble spots. For example, administrators coming to work Tuesday morning get a daily report of 5,000 calls for service occuring from midnight Sunday through midnight Monday. The statistics pinpoint areas where more patrolmen are needed to stop crime before it starts.

How does data processing help identify criminals? Say that in Los Angeles, Calif., a person about 6 feet tall, wearing an Army surplus jacket and leather sandals, heists a liquor store.

If the victim notifies the authorities right away, a list of suspects can be in a detective's hands within seconds after the call. Under the old system, the procedure took anywhere from minutes to days, depending on the nature of the case.

Modern data processing's speed makes it possible for a detective, working from a computer-produced suspect list, to be en route to question the actual robber before he gets home with the cash.

Major police departments from Fort Worth, Tex., to New York are currently transferring their massive files of fingerprint sets to magnetic tapes for computer use. When New York completes its enormous job of converting more than 4 million sets onto the tapes, it will be able to examine all of them, if necessary, by computer within 24 hours. The chore would take two men a century to perform by hand.

Since the cards are now filed 75,000 to a cabinet, the reels of tape also represent a saving of space. A half dozen, each slightly smaller than a movie reel, can hold all the information. Michael J. Murphy, commissioner of police, calls the department's IBM 1401 "the most valuable tool of law enforcement in years."

Data processing acts as an auxiliary policeman in Hartford, Conn., when a cop gives a ticket. When he tags the violator, the original of the three-part ticket goes to be keypunched and put on magnetic tape for computer.

Each week, a regular check determines whether the ticket has been paid. If not, the system automatically produces a delinquent notice for the violator. Finally, he receives a court summons.

Proof of the system's effectiveness lies in a recent Hartford report. Records show 80 per cent collections, a 30 per cent increase over tickets previously paid before arriving at the summons level. Revenues rose significantly, too. The number of tickets issued in two years used for comparison, 1960 and 1962, remained about the same. But in 1962, the city netted $300,000, an increase of $80,000 over the 1960 figures.

Because of its increasing effectiveness in crime prediction, criminal identification and crackdown on scofflaws, data processing plays an ever-broadening role as the policeman's speediest partner.

This means that the successful criminals of tomorrow will have to add a legitimate specialty to their dubious assets: they'll need to be data processing experts, too.

Bliss Doubtful About Quick GOP Reorganization

CHICAGO (AP) — Ray C. Bliss, who is due to take over as Republican national chairman April 1, says he is concerned over apparent expectations for a quick reorganization of GOP forces battered by last November's Democratic landslide.

Before coming to Chicago Wednesday night for a two-day meeting of Republican leaders, Bliss told newsmen in Columbus, "This thing may have been oversold. They may expect miracles after April first."

Bliss, 57, Ohio Republican chairman, is virtually certain to receive official appointment as national chairman during the Chicago meeting.

The election of a new chairman to succeed Dean Burch is expected at the first session of the national committee Friday, at which Burch is expected to submit his resignation.

Burch and Barry Goldwater, the unsuccessful GOP presidential nominee, announced last week that Burch would resign and that Bliss would be named to the post. Goldwater had said that Burch could not command "a clear working mandate" from the committee.

On his arrival in Chicago Burch told newsmen the meeting of the party leaders was a call for unification. He said Republican leaders can unify the party if they "quit jousting with windmills."

Burch, Bliss and Goldwater were among the first of the party leaders to arrive for the sessions. Goldwater's running mate in the November election, William E. Miller, and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, were expected today. Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said he will not attend the meetings which open today with workshops and sessions.

Burch called for a "strong, united and dynamic party."

Computers Aid In Predicting Of Crimes

By RUTH ABAT

NEW YORK (NEA) — Quietly, a patrol car turns into a street off a busy avenue and parks at the curb. Shortly afterward, three men head down the avenue in a late modern sedan. They stop just before reaching a liquor store and two hurry inside to rob the proprietor.

From the opposite end of the block, a dilapidated convertible with two plainclothes detectives moves slowly toward the getaway car. Inside the store, the thugs lock the owner and a customer in the back room, and raid the cash register.

Minutes later, the plainclothesmen in the convertible hold the driver at gunpoint while the patrolmen seize the robbers inside.

It sounds like a classic piece of law enforcement—but there is a difference. The crime had been predicted by the policeman's speediest partner, an electronic computer.

Criminal data processing spans a broad field ranging from a punched card machine was invented at the end of the 19th century, only recently have police departments found special applications for their problems.

The police can quickly forecast a robbery by checking a deck of punched cards documenting criminal operating methods, including times and locations of previous offenses.

Throughout the United States today, advances in data processing and availability of equipment help an increasing number of cities to foresee crime, get rapid - fire criminal identification and co - ordinate traffic violations with payment of fines.

Computer crime reports in the metropolitan areas, Chicago and New York in particular, free policemen from time-consuming paper work for more active duty in investigating, making arrests and covering beats. New York's "crime index" tells the exact location of every crime on every beat in every precinct.

In Chicago, an IBM 1401 computer analyzes criminals' methods of operation and isolates potential trouble spots. For example, administrators coming to work Tuesday morning get a daily report of 5,000 calls for service occuring from midnight Sunday through midnight Monday. The statistics pinpoint areas where more patrolmen are needed to stop crime before it starts.

How does data processing help identify criminals? Say that in Los Angeles, Calif., a gunman about 6 feet tall, wearing an Army surplus jacket and leather sandals, heists a liquor store.

If the victim notifies the authorities right away, a list of suspects can be in a detective's hands within seconds after the call. Under the old system, the procedure took anywhere from minutes to days, depending on the nature of the case.

Modern data processing's speed makes it possible for a detective, working from a computer-produced suspect list, to be en route to question the actual robber before he gets home with the cash.

Major police departments from Fort Worth, Tex., to New York are currently transferring their massive files of fingerprint sets to magnetic tapes for computer use. When New York completes its enormous job of converting more than 4 million sets onto the tapes, it will be able to examine all of them, if necessary, by computer within 24 hours. The chore would take two men a century to perform by hand.

Since the cards are now filed 75,000 to a cabinet, the reels of tape also represent a saving of space. A half dozen, each slightly smaller than a movie reel, can hold all the information. Michael J. Murphy, commissioner of police, calls the department's IBM 1401 "the most valuable tool of law enforcement in years."

Data processing acts as an auxiliary policeman in Hartford, Conn., when a cop gives a ticket. When he tags the violator, the original of the three-part ticket goes to be keypunched and put on magnetic tape for computer.

Each week, a regular check determines whether the ticket has been paid. If not, the system automatically produces a delinquent notice for the violator. Finally, he receives a court summons.

Proof of the system's effectiveness lies in a recent Hartford report. Records show 80 per cent collections, a 30 per cent increase over tickets previously paid before arriving at the summons level. Revenues rose significantly, too. The number of tickets issued in two years used for comparison, 1960 and 1962, remained about the same. But in 1962, the city netted $300,000, an increase of $80,000 over the 1960 figures.

Because of its increasing effectiveness in crime prediction, criminal identification and crackdown on scofflaws, data processing plays an ever-broadening role as the policeman's speediest partner.

This means that the successful criminals of tomorrow will have to add a legitimate specialty to their dubious assets: they'll need to be data processing experts, too.

Bliss Doubtful About Quick GOP Reorganization

CHICAGO (AP) — Ray C. Bliss, who is due to take over as Republican national chairman April 1, says he is concerned over apparent expectations for a quick reorganization of GOP forces battered by last November's Democratic landslide.

Before coming to Chicago Wednesday night for a two-day meeting of Republican leaders, Bliss told newsmen in Columbus, "This thing may have been oversold. They may expect miracles after April first."

Bliss, 57, Ohio Republican chairman, is virtually certain to receive official appointment as national chairman during the Chicago meeting.

The election of a new chairman to succeed Dean Burch is expected at the first session of the national committee Friday, at which Burch is expected to submit his resignation.

Burch and Barry Goldwater, the unsuccessful GOP presidential nominee, announced last week that Burch would resign and that Bliss would be named to the post. Goldwater had said that Burch could not command "a clear working mandate" from the committee.

On his arrival in Chicago Burch told newsmen the meeting of the party leaders was a call for unification. He said Republican leaders can unify the party if they "quit jousting with windmills."

Burch, Bliss and Goldwater were among the first of the party leaders to arrive for the sessions. Goldwater's running mate in the November election, William E. Miller, and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, were expected today. Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said he will not attend the meetings which open today with workshops and committees.

Burch called for a "strong, united and dynamic party."

Copies of Proposed Law On Gas Trucks Available

Copies of a proposed ordinance for regulation of the delivery of gasoline by transport trucks in the city will be available Friday in the City Clerk's office. City Attorney Frederick T. Henry said the ordinance came up for consideration by the City Council Tuesday morning.

The city's earlier attempts to limit the loads of transport trucks to 2,500 gallons were rejected by the County Court.

Some truckers and gasoline companies opposed the restrictions. An attorney for some of them, Donald LaMora, said at the last Councii meeting that these interests were interested in any move by the city to try new regulations.

Henry was instructed by council at its last meeting to draft such an ordinance, after conferences with the city manager, fire chief and those interested in gasoline transport business.

Such a conference was held Monday afternoon in the Little Theatre of the City Auditorium. Some of the points discussed included:

— Hours of unloading, station attendant on duty.

—Number of stops for the unloading of transport loads exceeding 2,200 gallons of gasoline.

— Requirement that transports be entirely on service station premises while unloading.

— Length of discharge hose.

— Traffic regulations pertaining to lack of maneuverability of large transport trucks.

—Designation of permissable routes.

— Prohibition of the use of trailers.

City Manager John M. Biery said the city's main concern in the new ordinance was "safety."

Home Builders Get One-Stop Shop Service

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Few people would think of LeRoy, N.Y.; Romeo, Mich.; Farmer City, Ill., or Forest Junction, Wis., as centers of big business. Yet these towns are part of a national, expanding building supply and home modernization business with current sales exceeding $125 million a year.

On arterial routes near each of these towns is a huge lumber building supply and home modernization center designed to cater to home building contractors and do-it-yourself home owners. Strategically located to serve urban, suburban and rural markets, they make one-stop shopping a reality for the builder. Each center carries everything needed to build a house, except masonry —about 3,000 items in lumber products, plumbing, heating, electrical and building hardware supplies.

The concept was developed by the Lumber and Building Supply Division of Wickes Corp., Saginaw, Mich., in 1952 when it opened the initial center in Portage, Mich., and eliminated several links from the old-fashioned distribution chain. For the first time, supermarket merchandising techniques were applied to the building supply business — buy in volume, sell direct to the customer.

So successful was the concept, Wickes has expanded to operate 50 such lumber and building supply centers in 16 states, with others planned. Customers in 1964 purchased enough materials to build a city of nearly 30,000 homes.

The centers are located on 10 to 30-acre sites, on well-traveled routes linking urban, suburban and rural areas. The Selkirk, N.Y. center, for instance, serves the Albany, Schenectady, Troy market and the Romoe, Mich., unit serves the Pontiac, Port Huron and northern Detroit suburbs.

Each center has a rail siding so that most products can be purchased in carload lots or shipped in by truck. Customers walk from a parking lot directly into a showroom in the front of the building. Rear and side areas of the center are warehouses. Salesmen show customers directly to products and offer consultation and advice on all home building and modernization projects.

Each center tailors is precut line to fit the needs and preferences of its market area. The demands in California, for instance, are not the same as those in Pennsylvania which, in turn, are quite different from those in Wisconsin.

For the contractor, building up to 50 homes a year, Wickes said, the supermarket concept is a great advantage because he can purchase all his requirements, except masonry, from a single source at prices lower than he would pay when buying lumber in one place, plumbing in another, heating and electrical supplies in still another.

Postal Carrier Center to Be Established

A. J. Onufrock, assistant postmaster at the Colorado Springs Post Office, announces that a carrier center will be established at 13 W. Vermijo Ave. for the purpose of sorting and distributing mail by carriers formerly assigned at 527 S. Tejon and certain carriers from the Parcel Post Annex.

Bids for the moving on February 7 of furniture, distribution cases and all supplies as designated by the Postmaster will be received up to 12 noon on January 30.

Prospective bidders are urged to inspect the premises at 527 S. Tejon, at the Parcel Post Annex, and at 13 W. Vermijo to become familiar with the items to be moved.

Certain items will also be moved from the Main Office to the Parcel Post Annex in order to increase the working space at the Main Office.

Interested bidders may secure additional information from Mr. Onufrock at Room 104, Main Post Office.

Japan to Sell Vinyl Plant to Red China

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese government brushed aside Nationalist Chinese objections today and agreed to the sale of a multimillion-dollar vinylon plant to Communist China.

Plans for the sale severely strained relations between Japan and Nationalist China last year. Japan maintains diplomtic relations with Nationalist China but allows its businessmen to trade with the Communists.

Yoshio Sakurauchi, minister of international trade and industry, told newsmen the Nichibo Company would ship the $30-million plant to Red China soon.

New Wallpaper With Texture Is Introduced

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wallpaper can create effects of texture and design in a room that paint can't equal.

If properly installed and cared for, wallpaper generally will last from seven to 10 years. The newer plastic coated or impregnated papers may be washed frequently and scrubbed with soaps and cleaning solutions.

Wallpaper can be a do-it-yourself job following these rules of the United Wallpaper Co.

To measure how much paper you need, figure a single roll contains about 36 square feet. You obtain four to six whole strips from each bolt, depending on the height of the ceiling.

Measure the length around the room in feet, then multiply by the height from the baseboard to the ceiling. Divide this figure by 30 to get the number of single rolls. Using the figure 30 square feet instead of 36 allows for normal waste in matching. Then deduct one roll for every two openings in the room such as windows, doors and fireplace.

For instance, if a room measures 12 feet wide, 15 feet long and eight feet high and has two windows and doors, the distance around the room (perimeter) is 54 feet by eight feet, or 432 square feet. Divided by 30, this equals 14½ rolls of wallpaper needed. Deduct two rolls for the four openings and you need 12 single rolls.

The tools needed for the job depend upon the type of paper hung. You won't need paste if you have a pre-pasted paper. Otherwise, you will need paste, paste brush, scissors, sponge, smoothing brush (optional) and yardstick. Many dealers carry inexpensive outfits or will rent or loan equipment.

To prepare walls for application, make sure they are free from grease and dirt. You can paper over old wallpaper if it fits the wall tightly. Strip away all loose wallpaper and sand edges smooth.

You must sandpaper gloss surface paint and apply dealer's recommended glue sizing to all painted walls, new plaster or porous walls.

Use a paint prime coat on masonite, hard board, or dry wall, then glue size.

A good starting point is generally a door frame. Measure the height of the wall from ceiling to baseboard and cut a strip four inches longer than the actual height.

Cut second strip the same length, making certain the left edge matches the right edge of the first strip and that the pattern, if any, matches.

Use a weighted string or carpenter's level to insure a true plumb and draw a vertical line (approximately one inch less than the width of the paper) to the right of your starting point using a yardstick and pencil.

To apply paper to wall, release the top half of the pasted sheet and align the right edge with the penciled plumb line.

Smooth the surface of the paper with a damp sponge or smoothing brush. Don't be afraid to press or brush firmly to secure paper to the wall. Slide the wallpaper, if necessary, to the correct position.

Unfold the bottom of a pasted sheet and continue the process of smoothing to the wall. Use a wallpaper seam roller or a clean plastic furniture caster to roll the edge for a secure bond.

Wash the whole sheet with a wet (not damp) sponge to remove possible dirt marks and paste residue.

Trim excess paper at ceiling and baseboard with scissors or single edge razor.

Continue with the next strip, matching the left edge of the sheet to the paper now on the wall.

Make diagonal slits at corners of door frame or windowframes. Push paper firmly against casing and trim excess.

Firefighter Fails To Put Out Well Fire

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Valiant efforts by the ace Texan oil well firefighter, Paul "Red" Adair, have so far been unsuccessful against a giant well fire which broke out in Kuwait Jan. 2.

A traveler from Kuwait said the blaze is 200 feet high and "at night it illuminates a five-mile radius so intensely that cars can travel without lights."

The area around the well, jointly owned by British Petroleum and the Gulf Oil Co., has been flooded with 10 million gallons of water to protect nearby installations.

Divided by 30, this equals 14½ rolls of wallpaper needed. Deduct two rolls for the four openings and you need 12 single rolls.

The tools needed for the job depend upon the type of paper hung. You won't need paste if you have a pre-pasted paper. Otherwise, you will need paste, paste brush, scissors, sponge, smoothing brush (optional) and yardstick. Many dealers carry inexpensive outfits or will rent or loan equipment.

To prepare walls for application, make sure they are free from grease and dirt. You can paper over old wallpaper if it fits the wall tightly. Strip away all loose wallpaper and sand edges smooth.

You must sandpaper gloss surface paint and apply dealer's recommended glue sizing to all painted walls, new plaster or porous walls.

Use a paint prime coat on masonite, hard board, or dry wall, then glue size.

A good starting point is generally a door frame. Measure the height of the wall from ceiling to baseboard and cut a strip four inches longer than the actual height.

Cut second strip the same length, making certain the left edge matches the right edge of the first strip and that the pattern, if any, matches.

Use a weighted string or carpenter's level to insure a true plumb and draw a vertical line (approximately one inch less than the width of the paper) to the right of your starting point using a yardstick and pencil.

To apply paper to wall, release the top half of the pasted sheet and align the right edge with the penciled plumb line.

Smooth the surface of the paper with a damp sponge or smoothing brush. Don't be afraid to press or brush firmly to secure paper to the wall. Slide the wallpaper, if necessary, to the correct position.

Unfold the bottom of a pasted sheet and continue the process of smoothing to the wall. Use a wallpaper seam roller or a clean plastic furniture caster to roll the edge for a secure bond.

Wash the whole sheet with a wet (not damp) sponge to remove possible dirt marks and paste residue.

Trim excess paper at ceiling and baseboard with scissors or single edge razor.

Continue with the next strip, matching the left edge of the sheet to the paper now on the wall.

Make diagonal slits at corners of door frame or windowframes. Push paper firmly against casing and trim excess.

Home Builders Get One-Stop Shop Service

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Few people would think of LeRoy, N.Y.; Romeo, Mich.; Farmer City, Ill., or Forest Junction, Wis., as centers of big business. Yet these towns are part of a national, expanding building supply and home modernization business with current sales exceeding $125 million a year.

On arterial routes near each of these towns is a huge lumber building supply and home modernization center designed to cater to home building contractors and do-it-yourself home owners. Strategically located to serve urban, suburban and rural markets, they make one-stop shopping a reality for the builder. Each center carries everything needed to build a house, except masonry —about 3,000 items in lumber products, plumbing, heating, electrical and building hardware supplies.

The concept was developed by the Lumber and Building Supply Division of Wickes Corp., Saginaw, Mich., in 1952 when it opened the initial center in Portage, Mich., and eliminated several links from the old-fashioned distribution chain. For the first time, supermarket merchandising techniques were applied to the building supply business — buy in volume, sell direct to the customer.

So successful was the concept, Wickes has expanded to operate 50 such lumber and building supply centers in 16 states, with others planned. Customers in 1964 purchased enough materials to build a city of nearly 30,000 homes.

The centers are located on 10 to 30-acre sites, on well-traveled routes linking urban, suburban and rural areas. The Selkirk, N.Y. center, for instance, serves the Albany, Schenectady, Troy market and the Romoe, Mich., unit serves the Pontiac, Port Huron and northern Detroit suburbs.

Each center has a rail siding so that most products can be purchased in carload lots or shipped in by truck. Customers walk from a parking lot directly into a showroom in the front of the building. Rear and side areas of the center are warehouses. Salesmen show customers directly to products and offer consultation and advice on all home building and modernization projects.

Each center tailors is precut line to fit the needs and preferences of its market area. The demands in California, for instance, are not the same as those in Pennsylvania which, in turn, are quite different from those in Wisconsin.

For the contractor, building up to 50 homes a year, Wickes said, the supermarket concept is a great advantage because he can purchase all his requirements, except masonry, from a single source at prices lower than he would pay when buying lumber in one place, plumbing in another, heating and electrical supplies in still another.

Firefighter Fails To Put Out Well Fire

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Valiant efforts by the ace Texan oil well firefighter, Paul "Red" Adair, have so far been unsuccessful against a giant well fire which broke out in Kuwait Jan. 3.

A traveler from Kuwait said the blaze is 200 feet high and "at night it illuminates a five-mile radius so intensely that cars can travel without lights."

The area around the well, jointly owned by British Petroleum and the Gulf Oil Co., has been flooded with 10 million gallons of water to protect supply installations.

MAULED BY LEOPARD — Linda Lee Barnum, 21, recovers from an attack by a 175-pound Asian Spotted leopard named Rajah in Las Vegas, Nev. Hospital spokesmen said more than 100 stitches were needed to close teeth and claw wounds. Rajah was inside a station wagon while his owner, Mrs. Maria Dokolas, attended a party. Linda and other guests were looking at the animal when it slipped through a partially open door and attacked her. (AP Wirephoto)

Computers Aid In Predicting Of Crimes

By RUTH ABAT

NEW YORK (NEA) — Quietly, a patrol car turns into a street off a busy avenue and parks at the curb. Shortly afterward, three men head down the avenue in a late modern sedan. They stop just before reaching a liquor store and two hurry inside to rob the proprietor.

From the opposite end of the block, a dilapidated convertible with two plainclothes detectives moves slowly toward the getaway car. Inside the store, the thugs lock the owner and a customer in the back room, and raid the cash register.

Minutes later, the plainclothesmen in the convertible hold the driver at gunpoint while the patrolmen seize the robbers inside.

It sounds like a classic piece of law enforcement—but there is a difference. The crime had been predicted by the policeman's speediest partner, an electronic computer.

Criminal data processing spans a broad field ranging from a punched card machine was invented at the end of the 19th century, only recently have police departments found special applications for their problems.

The police can quickly forecast a robbery by checking a deck of punched cards documenting criminal operating methods, including times and locations of previous offenses.

Throughout the United States today, advances in data processing and availability of equipment help an increasing number of cities to foresee crime, get rapid - fire criminal identification and co - ordinate traffic violations with payment of fines.

Computer crime reports in the metropolitan areas, Chicago and New York in particular, free policemen from time-consuming paper work for more active duty in investigating, making arrests and covering beats. New York's "crime index" tells the exact location of every crime on every beat in every precinct.

In Chicago, an IBM 1401 computer analyzes criminals' methods of operation and isolates potential trouble spots. For example, administrators coming to work Tuesday morning get a daily report of 5,000 calls for service occuring from midnight Sunday through midnight Monday. The statistics pinpoint areas where more patrolmen are needed to stop crime before it starts.

How does data processing help identify criminals? Say [illegible] in Los Angeles, Calif., a [illegible] about 6 feet tall, wearing an Army surplus jacket [illegible] and leather sandals, heists a liquor store.

If the victim notifies the authorities right away, a list of suspects can be in a detective's hands within seconds after the call. Under the old system, the procedure took anywhere from minutes to days, depending on the nature of the case.

Modern data processing's speed makes it possible for a detective, working from a computer-produced suspect list, to be en route to question the actual robber before he gets home with the cash.

Major police departments from Fort Worth, Tex., to New York are currently transferring their massive files of fingerprint sets to magnetic tapes for computer use. When New York completes its enormous job of converting more than 4 million sets onto the tapes, it will be able to examine all of them, if necessary, by computer within 24 hours. The chore would take two men a century to perform by hand.

Since the cards are now filed 75,000 to a cabinet, the reels of tape also represent a saving of space. A half dozen, each slightly smaller than a movie reel, can hold all the information. Michael J. Murphy, commissioner of police, calls the department's IBM 1401 "the most valuable tool of law enforcement in years."

Data processing acts as an auxiliary policeman in Hartford, Conn., when a cop gives a ticket. When he tags the violator, the original of the three-part ticket goes to be keypunched and put on magnetic tape for computer.

Each week, a regular check determines whether the ticket has been paid. If not, the system automatically produces a delinquent notice for the violator. Finally, he receives a court summons.

Proof of the system's effectiveness lies in a recent Hartford report. Records show 80 per cent collections, a 30 per cent increase over tickets previously paid before arriving at the summons level. Revenues rose significantly, too. The number of tickets issued in two years used for comparison, 1960 and 1962, remained about the same. But in 1962, the city netted $300,000, an increase of $80,000 over the 1960 figures.

Because of its increasing effectiveness in crime prediction, criminal identification and crackdown on scofflaws, data processing plays an ever-broadening role as the policeman's speediest partner.

This means that the successful criminals of tomorrow will have to add a legitimate specialty to their dubious assets: they'll need to be data processing experts, too.

Bliss Doubtful About Quick GOP Reorganization

CHICAGO (AP) — Ray C. Bliss, who is due to take over as Republican national chairman April 1, says he is concerned over apparent expectations for a quick reorganization of GOP forces battered by last November's Democratic landslide.

Before coming to Chicago Wednesday night for a two-day meeting of Republican leaders, Bliss told newsmen in Columbus, "This thing may have been oversold. They may expect miracles after April first."

Bliss, 57, Ohio Republican chairman, is virtually certain to receive official appointment as national chairman during the Chicago meeting.

The election of a new chairman to succeed Dean Burch is expected at the first session of the national committee Friday, at which Burch is expected to submit his resignation.

Burch and Barry Goldwater, the unsuccessful GOP presidential nominee, announced last week that Burch would resign and that Bliss would be named to the post. Goldwater had said that Burch could not command "a clear working mandate" from the committee.

On his arrival in Chicago Burch told newsmen the meeting of the party leaders was a call for unification. He said Republican leaders can unify the party if they "quit jousting with windmills."

Burch, Bliss and Goldwater were among the first of the party leaders to arrive for the sessions. Goldwater's running mate in the November election, William E. Miller, and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, were expected today. Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said he will not attend the meetings which open today with workshops and caucuses.

Burch called for a "strong, united and dynamic party."

Copies of Proposed Law On Gas Trucks Available

Copies of a proposed ordinance for regulation of the delivery of gasoline by transport trucks in the city will be available Friday in the City Clerk's office. City Attorney Frederick T. Henry said the ordinance came up for consideration by the City Council Tuesday morning.

The city's earlier attempts to limit the loads of transport trucks to 2,500 gallons were rejected by the County Court.

Some truckers and gasoline companies opposed the restrictions. An attorney for some of them, Donald LaMora, said at the last Council meeting that these interests were interested in any move by the city to try new regulations.

Henry was instructed by council at its last meeting to draft such an ordinance, after conferences with the city manager, fire chief and those interested in gasoline transport business.

Such a conference was held Monday afternoon in the Little Theatre of the City Auditorium. Some of the points discussed included:

— Hours of unloading, station attendant on duty.

—Number of stops for the unloading of transport loads exceeding 2,200 gallons of gasoline.

— Requirement that transports be entirely on service station premises while unloading.

— Length of discharge hose.

— Traffic regulations pertaining to lack of maneuverability of large transport trucks.

—Designation of permissable routes.

— Prohibition of the use of trailers.

City Manager John M. Biery said the city's main concern in the new ordinance was "safety."

Postal Carrier Center to Be Established

A. J. Onufrock, assistant postmaster at the Colorado Springs Post Office, announces that a carrier center will be established at 13 W. Vermijo Ave. for the purpose of sorting and distributing mail by carriers formerly assigned at 527 S. Tejon and certain carriers from the Parcel Post Annex.

Bids for the moving on February 7 of furniture, distribution cases and all supplies as designated by the Postmaster will be received up to 12 noon on January 30.

Prospective bidders are urged to inspect the premises at 527 S. Tejon, at the Parcel Post Annex, and at 13 W. Vermijo to become familiar with the items to be moved.

Certain items will also be moved from the Main Office to the Parcel Post Annex in order to increase the working space at the Main Office.

Interested bidders may secure additional information from Mr. Onufrock at Room 104, Main Post Office.

Japan to Sell Vinyl Plant to Red China

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese government brushed aside Nationalist Chinese objections today and agreed to the sale of a multimillion-dollar vinylon plant to Communist China.

Plans for the sale severely strained relations between Japan and Nationalist China last year. Japan maintains diplomtic relations with Nationalist China but allows its businessmen to trade with the Communists.

Yoshio Sakurauchi, minister of international trade and industry, told newsmen the Nichibo Company would ship the $35-million plant to Red China soon.

Home Builders Get One-Stop Shop Service

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Few people would think of LeRoy, N.Y.; Romeo, Mich.; Farmer City, Ill., or Forest Junction, Wis., as centers of big business. Yet these towns are part of a national, expanding building supply and home modernization business with current sales exceeding $125 million a year.

On arterial routes near each of these towns is a huge lumber building supply and home modernization center designed to cater to home building contractors and do-it-yourself home owners. Strategically located to serve urban, suburban and rural markets, they make one-stop shopping a reality for the builder. Each center carries everything needed to build a house, except masonry —about 3,000 items in lumber products, plumbing, heating, electrical and building hardware supplies.

The concept was developed by the Lumber and Building Supply Division of Wickes Corp., Saginaw, Mich., in 1952 when it opened the initial center in Portage, Mich., and eliminated several links from the old-fashioned distribution chain. For the first time, supermarket merchandising techniques were applied to the building supply business — buy in volume, sell direct to the customer.

So successful was the concept, Wickes has expanded to operate 50 such lumber and building supply centers in 16 states, with others planned. Customers in 1964 purchased enough materials to build a city of nearly 30,000 homes.

The centers are located on 10 to 30-acre sites, on well-traveled routes linking urban, suburban and rural areas. The Selkirk, N.Y. center, for instance, serves the Albany, Schenectady, Troy market and the Romoe, Mich., unit serves the Pontiac, Port Huron and northern Detroit suburbs.

Each center has a rail siding so that most products can be purchased in carload lots or shipped in by truck. Customers walk from a parking lot directly into a showroom in the front of the building. Rear and side areas of the center are warehouses. Salesmen show customers directly to products and offer consultation and advice on all home building and modernization projects.

Each center tailors is precut line to fit the needs and preferences of its market area. The demands in California, for instance, are not the same as those in Pennsylvania which, in turn, are quite different from those in Wisconsin.

For the contractor, building up to 50 homes a year, Wickes said, the supermarket concept is a great advantage because he can purchase all his requirements, except masonry, from a single source at prices lower than he would pay when buying lumber in one piece, plumbing in another, heating and electrical supplies in still another.

New Wallpaper With Texture Is Introduced

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wallpaper can create effects of texture and design in a room that paint can't equal.

If properly installed and cared for, wallpaper generally will last from seven to 10 years. The newer plastic coated or impregnated papers may be washed frequently and scrubbed with soaps and cleaning solutions.

Wallpaper can be a do-it-yourself job following these rules of the United Wallpaper Co.

To measure how much paper you need, figure a single roll contains about 36 square feet. You obtain four to six whole strips from each bolt, depending on the height of the ceiling.

Measure the length around the room in feet, then multiply by the height from the baseboard to the ceiling. Divide this figure by 30 to get the number of single rolls. Using the figure 30 square feet instead of 36 allows for normal waste in matching. Then deduct one roll for every two openings in the room such as windows, doors and fireplace.

For instance, if a room measures 12 feet wide, 15 feet long and eight feet high and has two windows and doors, the distance around the room (perimeter) is 54 feet by eight feet, or 432 square feet. Divided by 30, this equals 14½ rolls of wallpaper needed. Deduct two rolls for the four openings and you need 12 single rolls.

The tools needed for the job depend upon the type of paper hung. You won't need paste if you have a pre-pasted paper. Otherwise, you will need paste, paste brush, scissors, sponge, smoothing brush (optional) and yardstick. Many dealers carry inexpensive outfits or will rent or loan equipment.

To prepare walls for application, make sure they are free from grease and dirt. You can paper over old wallpaper if it fits the wall tightly. Strip away all loose wallpaper and sand edges smooth.

You must sandpaper gloss surface paint and apply dealer's recommended glue sizing to all painted walls, new plaster or porous walls.

Use a paint prime coat on masonite, hard board, or dry wall, then glue size.

A good starting point is generally a door frame. Measure the height of the wall from ceiling to baseboard and cut a strip four inches longer than the actual height.

Cut second strip the same length, making certain the left edge matches the right edge of the first strip and that the pattern, if any, matches.

Use a weighted string or carpenter's level to insure a true plumb and draw a vertical line (approximately one inch less than the width of the paper) to the right of your starting point using a yardstick and pencil.

To apply paper to wall, release the top half of the pasted sheet and align the right edge with the penciled plumb line.

Smooth the surface of the paper with a damp sponge or smoothing brush. Don't be afraid to press or brush firmly to secure paper to the wall. Slide the wallpaper, if necessary, to the correct position.

Unfold the bottom of a pasted sheet and continue the process of smoothing to the wall. Use a wallpaper seam roller or a clean plastic furniture caster to roll the edge for a secure bond.

Wash the whole sheet with a wet (not damp) sponge to remove possible dirt marks and paste residue.

Trim excess paper at ceiling and baseboard with scissors or single edge razor.

Continue with the next strip, matching the left edge of the sheet to the paper now on the wall.

Make diagonal slits at corners of door frame or windowframes. Push paper firmly against casing and trim excess.

Firefighter Fails To Put Out Well Fire

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Valiant efforts by the ace Texan oil well firefighter, Paul "Red" Adair, have so far been unsuccessful against a giant well fire which broke out in Kuwait Jan. 3.

A traveler from Kuwait said the blaze is 200 feet high and "at night it illuminates a five-mile radius so intensely that cars can travel without lights."

The area around the well, jointly owned by British Petroleum and the Gulf Oil Co., has been flooded with 10 million gallons of water to protect supply installations.

Copies of Proposed Law On Gas Trucks Available

Copies of a proposed ordinance for regulation of the delivery of gasoline by transport trucks in the city will be available Friday in the City Clerk's office. City Attorney Frederick T. Henry said the ordinance came up for consideration by the City Council Tuesday morning.

The city's earlier attempts to limit the loads of transport trucks to 2,500 gallons were rejected by the County Court.

Some truckers and gasoline companies opposed the restrictions. An attorney for some of them, Donald LaMora, said at the last Council meeting that these interests were interested in any move by the city to try new regulations.

Henry was instructed by council at its last meeting to draft such an ordinance, after conferences with the city manager, fire chief and those interested in gasoline transport business.

Such a conference was held Monday afternoon in the Little Theatre of the City Auditorium. Some of the points discussed included:

— Hours of unloading, station attendant on duty.

—Number of stops for the unloading of transport loads exceeding 2,200 gallons of gasoline.

— Requirement that transports be entirely on service station premises while unloading.

— Length of discharge hose.

— Traffic regulations pertaining to lack of maneuverability of large transport trucks.

—Designation of permissable routes.

— Prohibition of the use of trailers.

City Manager John M. Biery said the city's main concern in the new ordinance was "safety."

Postal Carrier Center to Be Established

A. J. Onufrock, assistant postmaster at the Colorado Springs Post Office, announces that a carrier center will be established at 13 W. Vermijo Ave. for the purpose of sorting and distributing mail by carriers formerly assigned at 527 S. Tejon and certain carriers from the Parcel Post Annex.

Bids for the moving on February 7 of furniture, distribution cases and all supplies as designated by the Postmaster will be received up to 12 noon on January 30.

Prospective bidders are urged to inspect the premises at 527 S. Tejon, at the Parcel Post Annex, and at 13 W. Vermijo to become familiar with the items to be moved.

Certain items will also be moved from the Main Office to the Parcel Post Annex in order to increase the working space at the Main Office.

Interested bidders may secure additional information from Mr. Onufrock at Room 104, Main Post Office.

Japan to Sell Vinyl Plant to Red China

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese government brushed aside Nationalist Chinese objections today and agreed to the sale of a multimillion-dollar vinylon plant to Communist China.

Plans for the sale severely strained relations between Japan and Nationalist China last year. Japan maintains diplomtic relations with Nationalist China but allows its businessmen to trade with the Communists.

Yoshio Sakurauchi, minister of international trade and industry, told newsmen the Nichibo Company would ship the $30-million plant to Red China soon.

Home Builders Get One-Stop Shop Service

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Few people would think of LeRoy, N.Y.; Romeo, Mich.; Farmer City, Ill., or Forest Junction, Wis., as centers of big business. Yet these towns are part of a national, expanding building supply and home modernization business with current sales exceeding $125 million a year.

On arterial routes near each of these towns is a huge lumber building supply and home modernization center designed to cater to home building contractors and do-it-yourself home owners. Strategically located to serve urban, suburban and rural markets, they make one-stop shopping a reality for the builder. Each center carries everything needed to build a house, except masonry —about 3,000 items in lumber products, plumbing, heating, electrical and building hardware supplies.

The concept was developed by the Lumber and Building Supply Division of Wickes Corp., Saginaw, Mich., in 1952 when it opened the initial center in Portage, Mich., and eliminated several links from the old-fashioned distribution chain. For the first time, supermarket merchandising techniques were applied to the building supply business — buy in volume, sell direct to the customer.

So successful was the concept, Wickes has expanded to operate 50 such lumber and building supply centers in 16 states, with others planned. Customers in 1964 purchased enough materials to build a city of nearly 30,000 homes.

The centers are located on 10 to 30-acre sites, on well-traveled routes linking urban, suburban and rural areas. The Selkirk, N.Y. center, for instance, serves the Albany, Schenectady, Troy market and the Romoe, Mich., unit serves the Pontiac, Port Huron and northern Detroit suburbs.

Each center has a rail siding so that most products can be purchased in carload lots or shipped in by truck. Customers walk from a parking lot directly into a showroom in the front of the building. Rear and side areas of the center are warehouses. Salesmen show customers directly to products and offer consultation and advice on all home building and modernization projects.

Each center tailors is precut line to fit the needs and preferences of its market area. The demands in California, for instance, are not the same as those in Pennsylvania which, in turn, are quite different from those in Wisconsin.

For the contractor, building up to 50 homes a year, Wickes said, the supermarket concept is a great advantage because he can purchase all his requirements, except masonry, from a single source at prices lower than he would pay when buying lumber in one place, plumbing in another, heating and electrical supplies in still another.

New Wallpaper With Texture Is Introduced

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wallpaper can create effects of texture and design in a room that paint can't equal.

If properly installed and cared for, wallpaper generally will last from seven to 10 years. The newer plastic coated or impregnated papers may be washed frequently and scrubbed with soaps and cleaning solutions.

Wallpaper can be a do-it-yourself job following these rules of the United Wallpaper Co.

To measure how much paper you need, figure a single roll contains about 36 square feet. You obtain four to six whole strips from each bolt, depending on the height of the ceiling.

Measure the length around the room in feet, then multiply by the height from the baseboard to the ceiling. Divide this figure by 30 to get the number of single rolls. Officials in Selma Do Not Agree

By REX THOMAS

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — As individuals, Wilson Baker and James G. Clark, the top law enforcement officers in Selma, have an unshakeable belief in segregation.

But they have little in common in applying that philosophy to the handling of racial unrest.

Baker, the city's new public safety director, has told his officers to put their personal feelings aside and face the changing conditions brought about by passage on the civil rights law.

Clark has become a symbol of "white man's law." His heavily armed deputies, with their clubs and electric prod poles, have traveled even into other counties to help put down Negro demonstrations.

The sheriff is the chief law enforcement officer in the county and Clark has played the part. He took full charge of the handling of racial trouble in Selma last year with the approval of the city administration then in power.

But a new mayor, Joe Smitherman, took office last October and made it plain that no longer would the city surrender its policing responsibilities to the sheriff's office.

Baker, a one time Selma police captain, gave up his job with the University of Alabama as a law enforcement instructor to return here in the newly created role of public safety director.

With a promise to enforce the law impartially regardless of race, he appealed to residents of the city to face the reality of the civil rights law and meet it "with dignity."

When Negroes began their mass meetings at the start of the year, the army of sheriff's deputies who once stood watch had been replaced by a smaller, less conspicuous force of city policemen.

This week, when the Negroes began their wholesale tests of public accommodations and renewed their voter registration campaign, Baker notified them they would be arrested if they violated the law but not until then.

They marched to the courthouse and Baker refused to arrest them for parading without a permit because, he said, it was not a parade. Police accompanied them along the route to make sure they walked in small groups and not in a continuous procession.

At the courthouse, Clark wasted little time in ordering the Negroes to use an alley entrance to the building and sending them to jail when they refused.

At one point, the sheriff tossed the ball to the city police, sending word to Baker that Negroes were blocking the sidewalk and asking in effect "what are you going to do about it?"

The city police director ordered the Negroes to line up in single file to keep the sidewalk open. When they complied, he found no reason to arrest them.

But the sheriff did. He told the Negroes to disperse, and sent them to jail when they failed to obey.

U.N. Recess May Avoid Showdown

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States is reported resigned to a recess of the U.N. General Assembly until spring if the majority of the members want it to avoid a U.S.-Soviet showdown over peacekeeping dues.

U.S. sources said, however, that Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson will place before the assembly a demand that voting rights be denied the Soviet Union and any other member nation refusing to pay the dues.

Stevenson is expected to present the U.S. demand to the 115-nation forum at the windup of the general debate, expected Monday.

The Soviet Union has threatened to walk out if it is subjected to Article 19 of the U.N. charter, which denies the assembly vote to any nation two years in arrears on its total assessments. The Soviet Union and 13 other nations are that far behind because they refuse to pay peacekeeping assessments.

Convinced a U.S.-Soviet showdown is inevitable if the assembly takes up its agenda now, a number of smaller nations are reported urging a recess until May or June so the big powers can negotiate some more.

The United States is promoting the view that a showdown is preferable to any more delays.

The United States opposed earlier proposals to adjourn at the close of the policy debate and put all business over until the next session in September. The U.S. view was said to be that this would be the same as scrapping the agenda.

Although traditionally one of the first speakers in the annual debate, the United States waited until Wednesday to make known whether it would speak at all, apparently hoping the voting deadlock would be broken before then.

With no sign of a change in the Soviet position and Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey avowedly determined to get down to business next week, the United States decided to make a final bid for support of its position.

Representatives of the Asian-African and Latin-American groups conferred Wednesday on a possible new approach to the stalemated financial issue. They were reported considering watering down the Asian-African plan for resolving the crisis in hopes of making it more palatable to the United States.

The U.S. mission has turned down a key point in the plan which would set aside Article 19 while members made voluntary contributions toward the peacekeeping deficit.

Pope's Private Chapel Is Redecorated

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The private chapel of Pope Paul VI in the Vatican has been completely redone along modern lines — with Orthodox Patriarch Athenagoras of Istanbul depicted in the sculptured bronze central altar panel.

L'Osservatore Romano printed a full page of pictures and description Wednesday, the first indication of the project. The Vatican paper said the work was finished last fall and the Pope consecrated the chapel Nov. 1.

The floor is of polished marble with rich veining, the walls of light-colored raw stone and the ceiling of stained glass.

The 14 images of the "Way of the Cross" are sculpted in dark metal panels on a wall near the altar. The work of Italian sculptor Lello Scorzeli, the panels show Christ with elongated limbs reminiscent of the style of El Greco.

The dominant sculpture in the chapel is a huge, three dimensional crucifix above the altar by Enrico Mafrini of Bologna.

One altar panel is a pentecost scene showing the Holy Ghost hovering in the form of a dove above the heads of Mary and the Apostles. The other shows Pope Paul kneeling in prayer, with bowed head and clasped hands. Behind him stands bearded Patriarch Athenagoras, whom the Pope prayed with in a historic meeting in the Holy Land a year ago.

Except for the altar, the only standing object in the chapel is the prie-dieu, or desk, at which the Pope kneels. Carved on it are figures of men at work — a blacksmith at his forge, a carpenter planing a piece of wood, a printer tightening his press. They are the work of Mario Rudelli.

Republicans Stage Their Own Ball

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats weren't the only ones who were dancing. The Republicans had their own "sub inaugural ball," and they were swinging like a bunch of winners.

The GOP party was held Wednesday night in the Republican Capitol Hill Club not far from the Capitol, where President Johnson had taken his oath at noon.

The club's three main rooms were jammed with Republicans.

Michigan's Gov. George Romney hesitated in a corner near the bandstand and a receiving line formed on the spot. He signed autographs, shook hands and introduced dozens of party faithful to his wife.

Govs. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, John A. Love of Colorado and John A. Volpe of Massachusetts slipped in and out almost before the party got off to a good start.

The party was sponsored by the club. John K. Peterson, a member, had said "It's not a sour grapes party, but we didn't want Republicans sitting at home watching everything on television. So we invited them over here."

United States currency did not become legal tender in the Virgin Islands until 1934.

Michigan's Gov. George Romney hesitated in a corner near the bandstand and a receiving line formed on the spot. He signed autographs, shook hands and introduced dozens of party faithful to his wife.

Govs. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, John A. Love of Colorado and John A. Volpe of Massachusetts slipped in and out almost before the party got off to a good start.

The party was sponsored by the club. John K. Peterson, a member, had said "It's not a sour grapes party, but we didn't want Republicans sitting at home watching everything on television. So we invited them over here."

United States currency did not become legal tender in the Virgin Islands until 1934.

One Million Watch Parade In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson was half an hour late for his own parade. But he stayed late, too, and offered an informal footnote to his solemn inaugural address.

Despite the delayed start, the sun hadn't set when the open convertible carrying M. W. Goding, governor of the Trust Territories of the Pacific, rolled past the bullet-proof presidential box, bringing up the rear of the inaugural parade.

And, as he had all afternoon, Johnson stood, gave a fluttering wave and applauded as the final installment of the inaugural parade rolled by, 2½ hours after Johnson took the place of honor beneath a giant presidential seal.

Then it was the crowd's turn. Police barriers were lowered, and well-wishers swarmed onto Pennsylvania Ave. in front of the White House, to cheer and wave.

Mrs. Johnson waved back and blew them a kiss.

Then the President turned from his handshaking farewells to political figures and government leaders who had packed the reviewing stand, and waved to the crowd in the street below.

He went back to his own box, shielded by bullet proof glass, and picked up a microphone.

"You are wonderful people," Johnson aid, "and you have made this such a lovely day, and we will try so hard to be worthy of your trust and your friendship."

Police estimated that one million were on hand to watch the parade between the Capitol and the White House.

With Johnson and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, they saw units from all the 50 states, in step and out, bands and floats, and even a St. Bernard from Chicago with a hat on.

The dog was led in front of the Chicago Fire Department Band. And President Johnson's Beagle, "Him," barked at the bigger dog as though he were ready to do battle.

Him had the seat of honor, the leather-upholstered presidential chair, for a little while. President Johnson lifted Him into the spot, and the President and Humphrey took turns patting the dog. Then Him was led away to a less exalted spot.

It all began 30 minutes behind schedule when Johnson boarded a black, bullet-proof limousine to ride in triumph to his reviewing stand at the White House.

Before he got there, Johnson had punctured the elaborate security arrangements, emerging from his car to greet four banner-bearers from his alma mater, Southwest Texas State College.

The President was coatless all through the chilly afternoon as he strolled around the presidential stands, shaking hands and greeting people. But he was back at his post when the University of Texas Longhorn Band arrived.

The President pointed at his home-state outfit as it approached, and applauded when the Texas contingent arrived.

Gov. John B. Connally, longtime Johnson associate, led the way, standing in his open convertible.

Johnson grabbed the microphone in his box. "Governor," pretty."

When the University of Minnesota Band arrived, blaring the Minnesota fight song, Humphrey had his moment. He clapped his hands in time as the big band marched past the reviewing stand.

Arizona, the home state of defeated Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater, sent Democratic Gov. Sam Goddard and a unit of mounted frontiersmen.

A man with an Indian arrow sticking out of his chest, being pulled on a horse-drawn travoise — an Indian style litter — brought up the rear of the Arizona contingent.

There was no label on the supposedly wounded Arizonan. But the crowd didn't need one, and laughter followed him down the avenue. He managed a weak wave at the President.

Mormon Chief Is Called by U. S. President

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — President Johnson took time out from a hectic day of inauguration activities Wednesday to talk by telephone with President David O. McKay, the 91-year-old leader of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

President McKay, who had been unable because of health to attend the inauguration, received the call at his apartment here.

"Dr. McKay, I want you to know I was thinking of you during the inauguration ceremony," Johnson said, "and I think you will be pleased to know the singing of the (Mormon) Tabernacle Choir was the best thing in connection with the inaugural."

The singers almost didn't make it to Washington in time for the ceremony because of fog in Utah which prevented their trip by plane. The choir finally was flown to Washington from Las Vegas, Nev., after an eight-hour trip to there by bus.

"They had a very difficult time getting here, and they were worn out," Johnson said. "But their physical discomfort was not reflected in their voices."

"You can be mighty proud of your work with them. And the whole world heard them through radio and television," the President said.

President McKay responded: "I am highly honored to receive this call. I am thankful to know you were satisfied with the singing of the choir and to know you were thinking of me during this busy time."

When told that the Mormon leader's wife was at the phone with her husband, Johnson asked to talk to her and told her he enjoyed the choir's singing.

"You take care of yourself," Johnson said to President McKay after he had talked to Mrs. McKay. "God bless you."

"May the Lord continue to bless you," the Mormon leader replied.

HAIR STYLE COMPETITION

BASEL, Switzerland (AP) — The World Hairdressing Championship held here recently had two new entrants: Japan and Australia. The championship is held every two years, along with an exhibition of the appliances and implements used in hair-dressing salons.

Humphrey Back On Payroll Of Government

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey has ended a 22-day siege of unemployment and is back on the government pay roll, as the 38th vice president of the United States.

But the peppy Minnesotan, 53, still has only temporary office space at the Capitol.

There, a priorities tangle among his former colleagues leaves him with a two-room suite on the third floor.

A senator for 16 years, Humphrey was sworn in at 11:57 a.m. Wednesday at the Capitol, six minutes before Lyndon B. Johnson took the oath as president. The vice presidency had been vacant 14 months — since Johnson succeeded the assassinated President John F. Kennedy in November 1963.

But, for some, the members of the Doland, S.D., high school band, for instance, Humphrey was the top man. The baritone horn player in the class of 1929, Humphrey grinned from ear to ear and clapped his hands when the band played the "King Size" march in tribute to Doland's favorite son.

When it was Minnesota's turn to pass by, the University of Minnesota band played "Minnesota Rouser," a fight song Humphrey heard again and again in last fall's campaign.

Earlier, as he rode to the Capitol with temperatures in the 30s, the man who quit pharmacy to teach and then to enter politics was asked if he feared pneumonia.

Beaming, Humphrey said he was not afraid. "Modern pharmacy and modern medicine will take care of that," he joshed.

Humphrey's unemployment, a technical matter that has caused considerable banter, began Dec. 29 when he quit his Senate seat so his successor, Walter F. Mondale, could get a seniority jump on other incoming freshmen.

Britain Being Threatened By Muggings

LONDON (NEA) — Muggings and other senseless crimes of violence that have plagued New York and other big American cities now threaten to become a familiar part of city life in Britain.

Parts of London are becoming unsafe to ordinary law-abiding persons after dark as young hooligans roam the streets, bent on destruction.

In the last week in December 1964, muggings alone accounted for three murders in London, two of which took place outside of pubs. All of these killings were apparently motiveless.

There are two new factors which make the present wave of violence different from preceding ones, and which give the police cause for alarm.

One is the increasing use of firearms, usually shotguns dy young hoodlums out for kicks.

In the past, teen-ager gangs used their fists mostly whenever there was a rumble, although the odd bicycle chain or flick knife made its appearance.

But in recent weeks young gangsters have terrorized their rivals by firing at them with shotguns from speeding cars.

Smash - and - grab gangs now go armed with everything from sawed-off shotguns to pistols when they raid a bank, a practice which has hitherto been rare in Britain, whose police are unarmed.

An unwritten code long existing between the underworld and the police holds that as long as one did not take up arms, the other would refrain from toting firearms. Until recently, this understanding has worked remarkably well.

But now gunplay has become contagious, and even youngsters have taken to firing at trains with their air rifles.

The other factor that worries police is the seeming public indifference to violence in the streets, with bystanders slow to go to the aid of victims who are being attacked.

In order to counteract this indifference Scotland Yard recently called on the public to "have a go" at criminals such es bank raiders, providing that the circumstances were right.

This brought the wrath of the British Safety Council down upon Scotland Yard's head. To advise the public to "have a go" at armed criminals is "madness" and "suicidal," the council claims.

Not only would such bystanders get in the way of the police, but they'd risk losing their lives without preventing criminals from escaping.

"You are not being a coward if you keep out of these affairs and let the police deal with them," Graham Spiers, an official of the safety council, explains.

After President Kennedy's assassination the British viewed with horror the ease with which firearms can be procured in the United States. But the situation is little better here. Anyone over the age of 17 can buy a shotgun across the counter.

Most of Britain's shotguns are imported. More than 42,000 were imported in the first 10 months of 1964 from Spain, Italy, France Belgium and Czechoslovakia—a big increase over the 25,000 brought into Britain is still sufficiently rural for large numbers of amateurs to go potting rabbits regularly on weekends.

Police are more concerned about stolen shotguns that has been built by the underworld through raids on gunsmith's' shops. More than a dozen shops have been raided in the London area in the past two months.

Girl Could Not Go To Inaugural Ball

FAIR LAWN, N.J. (AP) — "Oh I'm so mad, I should have been there, see," Ellen Petak said Wednesday as she watched President Johnson's inaugural ball on television.

Ellen, 13, got an invitation to one of four inaugural balls after writing to the President's wife explaining that her grandfather, Nathan Schwartz, had worked on one of Mrs. Johnson's inaugural gowns.

An invitation arrived Tuesday.

But three days earlier Ellen had tumbled off her sled, wrenching her knee. Her doctor ordered her to stay in bed for a week. When the invitation came her younger brother, Bobby, 10, offered to go in her place.

"Nobody will be going," their mother, Mrs. Herbert Petak told him.

Britain Being Threatened By Muggings

LONDON (NEA) — Muggings and other senseless crimes of violence that have plagued New York and other big American cities now threaten to become a familiar part of city life in Britain.

Parts of London are becoming unsafe to ordinary law-abiding persons after dark as young hooligans roam the streets, bent on destruction.

In the last week in December 1964, muggings alone accounted for three murders in London, two of which took place outside of pubs. All of these killings were apparently motiveless.

There are two new factors which make the present wave of violence different from preceding ones, and which give the police cause for alarm.

One is the increasing use of firearms, usually shotguns dy young hoodlums out for kicks.

In the past, teen-ager gangs used their fists mostly whenever there was a rumble, although the odd bicycle chain or flick knife made its appearance.

But in recent weeks young gangsters have terrorized their rivals by firing at them with shotguns from speeding cars.

Smash - and - grab gangs now go armed with everything from sawed-off shotguns to pistols when they raid a bank, a practice which has hitherto been rare in Britain, whose police are unarmed.

An unwritten code long existing between the underworld and the police holds that as long as one did not take up arms, the other would refrain from toting firearms. Until recently, this understanding has worked remarkably well.

But now gunplay has become contagious, and even youngsters have taken to firing at trains with their air rifles.

The other factor that worries police is the seeming public indifference to violence in the streets, with bystanders slow to go to the aid of victims who are being attacked.

In order to counteract this indifference Scotland Yard recently called on the public to "have a go" at criminals such es bank raiders, providing that the circumstances were right.

This brought the wrath of the British Safety Council down upon Scotland Yard's head. To advise the public to "have a go" at armed criminals is "madness" and "suicidal," the council claims.

WASHINGTON — (Special to the Gazette Telegraph) — A fresh study of military pay and benefits is underway at the Pentagon. The task force chairman is William Gorham, Deputy Assistant Defense Secretary for Special Studies. It is recalled that his work in the past resulted in the 1963-64 military pay increases.

The American Legion supports the merger of the Reserve and the National Guard but would like to have Congress review the proposal before it is made. As anticipated by this column, the Legion strongly protests the proposal to close out installations of the Veterans Administration.

Strom Thurmond is back on the Senate Armed Services Committee. This time as a Republican, or minority, member.

Gen. Paul L. Freeman, Jr., succeeds retiring Gen. Hugh Harris at CONARC. Freeman will be replaced at USAREUR by Gen. Andrew P. O'Meara.

The Pentagon's Code of Conduct again is in the news. This time the word is that it will be applicable to civilian and military officials attending convention banquets and other social functinos sponsored gy Government employe unions.

A bill has been introduced in this session of Congress that would eliminate reductions in Civil Service retirement annuities to provide for survivors benefits. One measure would be retroactive in that it would include employes already retired.

If the measure becomes law it should open the way for the same treatment to military retirees with respect to the Retired Serviceman's Act. The weak point in efforts of uniformed personnel to protect their active duty and retired benefits is the lack of a strong Washington - based organization speaking in their behalf.

If those eligible joined the Retired Officers Association, for example, it would have almost 200,000 membership. Congress listen to voices of this strength.

Don't be surprised if all research activities now carried on by each of the services become merged into one agency under the Department of Defense.

All future enlistees in the Reserve will be required to sign up for the National Guard on release from active duty. In other words, the 6-months trainees will not revert to Reserve status but will be assigned to a National Guard unit.

Men coming off of duty with a Reserve obligation remaining have heretofore been offered the opportunity to serve in the Guard.

Now that the National Guard will desegregate or no Federal funds the next move on the part of the Pentagon will be to eliminate segregation in ROTC units.

Maj. Gen. Rush B. Lincoln, recently announced as first chief of the new Military Traffic Management and Terminal Service, has decided to retire rather than take the new duty. He joins the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority as general manager at a reputed salary of $40,000. Maj. Gen. John J. Lane, Commandant of Ft. Eustis, will replace Lincoln.

The Pentagon will stick to its guns on retention of a commissary. As a matter of fact it may add some more. Congressional sources, or at least informed Congressional sources, are 100 per cent in support of commissaries.

JIMMY TO STAR IN 'FLIGHT OF THE PHOENIX'

HOLLYWOOD — Jimmy Stewart returns to 20th Century-Fox as star of "The Flight of the Phoenix" for Bob Aldrich. It's about a rescue plane down in the desert and there isn't a woman in it. He's narrating a special film written by Beirne Lay to be shown at Gen. Curtis Lemay's retirement dinner in New York the end of January. "There aren't enough like him," says Jimmy.

The Stewart family had a wonderful holiday in Sun Valley. "I was the cruise director," said Jimmy. "I got all the skis together, the poles, put everybody on a bus, got 'em on the ski lift, took their picture, then went back to the hotel and read the paper. It's a great sport!" He really can ski. Learned at Yosemite back in 1935 after he finished his first picture there with the late Jeanette MacDonald.

Jimmy expressed his shock, as we all did, at Jeanette's death. Both she and Gene Raymond asked me not to write about it, but she'd been seriously ill for more than a year. She was beloved by everyone. Even the yokels loved opera when Jeanette sang it. I remember so well the joint wedding reception for the Raymonds and Mary Pickford and Buddy Rogers in the Basil Rathbone's garden. It was a great social event.

That great social worker on TV, George C. Scott, met up with Ava Gardner while they were shooting "The Bible" in Rome. He fell like a ton of bricks, followed her to London. Now he and his lovely wife, Coleen Dewhurst are divorcing, and he's told intimate friends he'll move heaven and earth to marry Ava. As a pal of his said, "Every red-blooded American boys wants to marry the girl back home, and to him Ava's that girl." She always loved dangerously: married Mickey Rooney, Artie Shaw, and Frank Sinatra. She's got the right fellow in Scott. He warned Hollywood once not to vote him an Oscar. We didn't. He called the Academy awards a beauty contest.

Jerry Lewis never fails to astonish me. He can get more off-beat characters to play off-beat roles than anybody I know. He got me to wear a beach umbrella as a hat in one picture. Now he has Sebastian Cabot playing a Dr. Watson type in "The Family Jewels."

Bob Newhart keeps singing "California, Here I Come," but Jack Paar persuaded him to return to New York as a guest; then he flies to London for a BBC TV special about American humor. He's just the one who can tell 'em.

Ann-Margret finally got around to Jean Louis who created a white gown for her to wear at the inaugural ball. I begged her to go to him before she met Queen Elizabeth in England, but her manager, Bobby Roberts, preferred another, so she wore a black and white outfit.

If Frank Sinatra keeps on denying there's anything between him and Mia Farrow, he shouldn't take her to the Daisy, a new club in Mike Romanoff's old building which really swings.

Warren Beatty goes to New York for a couple of days, then London. But he'll return here for a couple of weeks before going back to England for the start of "Baby Sitter" which may be changed to "Promise Her Anything." And giver her nothing, I suppose.

He's twirling.

David Susskind, boy wonder, was optimistic as an umbrella salesman on a cloudy day, when he told about his musical, "Kelly," which opens in New York Feb. 18: "I predict it'll be the biggest hit since 'Dolly.' It's a lusty, bawdy, sexy musical in the tradition of 'Guys and Dolls' about Steve Brody who jumped off the Brooklyn bridge in 1886 and lived to tell the tale."

Frank Ryan, Cleveland Browns' quarterback, completed 25 touchdown passes last season.

Bob Newhart keeps singing "California, Here I Come," but Jack Paar persuaded him to return to New York as a guest; then he flies to London for a BBC TV special about American humor. He's just the one who can tell 'em.

Ann-Margret finally got around to Jean Louis who created a white gown for her to wear at the inaugural ball. I begged her to go to him before she met Queen Elizabeth in England, but her manager, Bobby Roberts, preferred another, so she wore a black and white outfit.

If Frank Sinatra keeps on denying there's anything between him and Mia Farrow, he shouldn't take her to the Daisy, a new club in Mike Romanoff's old building which really swings.

Warren Beatty goes to New York for a couple of days, then London. But he'll return here for a couple of weeks before going back to England for the start of "Baby Sitter" which may be changed to "Promise Her Anything." And giver her nothing, I suppose.

He's twirling.

David Susskind, boy wonder, was optimistic as an umbrella salesman on a cloudy day, when he told about his musical, "Kelly," which opens in New York Feb. 16: "I predict it'll be the biggest hit since 'Dolly.' It's a lusty, bawdy, sexy musical in the tradition of 'Guys and Dolls' about Steve Brody who jumped off the Brooklyn bridge in 1886 and lived to tell the tale."

Frank Ryan, Cleveland Browns' quarterback, completed 25 touchdown passes last season.

Chicago Reports Breathing Spell In Bombings

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY

CHICAGO (AP) — "It has stopped. Thank God."

James McMahon, assistant director of the Illinois Department of Public Safety, so answered a reporter's query about what had happened to the series of bomb and fire attacks on restaurants, night clubs and other places.

A blast knocked out a wall of the Homestead restaurant in Proviso Township Nov. 29. It went down on the list of such crimes as No. 80 in a three-year sequence.

But in recent weeks the hiss of such set fires and the boom of explosives have been missing from the Chicago area.

"Intensive investigations."

Both McMahon and Charles Siragusa, director of the Illinois Crime Commission, used that phrase in separate interviews Tuesday.

McMahon heads a joint cooperative effort started in 1963 by officials of seven counties in northeastern Illinois at the behest of Gov. Otto Kerner.

McMahon recalled that rewards of $11,000 had been posted for information that could lead to the arrest and conviction of the terrorists.

"Not one call or one letter came in," he said.

A special Cook County grand jury last fall returned 20 indictments but indicated it wasn't satisfied.

Jurors said they suspected that some of the 200 witnesses had withheld information.

Two men currently are on trial on charge of arson and conspiracy to commit arson in two Chicago restaurants which one of them owned and where the other worked.

Siragusa said hearings his agency conducted last month demonstrated that money via insurance and intimidation had been the main motives.

He expressed the belief the Chicago crime syndicate was "tied up with a few places."

One apparent reason for the lull — if that's what it is — is the heat generated by news and comments on the subject.

McMahon said: "The public is aroused through the cooperation of news media."

Kids in Family Hold Election For Baby's Name

TOWACO, N.J. (AP) — While the new-born baby lay in a maternity ward crib, most of his 15 brothers and sisters were debating an issue that would affect him for a lifetime.

They were holding an election to choose his name — pursuant to tradition in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Marius Spada.

The name of Dominick was bestowed Tuesday night on the Spadas' ninth son.

Two of the 13 Spada offspring voting favored the names John and Anthony but couldn't put a dent in the pro-Dominick faction.

"I guess the scholars won out," said Spada. "They got the name from a priest, Father Dominick, who is a friend of the family."

Spada, 44, has no say in the balloting, which may or may not account for the fact that it wasn't until the 15th child was born that a son was named after him.

"We leave it entirely up to them," he said. "I used to be able to sway the election, but I guess I'm too old now politically to carry much weight."

Spada's blonde wife, Anne, 39, gave birth to the 8-pound boy Sunday. Both were reported in good condition today.

Mrs. Spada was chosen Mrs. New Jersey in 1958 but, fearing the publicity might harm the children — there were nine then — decide not to compete in the Mrs. America finals.

Spada, a moving van company representative, said the last half- dozen children have been named through the election system.

Two of the Spada children didn't have their say in the latest selection. Joseph, 17, is away on Army duty and Marius Jr., 2, was held too young to vote.

Chicago Reports Breathing Spell In Bombings

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY

CHICAGO (AP) — "It has stopped. Thank God."

James McMahon, assistant director of the Illinois Department of Public Safety, so answered a reporter's query about what had happened to the series of bomb and fire attacks on restaurants, night clubs and other places.

A blast knocked out a wall of the Homestead restaurant in Proviso Township Nov. 29. It went down on the list of such crimes as No. 80 in a three-year sequence.

But in recent weeks the hiss of such set fires and the boom of explosives have been missing from the Chicago area.

"Intensive investigations."

Both McMahon and Charles Siragusa, director of the Illinois Crime Commission, used that phrase in separate interviews Tuesday.

McMahon heads a joint cooperative effort started in 1963 by officials of seven counties in northeastern Illinois at the behest of Gov. Otto Kerner.

McMahon recalled that rewards of $11,000 had been posted for information that could lead to the arrest and conviction of the terrorists.

"Not one call or one letter came in," he said.

A special Cook County grand jury last fall returned 20 indictments but indicated it wasn't satisfied.

Jurors said they suspected that some of the 200 witnesses had withheld information.

Two men currently are on trial on charge of arson and conspiracy to commit arson in two Chicago restaurants which one of them owned and where the other worked.

Siragusa said hearings his agency conducted last month demonstrated that money via insurance and intimidation had been the main motives.

He expressed the belief the Chicago crime syndicate was "tied up with a few places."

One apparent reason for the lull — if that's what it is — is the heat generated by news and comments on the subject.

McMahon said: "The public is aroused through the cooperation of news media."

Kids in Family Hold Election For Baby's Name

TOWACO, N.J. (AP) — While the new-born baby lay in a maternity ward crib, most of his 15 brothers and sisters were debating an issue that would affect him for a lifetime.

They were holding an election to choose his name — pursuant to tradition in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Marius Spada.

The name of Dominick was bestowed Tuesday night on the Spadas' ninth son.

Two of the 13 Spada offspring voting favored the names John and Anthony but couldn't put a dent in the pro-Dominick faction.

"I guess the scholars won out," said Spada. "They got the name from a priest, Father Dominick, who is a friend of the family."

Spada, 44, has no say in the balloting, which may or may not account for the fact that it wasn't until the 15th child was born that a son was named after him.

"We leave it entirely up to them," he said. "I used to be able to sway the election, but I guess I'm too old now politically to carry much weight."

Spada's blonde wife, Anne, 39, gave birth to the 8-pound boy Sunday. Both were reported in good condition today.

Mrs. Spada was chosen Mrs. New Jersey in 1952 but, fearing the publicity might harm the children — there were nine then — decide not to compete in the Mrs. America finals.

Spada, a moving van company representative, said the last half- dozen children have been named through the election system.

Two of the Spada children didn't have their say in the latest selection. Joseph, 17, is away on Army duty and Marius Jr., 2, was held too young to vote.

Balloting on the new baby's name were Annelia, 19 Marie, 18; Lucille, 16; James, 15; Jennifer, 14; Victoria, 13; twins Larry and Laurie, 12; Patrick, 9; Nicholas, 8; Anette, 7; Teresa, 5, and Christopher, 4.

U.S. May Charge Soviets Broke Atom Test Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may charge the Soviet Union with violating the limited nuclear test-ban treaty as a result of an underground explosion last Friday in Central Asia.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission said Tuesday night the blast has produced some fallout in the northern Pacific near Japan. Officials noted that under the treaty, fallout is supposed to be kept within the boundaries of the testing nation.

The evidence to date suggests that while the Soviet explosion technically violated the treaty, it apparently was accidental. And, the AEC said, "the amounts of radioactivity measured to date will not produce measurable exposures to persons."

Still, Secretary of State Dean Rusk has asked Moscow for a full explanation. Officials said they will await a report from the Soviet Union before determining the application of the treaty.

The treaty, signed in Moscow 18 months ago and subscribed to by more than 100 nations, prohibits nuclear explosions in the atmosphere, in outer space and under water. It also prohibits underground explosions if they cause radioactive debris "to be present outside the territorial limits of the state" that is testing.

The force of the Soviet blast, set off in the Semipalatinsk area of central Russia, was described by the AEC as "in the intermediate range." This means it was equivalent to the force loosed by 20,000 to 1 million tons of TNT.

Last March, officials said, an underground American test blew radioactive material into the air and the debris was traced over the southwestern part of the United States. However, they said, no radioactivity was detected outside U.S. borders.

Three days after the incident, the Soviet news agency Tass commented that if the fallout went beyond U.S. borders the treaty would be violated.

Here is the statement released Tuesday night by the AEC:

"As previously reported, the United States detected through seismic signals, a Soviet underground nuclear test in the Semipalatinks area on Jan. 15 with a yield in the intermediate range.

"The United States detection system has now detected a certain amount of venting connected with the test. The amounts of radioactivity measured to date will not produce measurable exposures to persons.

"In view of the treaty banning nuclear weapons tests in the atmosphere, in outer space and under water, the Department of State has asked the government of the Soviet Union for information on this event."

"Venting" is a term used to describe the release above ground of radioactive materials from an underground explosion. At 4:30 p.m., about an hour and a half before the AEC announcement, Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin was summoned to the State Department and asked to obtain the information referred to in the statement.

Shoppers' Law Push May Cause LBJ Trouble

By TOM NOLAN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The holiday which Lyndon Johnson has enjoyed with the business community may suffer its first rainy weather with the release of the long-awaited report by the President's Committee on Consumer Interests.

Some businessmen have been skeptical of the Administration's efforts in behalf of the American consumer — especially since the appointment of Mrs. Esther Peterson as Johnson's special assistant for consumer affairs and the creation of the consumer committee.

Major strike against Mrs. Peterson, who still continues to hold her post as assistant secretary of labor, was her testimony in favor of the Hart packaging-labeling bill and the Douglas credit bill, two measures opposed by some segments of the business community.

The President himself did not exactly dispel businessmen's fears when he said the new committee would "focus on consumer needs which can appropriately be met through federal action."

Subsequently, though, both the President and Mrs. Peterson did much to allay fears that the consumer program would be antibusiness. Four regional conferences — in St. Louis, Salt Lake City, Detroit and Atlanta—between representatives of consumer groups, manufacturers, advertising agencies and government officials produced the cautiously friendly relations which lasted through the presidential campaign.

Many observers feel that this atmosphere will cloud over following the release of the committee's report.

Yet warns the U. S. Chamber of Commerce: "If the program results in restrictive proposals that needlessly complicate business methods, or sap competitive vigor, or curtail business efforts to maximize consumer choice or consumer satisfaction, the business response will surely be antagonistic."

Recommendations the Chamber would view with misgivings include:

That Mrs. Peterson be given power to conduct investigations of production, distribution prices and quality of consumer goods.

That the consumer program be upgraded to cabinet level status.

That further legislative restrictions — such as the Hart and Douglas bills — be placed upon business.

On the other side of the coin are the American consumers who, numbering only 6 per cent of the world's population, consume more than one third of the world's goods and services. Last year the country's consumers spent over $389 billion.

At times, according to testimony at hearings on the Hart and Douglas bills, they were submitted to declining product standards, phony retail list prices, planned obsolescence of products, hidden credit charges, fraudulent packaging and misleading labeling.

The major point of the packaging-labeling bill sponsored by Sen. Philip Hart, D - Mich., is that the consumer cannot make a rational purchase on the basis of what a package looks like or what it says on the label about its contents.

Business' answer is that studies show consumers prefer to have quantity reduced rather than prices raised. Thus, four-inch candy bars still come in six-inch cardboard trays.

The credit bill introduced by Sen. Paul Douglas, D-Ill., would require, among other things:

Stores which have a 1¼ per cent service charge per 30-day billing period on revolving charge accounts must inform customers that the actual charge is 18 per cent annually.

Loan companies which advertise, for example, 3% per cent interest on the first $300 borrowed and 1¼ per cent on the remainder, must inform customers that the annual interest rate is really 24 per cent.

Both bills have languished in committee for many time. But both sponsors are determined to try again for final action in the 89th Congress.

A favorable recommendation by the Committee on Consumer Interests on the two bills would probably spur quicker action.

U.S. May Charge Soviets Broke Atom Test Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may charge the Soviet Union with violating the limited nuclear test-ban treaty as a result of an underground explosion last Friday in Central Asia.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission said Tuesday night the blast has produced some fallout in the northern Pacific near Japan. Officials noted that under the treaty, fallout is supposed to be kept within the boundaries of the testing nation.

The evidence to date suggests that while the Soviet explosion technically violated the treaty, it apparently was accidental. And, the AEC said, "the amounts of radioactivity measured to date will not produce measurable exposures to persons."

Still, Secretary of State Dean Rusk has asked Moscow for a full explanation. Officials said they will await a report from the Soviet Union before determining the application of the treaty.

The treaty, signed in Moscow 18 months ago and subscribed to by more than 100 nations, prohibits nuclear explosions in the atmosphere, in outer space and under water. It also prohibits underground explosions if they cause radioactive debris "to be present outside the territorial limits of the state" that is testing.

The force of the Soviet blast, set off in the Semipalatinsk area of central Russia, was described by the AEC as "in the intermediate range." This means it was equivalent to the force loosed by 20,000 to 1 million tons of TNT.

Last March, officials said, an underground American test blew radioactive material into the air and the debris was traced over the southwestern part of the United States. However, they said, no radioactivity was detected outside U.S. borders.

Three days after the incident, the Soviet news agency Tass commented that if the fallout went beyond U.S. borders the treaty would be violated.

Here is the statement released Tuesday night by the AEC:

"As previously reported, the United States detected through seismic signals, a Soviet underground nuclear test in the Semipalatinsk area on Jan. 15 with a yield in the intermediate range.

"The United States detection system has now detected a certain amount of venting connected with the test. The amounts of radioactivity measured to date will not produce measurable exposures to persons.

"In view of the treaty banning nuclear weapons tests in the atmosphere, in outer space and under water, the Department of State has asked the government of the Soviet Union for information on this event."

"Venting" is a term used to describe the release above ground of radioactive materials from an underground explosion.

At 4:30 p.m., about an hour and a half before the AEC announcement, Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin was summoned to the State Department and asked to obtain the information referred to in the statement.

Shoppers' Law Push May Cause LBJ Trouble

By TOM NOLAN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The holiday which Lyndon Johnson has enjoyed with the business community may suffer its first rainy weather with the release of the long-awaited report by the President's Committee on Consumer Interests.

Some businessmen have been skeptical of the Administration's efforts in behalf of the American consumer — especially since the appointment of Mrs. Esther Peterson as Johnson's special assistant for consumer affairs and the creation of the consumer committee.

Major strike against Mrs. Peterson, who still continues to hold her post as assistant secretary of labor, was her testimony in favor of the Hart packaging-labeling bill and the Douglas credit bill, two measures opposed by some segments of the business community.

The President himself did not exactly dispel businessmen's fears when he said the new committee would "focus on consumer needs which can appropriately be met through federal action."

Subsequently, though, both the President and Mrs. Peterson did much to allay fears that the consumer program would be antibusiness. Four regional conferences — in St. Louis, Salt Lake City, Detroit and Atlanta—between representatives of consumer groups, manufacturers, advertising agencies and government officials produced the cautiously friendly relations which lasted through the presidential campaign.

Many observers feel that this atmosphere will cloud over following the release of the committee's report.

Yet warns the U. S. Chamber of Commerce: "If the program results in restrictive proposals that needlessly complicate business methods, or sap competitive vigor, or curtail business efforts to maximize consumer choice or consumer satisfaction, the business response will surely be antagonistic."

Recommendations the Chamber would view with misgivings include:

That Mrs. Peterson be given power to conduct investigations of production, distribution prices and quality of consumer goods.

That the consumer program be upgraded to cabinet level status.

That further legislative restrictions — such as the Hart and Douglas bills — be placed upon business.

On the other side of the coin are the American consumers who, numbering only 6 per cent of the world's population, consume more than one third of the world's goods and services. Last year the country's consumers spent over $300 billion.

At times, according to testimony at hearings on the Hart and Douglas bills, they were submitted to declining product standards, phony retail list prices, planned obsolescence of products, hidden credit charges, fraudulent packaging and misleading labeling.

The major point of the packaging-labeling bill sponsored by Sen. Philip Hart, D - Mich., is that the consumer cannot make a rational purchase on the basis of what a package looks like or what it says on the label about its contents.

Business' answer is that studies show consumers prefer to have quantitiy reduced rather than prices raised. Thus, four-inch candy bars still come in six-inch cardboard trays.

The credit bill introduced by Sen. Paul Douglas, D-Ill., would require, among other things:

Stores which have a 1½ per cent service charge per 30-day billing period on revolving charge accounts must inform customers that the actual charge is 18 per cent annually.

Loan companies which advertise, for example, 3% per cent interest on the first $300 borrowed and 1½ per cent on the remainder, must inform borrowers customers that the annual interest rate is really 34 per cent.

Both bills have languished in committee for some time. But both sponsors are determined to try again for final action in the 89th Congress.

A favorable recommendation by the Committee on Consumer Interests on the two bills would probably spur quicker action.

efense Program s Given Warm eception

By G. MILTON KELLY

ASHINGTON (AP) — Con-ss has given President John-'s $49 billion defense pro-m a generally warm recep-.

ome Democrats and Republi-s, however, expressed mis-ings on the lack of plans for manned bombers.

hortly after the message nt to Congress Monday, the ate Armed Services Com-ttee and the Senate Defnse propriations sub-committee nounced plans to invite Secre-y of Defense Robert S. Mc-mara to joint hearings, prob-y early in February, to sent details not given in the ssage.

he huge program would cost 0 million less than the Penta-'s estimated 49.3 billion nding in the fiscal year end-June 30 and $2.3 billion less n last year.

he President attributed this completion of many needed nges and increases in the litary force structure, and t reduction programs which starting to bear fruit.

he United States, he said, is tronger militarily than at any er time in its peacetime his-y."

"Today we can walk the road peace because we have the ength we need," the Presi-t said.

Johnson outlined three major w weapon systems designed beef up this armed might.

— The Poseidon, a new mis-e system with twice the pow-of the Polaris A3, whose nu-ar warhead can deliver a ast equal to 800,000 tons of NT on a target nearly 29,000 iles away.

— A series of what Johnson alled "remarkable new pay-ads for strategic missiles."

— A new short-range attack issile — SRAM — which could e fired from B52s or other ombers.

The President said he would equest more than $300 million continue a program of ex-ending the life and improving effectiveness of B52 bomb-rs. He announced plans to liminate two squadrons of ear-y model B52s which he termed he "least effective" of the eight enerations of the jet inter-ontinental bomber planes.

In the field of conventional ar preparedness, Johnson said e planned to start development f the C5A cargo transport, ca-able of carrying 750 men at a ime. He also announced plans or large scale procurement of oth the controversial F111, ormerly known as the TFX, as standard fighter, and a new ype Navy attack aircraft.

He said construction of four uclear powered attack subma-ines and 10 destroyers also ould start under the new pro-ram.

The message's silence about ny plans for modern new nanned bombers drew sparks rom a number of senators.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., hairman of the Senate reparedness subcommittee, aid "I regret that it is apparent hat a decision to proceed with he development of a follow-on nanned bomber has been fur-her delayed. I am convinced hat our future security requires balanced and flexible force of nanned bombers and strategic issiles."

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of both the Sen-te Armed Forces Committee nd Defense Appropriations ubcommittee, said the Pre-ident's preparedness objectives have my support" and would get an overwhelmingly favor-ble response from Congress. But he did not rule out differ-ences of opinion on the pecifics.

Russian Dentist Given U.S. Dentures

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Dr. Vladimir Rudko, a Russian dentist touring the United States with a Soviet medical exhibit, spoke at a meeting of the Wyandotte County Dental Society Tuesday night and was given a set of chattering mechanical dentures as a token.

"Now you will be able to go home and tell people what Americans are like," said Dr. Hudson Burns, president of the society.

"I consider me of some of my colleagues dentists," said Rudko.

Gilbertyo of the Institute of Medical Radiology in Moscow, another member of the group, said durably in the United States is the best he has observed and an example of what the Soviet Union is trying to achieve.

AWARD WINNING RECIPE—Airman 1.C. Bobby Cook explains to Lt. Col. J. C. Eichholz, Air Force Academy Deputy Chief of Staff/Materiel, his "recipe" for winning honors as DCS/M Airman of the Quarter. It's just something he "cooked up" through above average effort. Airman 1.C. Cook is assigned to the Airmen Dining Hall—as a cook, of course. (Air Force Photo)

Bootlegging Plagues Paris Fashion World

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

PARIS (AP) — The watch on the lady's pendant did not tick. It clicked. And each click took a picture that was a potential fortune to an international gang of design thieves.

A chic client of the haute couture houses disappeared hastily over the Pyrenees one day just ahead of the French police; who had discovered she was a "renter" — one more form of fashion bootlegging.

These are incidents from past chapters in a history of style-stealing here where fashion and its theft is a major crime.

The purloining goes on today. So does the battle against it by the Chambre Syndicale, the 104-year-old fashion trade organization.

Throughout the city this week a thousand new fashion ideas closeted in elegant couture houses, are being photographed back and front and from the sides, for copyright under French fashion design laws.

At the spring collection openings beginning next Monday, they will be seen, described, but not photographed by the fashion press.

The credentials of the more than 1,000 reporters here for the event, have been screened carefully, and they or their bosses have signed pledges not to misuse their garnered information.

Those important people, the buyers, will use passports as identification and pay a $500 to $1,000 deposit to each fashion house they visit to insure their good intentions.

Many American buyers will purchase styles from which they are authorized to make line-for-line reproductions or adaptations. But they must wait four to five weeks for delivery.

Youth Corps Will Get Minimum Wage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department has decided to pay a $1.25 an hour minimum wage to youngsters working in Neighborhood Youth Corps projects under President Johnson's antipoverty program.

Organized labor had pushed for the $1.25 rate.

Thirty-seven projects have been approved in 23 states. The total cost will be $34,395,000. More than 41,000 youths between 16 and 21 are involved.

efense Program s Given Warm eception

By G. MILTON KELLY

ASHINGTON (AP) — Con-ss has given President John-'s $49 billion defense pro-m a generally warm recep-.

ome Democrats and Republi-s, however, expressed mis-ings on the lack of plans for manned bombers.

hortly after the message t to Congress Monday, the ate Armed Services Com-tee and the Senate Defnse propriations sub-committee ounced plans to invite Secre-y of Defense Robert S. Mc-mara to joint hearings, prob-y early in February, to sent details not given in the ssage.

he huge program would cost million less than the Penta-'s estimated 49.3 billion nding in the fiscal year end-June 30 and $2.3 billion less last year.

he President attributed this completion of many needed nges and increases in the itary force structure, and t reduction programs which starting to bear fruit.

he United States, he said, is ronger militarily than at any er time in its peacetime his-y."

Today we can walk the road peace because we have the ength we need," the Presi-said.

ohnson outlined three major weapon systems designed eef up this armed might.

— The Poseidon, a new mis-system with twice the pow-of the Polaris A3, whose nu-ar warhead can deliver a st equal to 800,000 tons of T on a target nearly 29,000 es away.

— A series of what Johnson led "remarkable new pay-ds for strategic missiles."

— A new short-range attack sile — SRAM — which could fired from B52s or other mbers.

The President said he would quest more than $300 million continue a program of ex-ding the life and improving effectiveness of B52 bomb-. He announced plans to minate two squadrons of ear-model B52s which he termed "least effective" of the eight erations of the jet inter-ntinental bomber planes.

In the field of conventional r preparedness, Johnson said planned to start development the C5A cargo transport, ca-le of carrying 750 men at a e. He also announced plans large scale procurement of th the controversial F111, merly known as the TFX, as standard fighter, and a new pe Navy attack aircraft.

He said construction of four uclear powered attack subma-nes and 10 destroyers also uld start under the new pro-ram.

The message's silence about y plans for modern new anned bombers drew sparks m a number of senators.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., hairman of the Senate reparedness subcommittee, aid "I regret that it is apparent hat a decision to proceed with he development of a follow-on anned bomber has been fur-her delayed. I am convinced hat our future security requires balanced and flexible force of anned bombers and strategic issiles."

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of both the Sen-te Armed Forces Committee nd Defense Appropriations ub-committee, said the Pre-ident's preparedness objectives have my support" and would ee an overwhelmingly favor-ble response from Congress. e did not rule out differ-nces of opinion on the pecifics.

Russian Dentist Given U.S. Dentures

ANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Dr. Vladimir Rudko, a Russian entist touring the United States with a Soviet medical exhibit, spoke at a meeting of the Wyan-otte County Dental Society Tuesday night and was given a set of chattering mechanical dentures as a token.

"Now you will be able to go home and tell people what Americans are like," said Dr. Herman Burns, president of the society.

Rudko is one of some of my colleagues dentists," said Dr. [illegible] Gutentyn of the Rus-sian Medical Academy in Moscow, another member of the Soviet team, said dentistry in the United States is the best in the world and an example of what the Soviet Union is trying to achieve.

Bootlegging Plagues Paris Fashion World

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

PARIS (AP) — The watch on the lady's pendant did not tick. It clicked. And each click took a picture that was a potential fortune to an international gang of design thieves.

A chic client of the haute couture houses disappeared hastily over the Pyrenees one day just ahead of the French police; who had discovered she was a "renter" — one more form of fashion bootlegging.

These are incidents from past chapters in a history of style-stealing here where fashion and its theft is a major crime.

The purloining goes on today. So does the battle against it by the Chambre Syndicale, the 104-year-old fashion trade organization.

Throughout the city this week a thousand new fashion ideas closeted in elegant couture houses, are being photographed back and front and from the sides, for copyright under French fashion design laws.

At the spring collection openings beginning next Monday, they will be seen, described, but not photographed by the fashion press.

The credentials of the more than 1,000 reporters here for the event, have been screened carefully, and they or their bosses have signed pledges not to misuse their garnered information.

Those important people, the buyers, will use passports as identification and pay a $500 to $1,000 deposit to each fashion house they visit to insure their good intentions.

Many American buyers will purchase styles from which they are authorized to make line-for-line reproductions or adaptations. But they must wait four to five weeks for delivery.

Youth Corps Will Get Minimum Wage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department has decided to pay a $1.25 an hour minimum wage to youngsters working in Neighborhood Youth Corps projects under President Johnson's antipoverty program.

Organized labor had pushed for the $1.25 rate.

Thirty-seven projects have been approved in 23 states. The total cost will be $24,395,000. More than 41,000 youths between 16 and 21 are involved.

Forgetfulness Could Mean Disaster in Space

By HAROLD R. WILLIAMS

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — "I forgot" is an old excuse heard everyday by everybody, but if an astronaut deep in space says it — well, he's in trouble.

How to remember not to forget?

Space officials worried about that have awarded Honeywell, Inc., Minneapolis, Minn., a $49,990 contract to find out why people forget.

The Manned Spacecraft Center seeks assurance its astronauts will remember the hundreds of small details needed to keep a spaceship flying and then bring it back to earth.

Believing the solution more complex than tying a piece of string around the astronaut's finger, the space agency asked the Minnesota firm to conduct a five-month study and to list possible memory-helping devices.

The space agency says volumes of material have been gathered about instances of forgetfulness, but most experiments have been in verbal retention rather than sight or perceptual reactions.

There is also a possibility that repeated rehearsals will not be effective in maintaining a specific skill such as re-entry, especially during long duration flights.

The Manned Spacecraft Center suggests the use of a six-pointed star as one device Honeywell could use in the study. It wouldn't necessarily mean this would be the answer for the astronaut in space, however.

Stimulus words would be associated with a color. For instance, the color for the point at the top of the star would be yellow and the tip would be painted yellow.

Words associated with yellow would be 12 o'colck, because of its position in the star, December and the adjective "aloof."

The stimulus words going clockwise would be red, 2 o'clock, blue, 4 o'clock, green, 6 o'clock, purple, 8 o'clok and orange, 10 o'lock. Each would correspond with an even month of the year and an adjective, picked at random.

One experiment would take 64 persons, divided into four equally matched groups, and have each study the star once a week for a given period.

After six weeks without practice, each person would be given a test to see how much he remembered about the different points on the star and words associated with them.

A second experiment would take another four groups of 16 each, but change the star to 12 points with each corresponding to a clock hour.

To add complexity, a color could mean a series response. For instance, red could mean 1 o'clock, 3 o'clock and 5 o'clock. Also, the color would be associations of months and adjectives.

A third experiment would allow the subjects long periods to study the six-pointed star.

After two weeks of no practice, they would be given a practice session before starting the test. A control group would have no such warmup.

Space officials hope the study will turn out a device that an astronaut can look at to jog his memory into doing the right thing at the right time.

"We still might have to go back to that piece of string around the finger," one joked.

Church Council Asks Catholics To Talk Unity

ENUGU, Nigeria (AP) — The World Council of Churches asked the Roman Catholic Church Tuesday night to join it in formal discussions of church unity.

The council, representing 214 member churches of Protestant, Anglican, Orthodox and Catholic faiths, announced at its annual meeting it will set up a working committee for formal consultations with the Vatican.

The committee, "subject to parallel action by the appropriate authorities of the Roman Catholic Church," will have six Roman Catholic members and eight from the council.

The Vatican's two observers at the council meeting, the Rev. Jerome Hamer of Belgium and the Rev. Pierre Duprey of France, termed the council action "a step forward."

"In our opinion," they said in a statement, "the general trend of this report on the relations of the World Council with the Catholic Church is in harmony with the recent decree of the Vatican Council on ecumenism."

Dutch Bishop Jan Willebrands, head of the Vatican Secretariat for Promotion of Unity, was reported to have assisted in the planning for the consultative committee.

However, council officials cautioned against speculation that the theological differences between the council's members and the Roman Catholics could be bridged quickly. Some Orthodox and some evangelical churches appeared lukewarm toward the move for closer contact with Roman Catholicism.

The report approved by the World Council's 100-member Central Committee said the proposed committee would be purely consultative and "would not be able to make any decisions."

The report also noted that the council itself "cannot act for the member churches unless it is specifically authorized to do so."

The report pointed out that the World Council is a "fellowship of many churches with different confessional backgrounds" while the Roman Catholic Church is a single church.

"The committee is a significant step," said one council official, "but it should not be blown up too much, else our individual member churches will feel they are being overruled or bypassed when actually we will be trying to bring them together."

Herter Will Confer About Europe Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Christian A. Herter, President Johnson's special aide for foreign trade matters, plans to confer with European leaders next week in an effort to speed international trade talks, particularly those affecting tariffs and some agricultural products.

An announcement from Herter's office Tuesday said he will review the progress of negotiations started last September under the auspices of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Canal Will Supply Hong Kong Water

HONG KONG (AP) — Communist China says it is rushing completion of a 50-mile canal to supply refugee-packed Hong Kong with water.

Hong Kong's Communist newspaper Ta Kung Pao attributed the rush entirely to Peking's desire to better "the welfare of the Chinese people living in Hong Kong."

Beginning March 1, under an agreement signed last summer, Hong Kong will buy a minimum of 26 million gallons of water a day at 14 cents per 1,000 gallons. That will come to at least $1,430,000 a year.

Not All Bands Made Grade for Inauguration

By J. W. Davis

WASHINGTON (AP) — One hundred and fifty bands and marching units from all over the country asked to get in the inaugural parade.

Forty-two bands and 33 marching units made the grade. So it was not so much a question of, "How do they get so many bands to come?" as it was, "How does a band get in?"

A partial answer: It would help if the state Democratic party chairman had a good opinion of the outfit wanting to make the trip.

The inaugural parade committee bucked to the state party chairmen the job of settling on one band, one float and one marching unit from each state.

Some states distant from Washington elected to stay out, but new rules forbade their being represented by organizations from other states closer to the capital.

A band with connections represented Illinois today. Manned by city firemen, it has for its mascot-leader a 185-pound St. Bernard dog named Omar, who stands in well with Illinois politicians. Omar used to be the property of Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago.

The Sacred Heart High School girl kiltie band of Biloxi, Miss., had a friend in high places — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson. It played for the "Lady Bird Special" train on which Mrs. Johnson campaigned through the South last October.

There was no problem with Virginia — the Highty Tighty band of Virginia Tech stood out from its record of having won three consecutive first-place awards in previous inaugural parades. (No awards are being made this time.) The Highty Tighty band took its name from an early drum major who was called that — meaning "show-off."

Some other parade notes:

The drum major of the United States Military Academy band, M. Sgt. C. E. Conklin, is in a class by himself. He is the only enlisted man in the Army authorized to carry the saber.

The Longhorn band of the University of Texas was formed in 1900 with 16 members whose instruments came from a pawn shop.

Members of the Royal Guard marching unit from Hawaii had never seen the United States mainland before this trip.

The honor guard representing Connecticut dates back to 1771 and claims to be the oldest military organization in continuous existence in the United States. Secure in its great age, it long ago overcame the fact that its first elected comander was Benedict Arnold.

Parents Are Charged In Death of Child

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Robert James Patterson were arrested Tuesday on a grand jury indictment charging them with man slaughter by neglect in the starvation death of a 7½-week old daughter.

The baby died at Mercy Hospital Dec. 29. An autopsy attributed death to malnutrition and dehydration. Records showed she weighed 6 pounds and 12 ounces at birth and a pound less at death.

Patterson is 44, his wife 22. Another child died of malnutrition and pneumonia in December 1962 when it was five months old. They have two other children, 2 and 3.

The parents told police they fed the new baby regularly, but Patterson said he did not always have the money for adequate food. He works for the city as a street cleaner.

Dog With Lung Transplant Thrives

TOKYO (AP) — Doctors at Iwate Medical University in northern Japan reported today that a dog who received a transplanted set of lungs from another dog 18 months ago is still alive and well.

The team headed by Dr. Yuichi Yaegashi, said it has been experimenting with lung transplants on more than 100 dogs.

End of Famed Paulist Choir Is Predicted

By MARGARET SCHERF

CHICAGO (AP) — The swicth in lyrics of Roman Catholic hymns from Latin to Engiish apparently is sounding the end of the famed Paulist Choir.

Worshippers now sing at intervals during the Mass — a function that had been performed by priests and trained vocalists.

The Rev. Eugene F. O'Malley, 63, said Tuesday in an interview he will retire after 37 years as director of the choir, a group of men and boys.

"The liturgical reform movement, with congregational singing and English instead of Latin, seems to have made us unnecessary," Father O'Malley said.

"I doubt that the choir will continue. It's the end of an era."

Since its founding in 1904 at St. Mary's church — the city's oldest Roman Catholic congregation — the 85-voice choir has sung in most major cities of the United States, Canada and Europe.

Audiences have included Pope Pius X, Pope Pius XII, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and the late President John F. Kennedy.

The main purpose of the choir, however, has been to sing the Latin hymns and responses during Mass at St. Mary's.

Because of liturgical changes adopted by the Second Vatican Council, the last Mass to be sung in Latin at St. Mary's will be Feb. 28.

The choir, whose members range in age from 8 to 65, was founded by the Rev. William J. Finn shortly after the Paulist fathers took over St. Mary's.

The parish had become rundown and Father Finn was asked to organize a choir as a means of bringing worshippers back to church.

Father O'Malley began singing with the choir as a red-haired soprano at age 11. Five years later, he went to New York with Father Finn to organize a similar choir. After his ordination as a Paulist priest in 1928, Father O'Malley returned to St. Mary's as choir director.

Thousands of boys have learned to sing under Father O'Malley's guidance.

"I never treated them as children, but as young artists," Father O'Malley said. "I wanted them to learn, above all, loyalty and dedication to art."

Father O'Malley will lead the choir in his farewell concert May 16 in Orchestra Hall.

New Tarzan Will Soon Be Swinging

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A new Tarzan soon will be swinging through the prop man's jungle. He is Mike Henry, 6-foot-3 227-pound linebacker for the Los Angeles Rams.

Producer Sy Weintraub announced Tuesday the selection of Henry for the next screen Tarzan, the 14th since the popular series of films began in 1918.

Said Henry, former Southern California star and a seven-year veteran of the National Football League: "I don't think the other players in the league will kid me about playing Tarzan; they're too busy playing football."

Forgetfulness Could Mean Disaster in Space

By HAROLD R. WILLIAMS

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — "I forgot" is an old excuse heard everyday by everybody, but if an astronaut deep in space says it — well, he's in trouble.

How to remember not to forget?

Space officials worried about that have awarded Honeywell, Inc., Minneapolis, Minn., a $49,990 contract to find out why people forget.

The Manned Spacecraft Center seeks assurance its astronauts will remember the hundreds of small details needed to keep a spaceship flying and then bring it back to earth.

Believing the solution more complex than tying a piece of string around the astronaut's finger, the space agency asked the Minnesota firm to conduct a five-month study and to list possible memory-helping devices.

The space agency says volumes of material have been gathered about instances of forgetfulness, but most experiments have been in verbal retention rather than sight or perceptual reactions.

There is also a possibility that repeated rehearsals will not be effective in maintaining a specific skill such as re-entry, especially during long duration flights.

The Manned Spacecraft Center suggests the use of a six-pointed star as one device Honeywell could use in the study. It wouldn't necessarily mean this would be the answer for the astronaut in space, however.

Stimulus words would be associated with a color. For instance, the color for the point at the top of the star would be yellow and the tip would be painted yellow.

Words associated with yellow would be 12 o'colck, because of its position in the star, December and the adjective "aloof."

The stimulus words going clockwise would be red, 2 o'clock, blue, 4 o'clock, green, 6 o'clock, purple, 8 o'clok and orange, 10 o'lock. Each would correspond with an even month of the year and an adjective, picked at random.

One experiment would take 64 persons, divided into four equally matched groups, and have each study the star once a week for a given period.

After six weeks without practice, each person would be given a test to see how much he remembered about the different points on the star and words associated with them.

A second experiment would take another four groups of 16 each, but change the star to 12 points with each corresponding to a clock hour.

To add complexity, a color could mean a series response. For instance, red could mean 1 o'clock, 3 o'clock and 5 o'clock. Also, the color would be associations of months and adjectives.

A third experiment would allow the subjects long periods to study the six-pointed star.

After two weeks of no practice, they would be given a practice session before starting the test. A control group would have no such warmup.

Space officials hope the study will turn out a device that an astronaut can look at to jog his memory into doing the right thing at the right time.

"We still might have to go back to that piece of string around the finger," one joked.

Church Council Asks Catholics To Talk Unity

ENUGU, Nigeria (AP) — The World Council of Churches asked the Roman Catholic Church Tuesday night to join it in formal discussions of church unity.

The council, representing 214 member churches of Protestant, Anglican, Orthodox and Catholic faiths, announced at its annual meeting it will set up a working committee for formal consultations with the Vatican.

The committee, "subject to parallel action by the appropriate authorities of the Roman Catholic Church," will have six Roman Catholic members and eight from the council.

The Vatican's two observers at the council meeting, the Rev. Jerome Hamer of Belgium and the Rev. Pierre Duprey of France, termed the council action "a step forward."

"In our opinion," they said in a statement, "the general trend of this report on the relations of the World Council with the Catholic Church is in harmony with the recent decree of the Vatican Council on ecumenism."

Dutch Bishop Jan Willebrands, head of the Vatican Secretariat for Promotion of Unity, was reported to have assisted in the planning for the consultative committee.

However, council officials cautioned against speculation that the theological differences between the council's members and the Roman Catholics could be bridged quickly. Some Orthodox and some evangelical churches appeared lukewarm toward the move for closer contact with Roman Catholicism.

The report approved by the World Council's 100-member Central Committee said the proposed committee would be purely consultative and "would not be able to make any decisions."

The report also noted that the council itself "cannot act for the member churches unless it is specifically authorized to do so."

The report pointed out that the World Council is a "fellowship of many churches with different confessional backgrounds" while the Roman Catholic Church is a single church.

"The committee is a significant step," said one council official, "but it should not be blown up too much, else our individual member churches will feel they are being overruled or bypassed when actually we will be trying to bring them together."

Canal Will Supply Hong Kong Water

HONG KONG (AP) — Communist China says it is rushing completion of a 50-mile canal to supply refugee-packed Hong Kong with water.

Hong Kong's Communist newspaper Ta Kung Pao attributed the rush entirely to Peking's desire to better "the welfare of the Chinese people living in Hong Kong."

Beginning March 1, under an agreement signed last summer, Hong Kong will buy a minimum of 28 million gallons of water a day at 14 cents per 1,000 gallons. That will come to at least $1,430,000 a year.

Bill Seeks to Track Down More Old Nazis

BONN, Germany (AP) — A bill to give the West German government another 10 years to track down Nazi murderers has been introduced in Parliament. The present statute of limitations bars new prosecutions in most of West Germany after May 8.

Deputy Ernst Benda of Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's Christian Democratic party expected to be able to gather the 50 signatures required for consideration.

The present 20-year statute is considered to run from the date of the German surrender.

Disguised Cops Don't Even Get Whistle

CHICAGO (AP) — Three policemen traded in their badges for lipsticks, wigs and dresses the last two weekends in an attempt to capture a rapist and a robber in a southern suburb.

They ended up catching nothing. Not even a whistle.

The three members of Sheriff Richard Ogilvie's Cook County police force donned the female apparel and rode in unmarked cars through Orland Park Township.

They not only were totally ignored by the felons, but by the general public too.

Ogilvie ordered the masquerade after a woman was raped near her home and another was robbed. Ironically, a sheriff's officer on regular duty caught an ex-convict who was identified through a photo by the robbery victim. Ogilvie promptly halted the impersonation.

Alleged Red Wins Fight For His Books

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — John W. Stanford Jr. ,bespectacled San Antonio bookkeeper, awaited today the return of some 2,000 books and pamphlets the Supreme Court says were seized illegally.

The state claims the literature is pro-Communist.

Stanford, 40, ordered by the government to register as a Communist, won a year-long court battle Monday when the high court ruled that a search warrant Texas officers used to raid his home violated his constitutional rights.

Justice Department informants testified at a 1963 hearing in Washington, D.C., that Stanford was secretary of the Communist party in Texas.

Stanford refused Monday night "to confirm or deny the charge."

He operates a mail order book store called "All Points of View" in his home and is a bookkeeper at a private firm.

The U.S. Subversive Controls Board issued an order Dec. 26, 1963, for him to register as required by the Subversive Activities Control Act of 1950. He is appealing the order.

"I refuse to register on the basis that this violates the Bill of Rights and endangers the right to belief and associations of all Americans," he told a newsman.

"I said at the time, and I still believe, that the government has no right to tell the citizens what their politics should be. The citizens should tell the government what its politics should be."

State and local officers raided Stanford's modest home in late afternoon Dec. 27, 1963, and carted the literature off in scores of boxes.

Stanford said they "seized all my material to the left of center and left all those to the right of center. I have some ultra-conservative books on hand — they're for sale."

The officers also took a mailing list and other papers, including Stanford's auto and home titles, an insurance policy and some bills.

V. Murray Jordan, an assistant to Texas Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr who participated in the raid, testified in court last year that most of the books confiscated were of a pro-Communist nature.

"Confidential sources said Stanford distributed literature and conducted discussions on a Communist party line," he said.

Dist. Atty. James Barlow of Bexar County apparently has possession of the confiscated material. He said he would wait to read the court's opinion before deciding what action to take.

The Supreme Court's opinion, written by Justice Potter Stewart, held the warrant was invalid because it did not comply with the Constitution in that things to be seized must be described with particularity.

In Austin, Atty. Gen. Carr expressed disappointment.

Under each decision of the U.S. Supreme Court regarding state prosecution of Communists it becomes more difficult to enforce our state laws," he said.

Maury Maverick Jr., a San Antonio lawyer who appeared for the Civil Liberties Union to argue the Stanford case, said he had hoped the Supreme Court also "would declare the Texas Communist control law unlawful."

Nevertheless, Maverick said, he was happy with the decision.

Higher Pay Sought For Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, has introduced legislation to raise the pay of Supreme Court justices. He said he erred last year when he voted to hold down a wage increase for them.

Congress voted last year to raise the pay of all federal judges by $7,500 but the Senate forced a compromise raise of only $4,500 for Supreme Court justices.

Gruening said Tuesday his new legislation would make up the additional $3,000 putting the chief justice's pay at $60,000 and associate justices at $42,500.

Not All Bands Made Grade for Inauguration

By J. W. Davis

WASHINGTON (AP) — One hundred and fifty bands and marching units from all over the country asked to get in the inaugural parade.

Forty-two bands and 33 marching units made the grade. So it was not so much a question of, "How do they get so many bands to come?" as it was, "How does a band get in?"

A partial answer: It would help if the state Democratic party chairman had a good opinion of the outfit wanting to make the trip.

The inaugural parade committee bucked to the state party chairmen the job of settling on one band, one float and one marching unit from each state.

Some states distant from Washington elected to stay out, but new rules forbade their being represented by organizations from other states closer to the capital.

A band with connections represented Illinois today. Manned by city firemen, it has for its mascot-leader a 185-pound St. Bernard dog named Omar, who stands in well with Illinois politicians. Omar used to be the property of Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago.

The Sacred Heart High School girl kilte band of Biloxi, Miss., had a friend in high places — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson. It played for the "Lady Bird Special" train on which Mrs. Johnson campaigned through the South last October.

There was no problem with Virginia — the Highty Tighty band of Virginia Tech stood out from its record of having won three consecutive first-place awards in previous inaugural parades. (No awards are being made this time.) The Highty Tighty band took its name from an early drum major who was called that — meaning "show-off."

Some other parade notes:

The drum major of the United States Military Academy band, M. Sgt. C. E. Conklin, is in a class by himself. He is the only enlisted man in the Army authorized to carry the saber.

The Longhorn band of the University of Texas was formed in 1900 with 16 members whose instruments came from a pawn shop.

Members of the Royal Guard marching unit from Hawaii had never seen the United States mainland before this trip.

The honor guard representing Connecticut dates back to 1771 and claims to be the oldest military organization in continuous existence in the United States. Secure in its great age, it long ago overcame the fact that its first elected comander was Benedict Arnold.

Parents Are Charged In Death of Child

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Robert James Patterson were arrested Tuesday on a grand jury indictment charging them with manslaughter by neglect in the starvation death of a 7½-week old daughter.

The baby died at Mercy Hospital Dec. 29. An autopsy attributed death to malnutrition and dehydration. Records showed she weighed 6 pounds and 12 ounces at birth and a pound less at death.

Patterson is 44, his wife 22. Another child died of malnutrition and pneumonia in December 1962 when it was five months old. They have two other children, 2 and 3.

The parents told police they fed the new baby regularly, but Patterson said he did not always have the money for adequate food. He works for the city as a street cleaner.

Dog With Lung Transplant Thrives

TOKYO (AP) — Doctors at Iwate Medical University in northern Japan reported today that a dog who received a transplanted set of lungs from another dog 18 months ago is still alive and well.

End of Famed Paulist Choir Is Predicted

By MARGARET SCHERF

CHICAGO (AP) — The swicth in lyrics of Roman Catholic hymns from Latin to English apparently is sounding the end of the famed Paulist Choir.

Worshippers now sing at intervals during the Mass — a function that had been performed by priests and trained vocalists.

The Rev. Eugene F. O'Malley, 63, said Tuesday in an interview he will retire after 37 years as director of the choir, a group of men and boys.

"The liturgical reform movement, with congregational singing and English instead of Latin, seems to have made us unnecessary," Father O'Malley said.

"I doubt that the choir will continue. It's the end of an era."

Since its founding in 1904 at St. Mary's church — the city's oldest Roman Catholic congregation — the 85-voice choir has sung in most major cities of the United States, Canada and Europe.

Audiences have included Pope Pius X, Pope Pius XII, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and the late President John F. Kennedy.

The main purpose of the choir, however, has been to sing the Latin hymns and responses during Mass at St. Mary's.

Because of liturgical changes adopted by the Second Vatican Council, the last Mass to be sung in Latin at St. Mary's will be Feb. 28.

The choir, whose members range in age from 8 to 65, was founded by the Rev. William J. Finn shortly after the Paulist fathers took over St. Mary's.

The parish had become rundown and Father Finn was asked to organize a choir as a means of bringing worshippers back to church.

Father O'Malley began singing with the choir as a red-haired soprano at age 11. Five years later, he went to New York with Father Finn to organize a similar choir. After his ordination as a Paulist priest in 1928, Father O'Malley returned to St. Mary's as choir director.

Thousands of boys have learned to sing under Father O'Malley's guidance.

"I never treated them as children, but as young artists," Father O'Malley said. "I wanted them to learn, above all, loyalty and dedication to art."

Father O'Malley will lead the choir in his farewell concert May 16 in Orchestra Hall.

New Tarzan Will Soon Be Swinging

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A new Tarzan soon will be swinging through the prop man's jungle. He is Mike Henry, 6-foot-3 227-pound linebacker for the Los Angeles Rams.

Producer Sy Weintraub announced Tuesday the selection of Henry for the next screen Tarzan, the 14th since the popular series of films began in 1918.

Said Henry, former Southern California star and a seven-year veteran of the National Football League: "I don't think the other players in the league will kid me about playing Tarzan; they're too busy playing football."

Cliffie Gives Up Try At Harvard College

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A Radcliffe College girl has given up formally her attempt to become the first female senior class marshal in the 329-year history of Harvard College.

Faye Levine, 20, of Peekskill, N.Y., said Wednesday she received many write-in votes in preliminary student balloting Monday, but "the administration has absolutely squelched the student vote."

"But I feel that I've won in a way," she said. "I feel the Harvard University Council of Undergraduate Affairs (which refused to honor her votes) is wrong and I think the point I tried to make is made."

The senior class marshal leads the procession at Harvard commencement exercises.

Among those planning to attend the ceremonies were Freeman's widow, his daughter and the widow's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Clark Jr. of Orange, Conn., and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Freeman of Lewes, Del.

The astronaut's daughter, Faith Huntington Freeman, 10, will be given a scholarship by Dr. William H. Hinton, president of the college.

Bill Seeks to Track Down More Old Nazis

BONN, Germany (AP) — A bill to give the West German government another 10 years to track down Nazi murderers has been introduced in Parliament. The present statute of limitations bars new prosecutions in most of West Germany after May 8.

Deputy Ernst Benda of Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's Christian Democratic party expected to be able to gather the 50 signatures required for consideration.

The present 20-year statute is considered to run from the date of the German surrender.

Disguised Cops Don't Even Get Whistle

CHICAGO (AP) — Three policemen traded in their badges for lipsticks, wigs and dresses the last two weekends in an attempt to capture a rapist and a robber in a southern suburb.

They ended up catching nothing. Not even a whistle.

The three members of Sheriff Richard Ogilvie's Cook County police force donned the female apparel and rode in unmarked cars through Orland Park Township.

They not only were totally ignored by the felons, but by the general public too.

Ogilvie ordered the masquerade after a woman was raped near her home and another was robbed. Ironically, a sheriff's officer on regular duty caught an ex-convict who was identified through a photo by the robbery victim. Ogilvie promptly halted the impersonation.

Alleged Red Wins Fight For His Books

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — John W. Stanford Jr. ,bespectacled San Antonio bookkeeper, awaited today the return of some 2,000 books and pamphlets the Supreme Court says were seized illegally.

The state claims the literature is pro-Communist.

Stanford, 40, ordered by the government to register as a Communist, won a year-long court battle Monday when the high court ruled that a search warrant Texas officers used to raid his home violated his constitutional rights.

Justice Department informants testified at a 1963 hearing in Washington, D.C., that Stanford was secretary of the Communist party in Texas.

Stanford refused Monday night "to confirm or deny the charge."

He operates a mail order book store called "All Points of View" in his home and is a bookkeeper at a private firm.

The U.S. Subversive Controls Board issued an order Dec. 26, 1963, for him to register as required by the Subversive Activities Control Act of 1950. He is appealing the order.

"I refuse to register on the basis that this violates the Bill of Rights and endangers the right to belief and associations of all Americans," he told a newsman.

"I said at the time, and I still believe, that the government has no right to tell the citizens what their politics should be. The citizens should tell the government what its politics should be."

State and local officers raided Stanford's modest home in late afternoon Dec. 27, 1963, and carted the literature off in scores of boxes.

Stanford said they "seized all my material to the left of center and left all those to the right of center. I have some ultra-conservative books on hand — they're for sale."

The officers also took a mailing list and other papers, including Stanford's auto and home titles, an insurance policy and some bills.

V. Murray Jordan, an assistant to Texas Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr who participated in the raid, testified in court last year that most of the books confiscated were of a pro-Communist nature.

"Confidential sources said Stanford distributed literature and conducted discussions on a Communist party line," he said.

Dist. Atty. James Barlow of Bexar County apparently has possession of the confiscated material. He said he would wait to read the court's opinion before deciding what action to take.

The Supreme Court's opinion, written by Justice Potter Stewart, held the warrant was invalid because it did not comply with the Constitution in that things to be seized must be described with particularity.

In Austin, Atty. Gen. Carr expressed disappointment.

Under each decision of the U.S. Supreme Court regarding state prosecution of Communists it becomes more difficult to enforce our state laws," he said.

Maury Maverick Jr., a San Antonio lawyer who appeared for the Civil Liberties Union to argue the Stanford case, said he had hoped the Supreme Court also "would declare the Texas Communist control law unlawful."

Nevertheless, Maverick said, he was happy with the decision.

Higher Pay Sought For Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, has introduced legislation to raise the pay of Supreme Court justices. He said he erred last year when he voted to hold down a wage increase for them.

Congress voted last year to raise the pay of all federal judges by $7,500 but the Senate forced a compromise raise of only $4,000 for Supreme Court justices.

Gruening said Tuesday his new legislation would make up the additional $3,500 putting the chief justice's pay at $39,500 and associate justices at $42,500.

Picture Should Harmonize With Frame

By MARGERY McELHENY

CHICAGO (UPI) — A picture frame serves as a support for the picture and also as the connecting link between the picture and the wall.

The picture is the center of attention, so the frame should never be so heavy or dramatic that it overpowers the picture.

The frame should focus attention on the picture and draw the eye to the center of interest in the picture. It should harmonize in color and weight with the subject matter and strengthen the composition it frames, never dominate it.

The frame should surround, but not halt, the movement of color and line in the picture. When necessary, it should create an illusion of depth, size or added perspective to the picture.

Traditional picture frames are highly carved or composition copies of "period" frames. They are elaborate and ornamental styles usually finished in metal or gold leaf. In more formal styles, the frames may be finished in rich mahogany or walnut.

Provincial styles rely on the effect of grain and coloring of natural wood for their charm and warmth. Maple, oak or chestnut are used primarily in raw, waxed, lightly stained, or antiqued finish.

Contemporary frames usually are finished in solid tones or with a patterned finishing material.

The selection of a frame depends on the style of the picture. A traditional frame, for example, blends well with a painting of rich coloring and formal subject matter such as the "'old masters."

Provincial style frames are best with fruit and floral prints, still lifes and primitives. Modern frames set off 20th century French and American art with their large bold color areas and dynamic forms.

Oil paintings and reproductions should be framed "close" after the print has been mounted. This means that the edge of the frame should be brought directly to the edge of the picture as opposed to separating the picture and the frame by use of a mat and glass.

The frame should be wide enough to balance the picture effectively. An 8 x 18 inch picture, for example, requires a frame at least one inch wide.

Detailed paintings, or those with many separate brush strokes will look best in frames which are finished in subdued colors or which carry very fine ornamentation. Paintings with large, quiet surfaces can use a carved frame or one with ornamental or textural effects.

Cliffie Gives Up Try At Harvard College

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A Radcliffe College girl has given up formally her attempt to become the first female senior class marshal in the 329-year history of Harvard College.

Faye Levine, 20, of Peekskill, N.Y., said Wednesday she received many write-in votes in preliminary student balloting Monday, but "the administration has absolutely squelched the student vote."

"But I feel that I've won in a way," she said. "I feel the Harvard University Council of Undergraduate Affairs (which refused to honor her votes) is wrong and I think the point I tried to make is made."

The senior class marshal leads the procession at Harvard commencement exercises.

Library Named in Honor of Astronaut

He was drafted at the Houston winter meetings for $12,000.

Peyton Place Criticized For Its Theme

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Ever since ABC's evening dramatic serial, "Peyton Place," turned into one of the season's hit shows there have been rumblings about its spicy, daring theme.

The trade paper Variety coined a new word "Sexial," for the serial and reported that in at least one community a movement is under way to persuade the local television station to discontinue it.

"Peyton Place" does have some situations rarely encountered in "The Donna Reed Show" or "The Munsters."

But the ripples caused by the show's plots and subplots could only have been made by persons unaware of what has been going on for years in the daytime serials.

A friend who keeps an eye on a half dozen of them finds "Peyton Place" pretty mild stuff. In one of the daily diversions, a girl graduate of reform school and prison has married a nice young man for money but continues to have an affair with the thief with whom she once lived and by whom she is having a child.

In another, a girl in love with fellow who was recently acquitted of murdering his wife lost the child she was having by him.

In another the characters have had affairs, divorces illegitimate children and been subjected to more savage assaults. Scattered through most have been murder trials.

"Peyton Place" characters, is measured by the daytime soap opera yardstick, obviously are about as naughty as Elsie Dinsmore.

Maybe the critics had better take a look at day-time television before they get too excited about the evening version of the classic soap opera.

"That Was the Week That Was," after several pretty dreary weeks turned in a bright, fresh and most amusing show on NBC Tuesday night. The topical wisecracks were funny and so were the musical numbers.

This is the great day for the Democrats and the television networks as Lyndon B. Johnson is inaugurated and the networks plan to cover it from stem to stern. CBS also plans to offer something to the Republicans. It will have cameras and a reporter at a "Losers' Ball" which some Republicans are throwing while the winners attend the inaugural balls.

The frame should focus attention on the picture and draw the eye to the center of interest in the picture. It should harmonize in color and weight with the subject matter and strengthen the composition it frames, never dominate it.

The frame should surround, but not halt, the movement of color and line in the picture. When necessary, it should create an illusion of depth, size or added perspective to the picture.

Traditional picture frames are highly carved or composition copies of "period" frames. They are elaborate and ornamental styles usually finished in metal or gold leaf. In more formal styles, the frames may be finished in rich mahogany or walnut.

Provincial styles rely on the effect of grain and coloring of natural wood for their charm and warmth. Maple, oak or chestnut are used primarily in raw, waxed, lightly stained, or antiqued finish.

Contemporary frames usually are finished in solid tones or with a patterned finishing material.

The selection of a frame depends on the style of the picture. A traditional frame, for example, blends well with a painting of rich coloring and formal subject matter such as the "'old masters."

Provincial style frames are best with fruit and floral prints, still lifes and primitives. Modern frames set off 20th century French and American art with their large bold color areas and dynamic forms.

Oil paintings and reproductions should be framed "close" after the print has been mounted. This means that the edge of the frame should be brought directly to the edge of the picture as opposed to separating the picture and the frame by use of a mat and glass.

The frame should be wide enough to balance the picture effectively. An 8 x 18 inch picture, for example, requires a frame at least one inch wide.

Detailed paintings, or those with many separate brush strokes will look best in frames which are finished in subdued colors or which carry very fine ornamentation. Paintings with large, quiet surfaces can use a carved frame or one with ornamental or textural effects.

Winning CC Takes on Swift Regis

DENVER — Colorado College goes after its second victory of the week and third of the season here tonight when the Tigers meet once-powerful Regis College at the Regis Field House Game time is 8:05 p.m.

Red Eastlack's youthful CC squad will carry their familiar role of underdogs into the contest but an upset is far from out of the question. The Tigers snapped a seven game losing streak Tuesday night with a 47-39 win over Colorado Mines and after that feat the team must feel that almost anyting is possible.

Tonight's foe will be of a completely different variety than the slow-down Miners. Regis prefers the swift gait, as demonstrated in the Raiders' latest misfortune Tuesday night. Southern Colorado State from Pueblo gunned down the Denver school, 97-79, in that one.

The defeat left Regis with a 3-4 record for the campaign, but the club is expected to improve during the weeks to come. Following the holiday layoff, four new players reported to the squad, including 6-4 Jim Loehr and 6-5 Jack Coyne, a pair of former Regis High stars. Bob Scheck, a 6-3 former Mt. Carmel High player, and 6-5 Darrell Mudd of St. Joseph's, Mo. were other additions to the squad.

Coach Mick Pahl, who took over this year after Joe Hall departed the Regis job following the school's announced deemphasis of the sport, will probably start Jon Rapp, Jay Coakley, Roger Harris, Tony Reed, and Joe Kaveney.

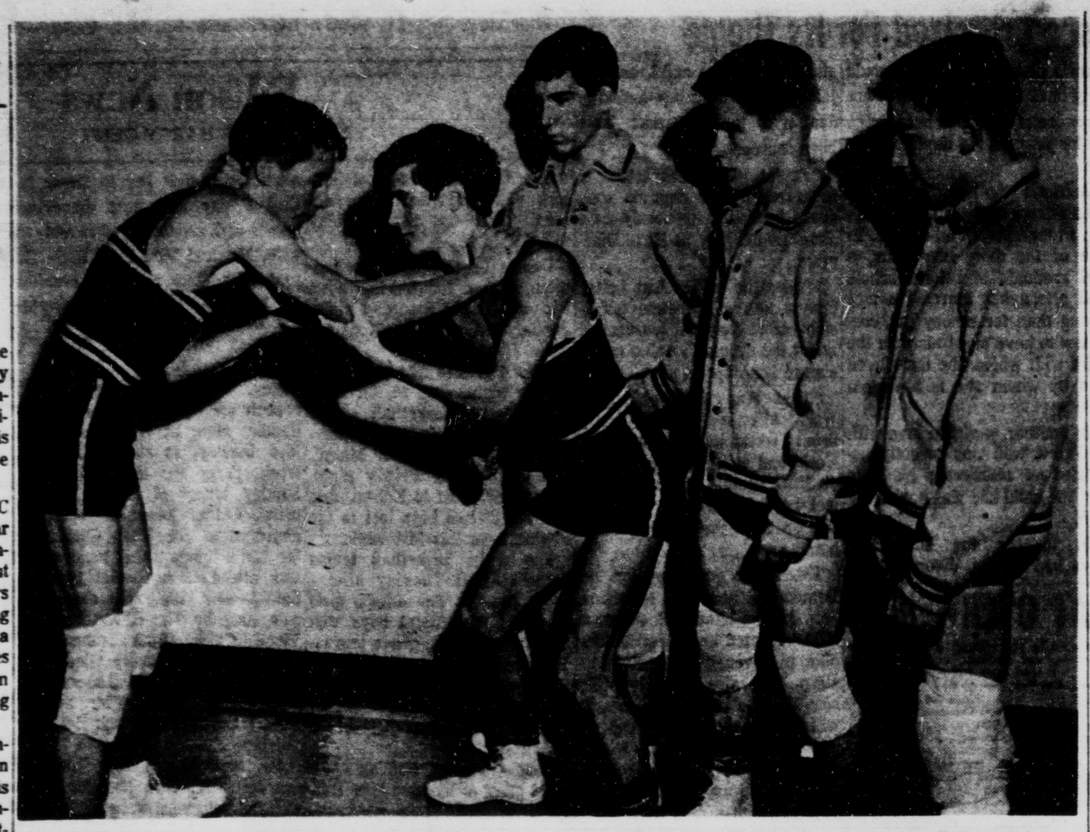
Eastlack, who has seen his Tigers improve steadily in recent weeks, will probably go with a lineup of Dave Herrington and Steve Schilder at guards, and Phil LeCuyer, Pete Susemihl, and Christ Grant on the front line.

Ortega-Wells Bout Disputed

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — A disputed decision in the Gaspar Ortega-Marshall Wells fight may be taken today to the Texas Boxing Commission at Austin for a final ruling.

Ortega, ranked as the world's No. 9 welterweight, was declared the winner after Wednesday night's bout on the basis that he received a total of 285 points from the three judges compared to 283 for Wells, who was unranked.

But the outcome was thrown into confusion when the decision was protested on the basis of a Texas Boxing Commission rule which states that if the judges cannot agree, the bout must be declared a draw.



READY FOR THE JAPANESE — Five of Wasson's top wrestlers are shown prior to a workout earlier this week as the team prepared for a meeting with unbeaten Pueblo East tonight and for Saturday night's battle with the Japanese All-Stars at the Palmer Gymnasium. Wasson and Palmer will each have four wrestlers in the meet with the Japanese team. Representing Wasson will be, from left: either Ed Abeyta or Terry Remy who will wrestle-off Friday to decide the T-Bird at 115 pounds; Paul Briggs at 136, Jim Ranals at 123, and Archie Martinez at 130. T-Birds, Eagles Battle For League Mat Lead

Wasson and Pueblo East decide the South Central League wrestling leadership tonight at the Wasson Gymnasium in what promises to be one of the finest mat events to ever be held here. Starting time for both the varsity and "B" matches will be 7:30.

Following close on the heels of the South Central League dispute will be a Friday night struggle between Harrison and Canon City that will determine first place in the Will Rogers League. That meet is scheduled for Canon City at 7:30.

Those two attractions will be tops in a busy weekend of conference action. In addition to the Wasson-East meeting, Palmer will host Pueblo South and Centennial will tangle with Central in other SCL battles tonight. East hosts Pueblo County Friday in the lone non-league activity of the week.

Friday's WRL schedule will have Cheyenne Mountain hosting Widefield, as well as the Harrison-Canon City meet. Saturday Academy High goes to Cheyenne and Harrison will journey to Widefield.

Then, to cap the bustling week end of mat activity, a combined Wasson and Palmer eight-man team will meet the undefeated Japanese All-Stars in an 8 p.m. attraction at the Palmer Gymnasium. The Japanese team won its seventh triumph of the current tour Wednesdy night, defeating Englewood 29-2. The only mar on the visitors' record is a tie with Grand Junction. Tuesday night they met Boulder before 4,200 fans at the Colorado University Field House, the largest crowd to ever watch a dual high school meet in the state's history.

Wasson and East will both place undefeated marks on the line tonight in what figures to be a torrid struggle for the SCL leadership. The Thunderbirds have won eight straight dual meets this winter and also captured their own quadrangular in January. Wasson's record includes league triumphs over Palmer, Trinidad, and Pueblo Centennial and non-conference wins over Cherry Creek, Aurora Central, Fort Collins and South Denver.

East has an 8-0 mark and just last week edged strong Pueblo South to remain in a tie for the league leadership. Also numbered among Eagle victims are Centennnal and Fruita. The later team is the defending Division I state champion.

The Eagles will bring three unbeaten wrestlers to the Springs. George Beck at 112 is 7-0 and he will battle another undefeated star in Wasson's Ed Abeyta who has six straight to his credit. Don Gibbs at 180 and heavyweight Don Montoya are also unbeaten for the Eagles.

Abeyta is Wasson's only undefeated wrestler, but the Thunderbirds have impressive performers elsewhere as well. Yogi Grandcourt, a three-year star, is 11-1 at 165 pounds. Jim Ranals has a 7-1 mark at 120 and Paul Briggs is 8-2 at 133.

Palmer heavyweight, Ron Smith, who has lost only once in 12 starts will lead that team against the powerful Colts. That match is also scheduled for 7:30 tonight and will be held at the Palmer Gymnasium.

Worsley Winning Back Old Job With Montreal

About 15 months ago an injured Gump Worsley lost his job as Montreal goalie to Charlie Hodge. After five days, Worsley has won back possibly more than half a share of it.

The Canadiens recorded their third straight triumph 2-1 over Toronto Wednesday night, all of the victories having come with Worsley in the net. The decision enabled first-place Montreal to maintain its two-point margin over Chicago in the National Hockey League.

The Black Hawks trounced Boston 7-1 in the other game.

The Canadiens acquired Worsley in 1963 after he had spent 10 seasons with the New York Rangers. He started the 1963-64 season for Montreal but was hurt in the eighth game. When he recovered, he was sent to Quebec of the American League while Hodge guarded the net regularly.

But Worsley was recalled to Montreal last Saturday so Hodge could receive a rest. In three games, Worsley has allowed five goals, and the Canadiens have moved from two points behind the Black Hawks to two points in front.

Coach Toe Blake said he would platoon Hodge and Worsley the remainder of the season. But if Worsley continues his torrid pay,l he may do better than an play, he may do better than an even split.

The only goal Toronto got against him Wednesday night was Jim Pappin's in the second period. Montreal, however, already had a 2-0 lead on goals by Claude Larose and Dick Duff earlier in the period.

The Bruins' goalie, Ed Johnston, never had a chance against the Black Hawks, who tallied three times within the first 8½ minutes. Stan Mikita scored one of the goals and added another in the third period.

Bobby Hull fired in his 37th goal of the season in the second period, leaving him with 28 games in which to score 14 goals for a league record.

Broncos Get Haynes In Trade

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Swift, tricky Abner Haynes — who thought he had proved to the Kansas City Chiefs that the day of the 190-pound running back isn't over — was traded to Denver Wednesday for linebacker Jim Fraser.

Haynes, the first big name in the American Football League, was named the AFL's Comeback of the Year last fall by the Associated Press. After a bad season in 1963 — the club's first in Kansas City — Haynes came back with 713 yards and a 5.2 average, plus several long runs.

It's no secret, however, the Chiefs still regarded his 190-pound size a drawback in an era of 225-pound backs and 245-pound linebackers. More important, they needed linebacking after E. J. Holub's knee operation. Kansas City received an undisclosed amount of cash in the trade.

Fraser, 6-3 and 236, is an excellent linebacking and outstanding punter. He has led the AFL in punting two straight years, and set an AFL record of 46.1. He's a four-year veteran from Wisconsin and 28 years old.

Haynes, 27, a North Texas State graduate, said in Dallas he was delighted about the trade. He said "I think it will be better for me and for Kansas City."

Haynes said he had asked the Chiefs to trade him unless he could be utilized as he thought he should be. He didn't elaborate, but he has often said he must carry the ball often "to stay hot." He carried 137 times last season, only 99 in '63, compared to 21 in 1962.

"I'm satisfied Denver will play a man on his ability," he said.

Denver Coach Mac Speedie said, "We're getting a great one in Abner and he will be used as a running back. This shows we're doing everything possible to build a good team."

Speedie added the Broncos are still trying to obtain a proven tight end.

Pone Kingpetch Won't Budge From Terms

BANGKOK (AP) — World flyweight champion Pone Kingpetch of Thailand refused today to budge from terms he has set for a proposed title defense against Italian challenger Salvatore Burruni.

Hiran Sidokbuab, the champion's brother and manager, told the Associated Press Pone's conditions had the approval of the World Boxing Council.

The terms include a purse of $50,000 taxfree, expenses and air fare to Italy for three persons, two black and white copies of the fight movie and a three-man jury headed by a Mexican referee.

Reports from Rome said Nino Tommasi, Italian promoter organizing the fight, had agreed to the purse but had expressed reservations about a three-man jury and about the two film copies.

The Thais have proposed the bout be staged in Italy in early March.

Burruni will have to decide and agree to these terms" Hiran said. "We can't wait for him indefinitely."

He said that if a contract forwarded to the Italians Wednesday was not signed "within a reasonable time, we'll have to start looking for other contenders."

Negotiations for the Pone-Burruni match have been underway since last October. They were stalled for months over the composition of the jury, an argument that was finally resolved.

Rough Battle Expected As Tigers Meet Wolves

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

"Anybody that's not aggressive out there will be finding himself a seat on the bench. It's what I've told my players, and I'm going to stick with it."

So spoke Colorado College's Coach Bob Johnson as he continued to work the Tiger hockey team hard this week, trying to get ready to meet the burly defending NCAA champions from the University of Michigan. The teams meet this Friday and Saturday nights at the Broadmoor World Arena, game time set for 8:15 p.m. both days.

"Some of our guys got roughed up quite a bit last year when we played at Ann Arbor," Johnson continued. "But they're determined to hold their own this year and I personally feel they can beat them."

Michigan, undoubtedly one of the biggest teams to ever don skates in schoolboy competition, has built a reputation of playing roughneck style and more than a few opponents in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association have felt the welts when bumping the Wolverines. But Johnson says his Tigers won't be backing off from any of the visitors this weekend.

Although Michigan has almost a roster-ful of 200 pounders that like to intimidate the opposition, probably the most savage of the lot is defenseman Tom Polonic, a monster of a man and voted the league's top sophomore a year ago while rating among the leaders in both scoring and penalties.

"I'll tell you right now, though, we're not going to get pushed around on the ice this weekend," Johnson said. "They're as tough as ever, but I think a few of their players are more concerned with hurting someone than playing good hockey and if they try a lot of that rough stuff my kids have the ability to skate right around 'em and they're liable to be seeing quite a few goals."

Michigan lost fairly heavily through graduation last June, with the key losses being All-League selections in goalie Bob Gray and center Gordon Wilkie. But they also picked up several fine sophomores who will be in action against the Tigers.

The most notable loss to the Wolverines was Gray, in goal. Taking his place has been sophomore Greg Page of St. Paul, Minn., but whereas Gray was second in the league a year ago in goals allowed, Page has let in nearly six per game to rank last in the WCHA so far.

Michigan, though, still has a power-laden attack and this weekend's double dip has all the appearance of a high scoring series. Pacing the Wolves so far have been a quartet who have been averaging a point a game in league activity: centers Mel Wakabayashi and Wilfred Martin, and wingers Pierre Dechaine and Alex Hood.

In games thus far, Michigan has already lost twice as many in the WCHA as they did all last season. The Wolverines finished up with a 12-2 record last year (21-3 overall) to top the final standings, but then they lost to runnerup Denver in the playoffs for the official league title, and then came back to dump Denver in the NCAA finals. This year Michigan has a 2-4 league mark and 8-5-1 overall.

Last weekend Michigan had a bye in league action, but twice defeated Duluth, Minn., 6-5 and 4-2. Duluth, earlier, pinned two of the losses on CC's record in games at Colorado Springs.

While Michigan will be fighting for its life here this Friday and Saturday, trying desperately to remain in the running for one of the four allotted playoff berths at the end of the season, CC will also have its back to the wall.

The Tigers currently stand in a tie for last place with Denver, on 1-3 records in WCHA, and Johnson's Bengals can ill afford many more defeats and still harbor hopes of the playoffs. After taking Michigan State 3-1 last Friday, had CC swept the series instead of dropping a 10-3 decion to State on Saturday, the Tigers would now be sitting in third place. The league is that close this season.

As is, CC will be facing Michigan's national champs this weekend and then next weekend the Tigers meet Denver in a home-and-home series. Although Denver rests at the bottom of the standings along with Colorado College, no one is taking the Pioneers lightly and they are still just as strong as when observers tabbed them co-favorites with North Dakota to win the title.

Other games this weekend will have Denver playing host to third place Michigan Tech, both desperate not to add any more to their three losses in the current standings; and Minnesota will try to solidify its second place slot in a visit to Michigan State. League-leading North Dakota, after its sweep against Denver last weekend, will be idle and assured the top spot.

Johnson said he may do a little switching on one of his line combinations before the Michigan set, but this week the CC coach has been mainly concerned with healing some of the bumps and bruises picked up in the games with Michigan State. None of the CC injuries are very serious, but all could hamper the Tigers against the strong-armed Wolverines.

Causing the most worry has been the aching back of senior center Warren Fordyce, who continues to rank second in the CC team scoring. A "marked man" against Michigan State, Fordyce was roughed up considerably by the Spartans but still should be able to play at near full speed this week.

Oddly enough, all three regular line combinations are listed right together in team scoring this week. Fordyce's threesome with wings Bob Magie and Glen Blumer are 1-2-3 in scoring; the sophomore line of wings Bob Lindberg and John Genz around center Jim Amidon follow closely in 4-5-6; and the "St. Paul" line of Dave Peterson, Jeff Sauer and Steve Ebert are next on the list.

Johnson said he would start Bill Howard in goal for Friday's encounter, and then Saturday's goalie would depend on how Howard performed with Mike Carter standing ready. Howard was sharp in last week's 3-1 win over Michigan State, and then Carter started and Howard had to relieve in Saturday's 10-3 defeat.

Wildcats Drop Kansas To Fourth in Big Eight

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tex Winter's Kansas State Wildcats have climbed back into the Big Eight title picture, evened the score with Kansas and perhaps have given the rest of the league an idea on how to handle 6-foot-11 Walt Wesley.

K-State whipped the Jayhawks 71-63 before 12,000 Wednesday night at Manhattan, getting revenge for a defeat by Kansas in the semifinals of the Big Eight Holiday Tournament.

Wesley scored 30 points in the Kansas defeat, and future Jayhawk foes doubtless will study this fact. Instead of a sagging zone defense, Winter used an aggressive man-to-man defense, with no double-teaming of Wesley.

The K-State coach operated under the theory that Wesley will get 25-30 points no matter what you do. He concentrated on stopping the other Jayhawks — and succeeded. They had only eight goals combined.

Of course, not many teams have a 6-foot-10 pivot like K-State's Roy Smith. He made the difference in the game, with 25 points and 14 rebounds to 10 for Wesley.

The defeat dropped Kansas to fourth place with a 3-2 league record, a half game ahead of K-State's 2-2. Oklahoma State is on top with 3-0 and Colorado and Missouri are tied at 2-1.

Oklahoma State plays Nebraska Saturday at Lincoln, where the Huskers have upset OSU two straight years by one point. Kansas meets last-place Iowa State in an afternoon television contest at Lawrence, starting at 1:30 p.m., CST. Oklahoma meets Northern Michigan at Norman in the other game.

The K-State victory kept it a hot five - team championship race.

It was the most decisive defeat of the season for the Jayhawks, now 11-5. They had lost four games by a combined margin of 11 points.

At halftime, the handwriting was on the wall for Ted Owens and his club. Wesley had 20 points, with 9-for-11 from the field, and Kansas hit 57 per cent to K-State's 37, but the Wildcats led 36-33.

Smith had 15 points in the last half. Kansas suffered through an eight-minute stretch without a field goal but hit 10 straight foul shots to stay in the game. The victory evens Winter's personal record at 14-14 against Kansas but was K-State's 57th in the 153-game series.

24th Annual Bing Crosby Tourney Gets Underway

By BOB MYERS

PEBBLE BEACH (AP) — Bing Crosby's 24th annual Golf Tournament, a rather massive assault on the imagination in a four-day run that presents 174 professionals and an equal number of amateurs, got under way Thursday.

The Crosby is a highlight fixture on the winter tournament tour. It features 72-hole performances for the pros, tied in with 54 holes for the pro-am teams, for a total purse of $84,500. It is staged over three golf courses in this showplace country of the Monterey Peninsula.

It also features at least one, if not four, days of extraordinary weather, ranging from rain, snow and wind to beautiful skies of blue. No sane person would dare predict elements from day-to-day on any of the three courses.

Tony Lema is here to defend his 1964 triumph, one he achieved with a total score of 284. Considering a storm on the final day last year, Tony's 76 practically blistered Pebble Beach's challenge.

The two winners of the tournament thus far on the 1965 circuit are Paul Harney, who won the Los Angeles Open, and Wes Ellis Jr., the SankDiego winner. Also present is National Open champion Ken Venturi.

Also rejoining the tour was Arnold Palmer and making his 1965 debut, Jack Nicklaus.

Lema's 1964 finish was not unusual for a final round. There was the year of 1962 when the final round was postponed entirely. There was so much snow they had to cancel it and play it the following Monday.

The three-day, three-ring circus is played over the huge shore course of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club, par 36-35—71, a stroke more since it was redone from last year. Then there is the par 37-35—72 Cypress Point Club, and the giant of them all, Pebble Beach, par 36-36—72.

The final two rounds, which will be nationally televised, will be payed at Pebble Beach.

Cypress boasts the treacherous over-the-ocean 16th hole, where the late Porky Oliver once took a 16. Pebble Beach acquired further renown last year when Palmer hit into the ocean and rocks and came out with a 9 on the par 3 hole.

Nicklaus is playing in his first tournament of the year after winning the Canada Cup matches for the United States on Maui Island in Hawaii in early December.

Neither Palmer nor Nicklaus figured in the 1964 Crosby. In fact, they didn't make the cut after the third round when the field was slashed to scores of 220 or better.

The pro-am totals are based on the best ball score hole-by-hole. The individual pro scores are tallied for the full 72 holes.

Hockey Blue Line Club Set For Meeting This Friday

The season's second meeting of the Blue Line Club, a group composed of ice hockey fans and coaches from throughout the region, will be held this Friday noon at the Beef 'N Bird Restaurant, 1815 S. Nevada Ave. This is a new site from last week's initial meeting.

Coach Al Renfrew of the University of Michigan, defending NCAA champion, will be the featured guest. Renfrew is in his eighth year as coach of the Wolverines, who play Colorado College this weekend at the Broadmoor World Arena.

A protege of Vic Heyliger, now of Colorado Springs, Renfrew has had considerable success since taking over for Heyliger and his team is rated one of the best in the country this season.

There will be a committee meeting just prior to the regular session to draft recommendations for the operation and future plans of the Blue Line Club. Wes Bradley will act as master of cermonies for the luncheon meetings, each Friday before a home CC game.

In addition, all Young America Hockey League players are invited guests of Colorado College and the World Arena this Friday for the series opener with Michigan. This is in connection with Youth Hockey Week which will be celebrated nationally, Jan. 23-31.

Two five-minute exhibition games will be played between periods of the CC-Michigan game on Friday. The Jaycee Monarchs of the PeeWee division of YAL will play the Cheyenne Beavers between the first and second periods, and the Kiwanis Flyers of the Bantam division will take on the Elks Hawks between the second and third periods.

YAL players are required to wear their team jerseys and enter by the side gate to be admitted to the Friday game.

SAUD RECOVERING

VIENNA (UPI) — Former King Saud of Saudi Arabia has recovered from a serious kidney ailment and is ready to leave a Vienna clinic, it was reported Wednesday. Saud, 62, entered the clinic Jan. 6.

ANOTHER COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Frank Carpin, former Notre Dame athlete, may confuse a lot of people next season. Columbus of the International League drafted him from the Columbus, Ga., roster.

The southpaw pitcher goes from the Yankee chain to the Pittsburgh Pirate system. In 1964, Carpin compiled a 5-3 record at Richmond, Va., in the International League. He started only two games but led the league in game appearances with 69. His earned run record for 97 innings was 2.78.

He was drafted at the Houston winter meetings for $12,000.

Peyton Place Criticized For Its Theme

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Ever since ABC's evening dramatic serial, "Peyton Place," turned into one of the season's hit shows there have been rumblings about its spicy, daring theme.

The trade paper Variety coined a new word "Sexial," for the serial and reported that in at least one community a movement is under way to persuade the local television station to discontinue it.

"Peyton Place" does have some situations rarely encountered in "The Donna Reed Show" or "The Munsters."

But the ripples caused by the show's plots and subplots could only have been made by persons unaware of what has been going on for years in the daytime serials.

A friend who keeps an eye on a half dozen of them finds "Peyton Place" pretty mild stuff. In one of the daily diversions, a girl graduate of reform school and prison has married a nice young man for money but continues to have an affair with the thief with whom she once lived and by whom she is having a child.

In another, a girl in love with fellow who was recently acquitted of murdering his wife lost the child she was having by him.

In another the characters have had affairs, divorces illegitimate children and been subjected to more savage assaults. Scattered through most have been murder trials.

"Peyton Place" characters, is measured by the daytime soap opera yardstick, obviously are about as naughty as Elsie Dinsmore.

Maybe the critics had better take a look at day-time television before they get too excited about the evening version of the classic soap opera.

"That Was the Week That Was," after several pretty dreary weeks turned in a bright, fresh and most amusing show on NBC Tuesday night. The topical wisecracks were funny and so were the musical numbers.

This is the great day for the Democrats and the television networks as Lyndon B. Johnson is inaugurated and the networks plan to cover it from stem to stern. CBS also plans to offer something to the Republicans. It will have cameras and a reporter at a "Losers' Ball" which some Republicans are throwing while the winners attend the inaugural balls.

Wright Feels Pirates Can Win Without Top Scorer

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Alarmists beware!

Dan Wright, St. Mary's head basketball coach, refused to take a pessimistic outlook of his team's chances in the Denver Parochial League pennant chase when the Pirates cage boss learned Tuesday that his leading scorer Tom McCarthy (who carries an 18-point average) broke a bone in his right hand.

McCarthy broke his hand last Sunday against Machebeuf during a scuffle for a free ball when an opponent stepped on his hand. The extent of the injury is not known at present, even though the X-rays established it was a broken bone.

McCarthy worked out Tuesday night with the team, after having his hand heavily taped and Wright indicated that the Pirates backcourt general will see limited action against Annunciation Friday night. Daryl Grantz will start at one of the guard slots.

Perhaps Wright was looking back to Sunday's decisive 67-56 DPL win over Machebeuf when he related that the Pirates can still do the job without McCarthy going full strength. The Buccaneers, after a first period lapse, jelled as a unit last Sunday to record their 10th victory of the season and this was the first time the Pirates' team effort took the scoring burden off McCarthy's shoulders.

Tom Scoha, who was selected the City Player of the Week by the Gazette Telegraph sports staff, spearheaded the victory with a brilliant job rebounding, scoring and goal-tending. Socha sank 12 of 18 field goal attempts, picked up two points at the charity lanes and snatched a whopping 21 rebounds.

Socha's outstanding all-around performance and the Pirates' team unit, especially in the second half, give merit to Wright's appraisal of his team's status — the Bucs can do the job without McCarthy assuming the bulk of the scoring.

In short, the Pirates will have to play as a unit with all five men on the court contributing, rather than depending upon one individual.

At present the Pirates are deadlocked with torrid-scoring Mullen for the DPL lead. The Bucs picked up two league victories last weekend to tie the Mustangs via 5-1 loop records, after defending co-champion Regis presented Mullen with its first conference loss last Sunday, 62-45.

The Raiders dumped the Mullen team, which came into Sunday's outing with an 83.1-point average, when the Regis aggregation put up a defensive net which forced the Mustangs to take long and hurried shots. Prior to the Sunday loss, Mullen posted five straight league victories and was attempting to record its 12th consecutive win of the season.

Wright's chargers take on highly respected Annunciation, a team which defeated Regis last Friday, in their opening date this weekend. The Pirates journey north for the Annunciation game, which is scheduled Friday night at the Holy Family Gymnasium in Denver. Game time for the St. Mary's-Annunciation is slated for 7 p.m.

Then on Sunday, the Pirates play host to St. Joseph's at the St. Mary's gym beginning at 2:30 p.m.

The Pirates were forced into an overtime period last Friday before they eked out a 58-58 decision with Socha and McCarthy pacing the victory. The Bucs dumped Machebeuf, 67-58, on Sunday for their fifth DPL win.

Cheyenne, Danes Meet In Must Game for Both

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Cheyenne Mountain has its chance to move out in front by another half game in the City Hockey League tonight as the Indians meet Fountain Valley. But the Danes may have other ideas.

The Indians, with a 6-1 record, are one game ahead of Palmer and 2½ ahead of both Fountain Valley and Wasson. Cheyenne has five games left in which to wrap up the CHL round robin title.

Fountain Valley is still very much in the thick of the league battle. A victory would put the hard-skating Danes within 1½ games of the Indians and, in addition, give Palmer's Terrors a closer shot at the league-leaders.

Wasson, though mathematically in the race, has four losses and must depend on Cheyenne losses to gain its first league crowd. The Thunderbirds breezed Wednesday night to a 9-0 victory over Widefield.

The Gladiators, who now have allowed 61 goals while scoring only one, staved off Wasson with apparent ease in the first 20 minutes, allowing one goal and breaking up constant pressure by the T-Birds.

Wasson scored in the first period on a goal by Tom Braun, his first of the year. But that was all the scoring damage the T-Birds could do as Glad defensemen Tim Henson and Tom Fay broke up play after play near the goal. Wasson had the openings, but when it came to getting the puck home, Widefield stiffened just enough to hold it out.

But the dam broke with 9:22 gone in the second period. Hugh Wallnutt slammed a loose puck through and the T-Birds, waking up after two one-goal defeats by Palmer and Fountain Valley, took their frustrations out on goalie Steve King, who performed well in making 27 saves.

Bruce Mahanke, with Braun the holder of a hat trick Wednesday, scored his first on a corner shot. Then Braun put in his second goal on a difficult angle shot from the right.

In the third period, Wallnutt scored his second by tapping the puck through a maze of arms and legs at the right corner. Mahanke gained his second after skating with the puck around the net to the left, passing off and taking the puck again on the right side.

Braun turned his hat trick on a shot in front and Greg Keiffer got into the scoring act with a rebound goal. Mahanke got close the scoring.

Wasson played three goalies during the game, starting Rick Spencer and replacing him with John Wendt with 38 seconds left in the second period. Newcomer Kurt Puttnam started the third period and thereafter coach Harry Whitworth replaced his tenders with every other line change.

Wendt and Puttnam each had one save. Spencer had none.

Denver's McClary Leads All-Star Bowling Tourney

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A pair of tall, lanky unknowns knocked off some of bowling's biggest names Wednesday and will lead their respective divisions into the seventh round of the All-Star Bowling Tournament today.

Jerry McClary of Denver, who shattered the qualifying records for six and 12 games earlier this week, took command of the American Division when he won 10 of his first 12 games in the finals. Two-time champion Dick Weber and Ray Bluth, both of St. Louis, compiled the best averages in the same division, 218, but won fewer games and had to settle for second and fourth place, respectively.

Don Daughterty, a 6-foot-4, 165-pound bowler from Clearwater, Fla., claimed the lead in the National Division with a nine won, three lost record. Jim St. John, current World's Invitational champion from Santa Clara, Calif., had a better pin total but had to settle for second place because of his 8-4 record.

McClary, 29, an All-Star rookie, knocked heads today with 1964 runner-up Tommy Tuttle of King, N.C., and three members of the St. Louis tenpin dynasty — Weber, Bluth and Bill Welu.

Weber and Welu are former champions.

McClary more than held his win against the strongest men in his field, but made up most of his ground when he whipped John Fonagy Jr., of Buffalo two straight with 239 and 263.

Daugherty, 22, got off to a rousing start in the first round when he shot a 267-225 series to win two games from Bob Ramirez of Anaheim, Calif. He swept important two-game matches during the day from Roy Lown of Brockton, Mass., and Roy Orf of St. Louis.

Olga Gloor, a perennial contender from Chicago led the women's National Division with an 8-2 record as the girls entered their sixth round. Myrt De Fily of San Antonio ranked second.

Mrs. Gloor's best performance came when she took two straight games from third-place Ann Slattery of Salt Lake City with a 235-200 series.

Mary Louise Young, a blonde from Houston, dominates the women's American Division with a record of six wins, three losses and one tie.

Betty Kuczynski of Chicago is in second place with the same ducted on a bonus arrangement. A bowler is awarded an extra 50 points for every game he wins.

McClary's total of 3,073 for example, is a reflection of his 10-2 record and his actual pinfall of 2573.

The winners of the various divisions will bowl three-game matches next Sunday, Jan. 24, for the $15,000 men's title and the $5,000 women's championship.

Chisox Get Romano, Cleveland Gets Colavito, Athletics Get Outfielders

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Chicago White Sox strengthened their weak spot in acquiring catcher Johnny Romano and became a stronger American League pennant threat than ever.

Cleveland moved into the pennant contention by getting back right-handed slugger Rocky Colavito, who also figured to make the turnstiles click merrily.

Kansas City got some new faces.

That appears to sum up the three-club, eight-player deal the White Sox, Indians and Athletics announced Wednesday.

The multimple transaction, originated at the baseball convention in Houston last month, went like this:

The Indians gave up Romano, pitcher Tommy John and outfielder Tommie Agee to the White Sox. Chicago sent outfielders Jim Landis and Mike Hershberger and a still unnamed pitcher to Kansas City and catcher Camilo Carreon to Cleveland. Kansas City sent Colavito to the Indians.

The unnamed new Kansas City pitcher is believed to be either veteran Johnny Buzhardt, Dave DeBusschere or rookie Fred Talbot.

The Indians, who have suffered both on the field and at the gate ever since they traded Colavito to Detroit back in 1960, not only have added right-handed hitting power which they sorely lacked, but regained one of the most popular players ever to wear an Indian uniform.

Gabe Paul estimates the Rock's presence will add at least another 150,000 to Cleveland's attendance next season. The Indians club president also views the 31-year-old outfielder's acquisition will make a pennant contender out of last year's sixth-place club. Despite a .274 batting average, Colavito blasted 34 home runs and drove in 102 runs.

"I have been trying to get Rocky back to Cleveland for some time," said Paul. "And I wasn't going to muff it when I finally got the chance."

Charles Finley, owner of the Athletics, rejected a flat $300,000 offer from Paul for the slugger at the Houston meetings.

The offer came the day after the Indians had acquired Chuck Hinton, a right-handed hitting outfielder, in a trade with Washington.

Cleveland now has four top outfielders in Colavito, Hinton, Leon Wagner and fleet center fielder Vic Davelillo. Manager Birdie Tebbetts may use Rocky at first, or switch Hinton to second, so he can employ all of his power in a balanced line-up.

Getting Romano back fills the White Sox biggest need. Catching was Chicago's biggest weakness in 1964 when the team finished only one game behind the champion New York Yankees.

A left-handed long ball hitter, the 30-year-old backstop fugures to add sock to the White Sox batting order. He hit 19 home runs despite a long layoff due to an injury. He batted .241.

Traded away by the White Sox to the Indians after the 1959 season, Romano develped into one of the league's better catchers. He was named twice to the All-Star team.

"We've been trying to get John back for two years," said White Sox Manager Al Lopez.

Lopez figures that John, a left-hander, will take up some of the southpaw slack created by the departure of left- handers Frank Baumann and Don Mossi. The youngster showed promise despite a 2-9 record at Cleveland. Agee, a speedy 21-year-old rookie center fielder, hit 19 home runs and stole 37 bases at Portland last year.

Hershberger and Landis probably will fill two thirds of the Athletics' starting outfield. Hershberger batted .230 and Landis .208 last season. They hit three home runs between them. Both are fast and exceptional outfielders but lack power.

"We gave up Colavito with a great deal of reluctance," said Pat Friday, general manager of the A's. "We tried to overpower opponents. It didn't work out too well. We had one of our worst seasons."

A better defense and more speed in the outfield will be more vital to the A's next year.

Celtics Three Games Out From 18-Game Victory String

By GORDON BEARD

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Boston Celtics haven't lost a game since last year. The way they're going, they may not lose any until next year.

The perennial National Basketball Association champions won their 15th straight outing Wednesday night, crushing the Baltimore Bullets 131-105 with a 40-point splurge in the last quarter.

That inched the Celtics to within two of the NBA's record winning streak, and they could have the mark all to themselves by Sunday.

In other games Wednesday night, the Cincinnati Royals spurted away from the Detroit Pistons in the final five minutes to wrap up a 102-90 decision, and the Los Angeles Lakers boosted their Western Division lead to one full game over idle St. Louis with a 119-103 victory over the New York Knickerbockers.

With Oscar Robertson held to 11 points — only the second time in 16 contests he has failed to top 20 this season — Jerry Lucas took over as the Cincinnati hero. Lucas grabbed 37 rebounds to set a record for Detroit's Cobo Arena and also scored 18 points. Jack Twyman tallied 21 to pace the Royals, who twice blew 10-point leads before pulling away. Eddie Miles topped Detroit with 20 points.

Jerry West returned to the Los Angeles line-up after missing two games with a broken nose and powered the Lakers with 38 points. The victory snapped the Knicks' three-game winning streak and was Los Angeles' sixth straight over New York this season.

Brigham Young, Utah Tangle in 104th Battle

PROVO, Utah (UPI)— Brigham Young University and Utah tangle Saturday night in Smith Fieldhouse at Provo in the 104th renewal of one of the nation's most hotly contested collegiate basketball series.

During the 36 years of University of Utah basketball the Utes have won 54 games while losing 49 against the downstate rivals from Provo.

Saturday's clash is the only league game on the meager Western Athletic Conference schedule. In non-league contests Wyoming and Arizona State take on the area's two independent powers. Wyoming tangles with Colorado State at Laramie, and Utah State plays a return match with Arizona State at Tempe.

Wyoming also plays a non-league game Friday night. The Cowboys stay at home to host Denver University.

The big game at Provo brings together a pair of clubs boasting nearly identical records. Utah has a 12-3 mark and BYU is 10-4. In league play both are tied for third place with 1-1 marks.

T. Jefferson Hits Summit Of Prep Poll

Thomas Jefferson has climbed to the top of the weekly Denver Post prep poll which ranks Colorado's high school basketball teams.

Jefferson made the number one spot in what amounted to a mere shuffling of Denver schools. George Washington, the poll leader the first two weeks, fell to second after losing to T.J. last weekend. Unbeaten Arvada is third, Pueblo Central fourth, and Aurora Hinkley fifth.

Central is the lone South Central League team in the top 10 but Centennial barely missed, winding up 11th. Wasson, without a vote a week ago, climbed to 16th on the strength of a pair of weekend victories. Pueblo East is tied for 17th. Harrison, the Will Rogers League leader, received one vote.

By leagues, the Denver League has three representatives in the top 10, (Jefferson, Washington, and Lincoln); the Centennial League three (Hinkley, Littleton, and Boulder), the Jefferson County League two (Arvada and Wheat Ridge), the Northern League one (Greeley Central), and the South Central League one (Pueblo Central).

Winning CC Takes on Swift Regis

DENVER — Colorado College goes after its second victory of the week and third of the season here tonight when the Tigers meet once-powerful Regis College at the Regis Field House Game time is 8:05 p.m.

Red Eastlack's youthful CC squad will carry their familiar role of underdogs into the contest but an upset is far from out of the question. The Tigers snapped a seven game losing streak Tuesday night with a 47-39 win over Colorado Mines and after that feat the team must feel that almost anyting is possible.

Tonight's foe will be of a completely different variety than the slow-down Miners. Regis prefers the swift gait, as demonstrated in the Raiders' latest misfortune Tuesday night. Southern Colorado State from Pueblo gunned down the Denver school, 97-79, in that one.

The defeat left Regis with a 3-4 record for the campaign, but the club is expected to improve during the weeks to come. Following the holiday layoff, four new players reported to the squad, including 6-4 Jim Loehr and 6-5 Jack Coyne, a pair of former Regis High stars. Bob Scheck, a 6-3 former Mt. Carmel High player, and 6-5 Darrell Mudd of St. Joseph's, Mo. were other additions to the squad.

Coach Mick Pahl, who took over this year after Joe Hall departed the Regis job following the school's announced deemphasis of the sport, will probably start Jon Rapp, Jay Coakley, Roger Harris, Tony Reed, and Joe Kaveney.

Eastlack, who has seen his Tigers improve steadily in recent weeks, will probably go with a lineup of Dave Herrington and Steve Schilder at guards, and Phil LeCuyer, Pete Susemihl, and Christ Grant on the front line.

Ortega-Wells Bout Disputed

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — A disputed decision in the Gaspar Ortega-Marshall Wells fight may be taken today to the Texas Boxing Commission at Austin for a final ruling.

Ortega, ranked as the world's No. 9 welterweight, was declared the winner after Wednesday night's bout on the basis that he received a total of 285 points from the three judges compared to 283 for Wells, who was unranked.

But the outcome was thrown into confusion when the decision was protested on the basis of a Texas Boxing Commission rule which states that if the judges cannot agree, the bout must be declared a draw.

READY FOR THE JAPANESE — Five of Wasson's top wrestlers are shown prior to a workout earlier this week as the team prepared for a meeting with unbeaten Pueblo East tonight and for Saturday night's battle with the Japanese All-Stars at the Palmer Gymnasium. Wasson and Palmer will each have four wrestlers in the meet with the Japanese team. Representing Wasson will be, from left: either Ed Abeyta or Terry Remy who will wrestle-off Friday to decide the T-Bird at 115 pounds; Paul Briggs at 136, Jim Ranals at 123, and Archie Martinez at 130. T-Birds, Eagles Battle For League Mat Lead

Wasson and Pueblo East decide the South Central League wrestling leadership tonight at the Wasson Gymnasium in what promises to be one of the finest mat events to ever be held here. Starting time for both the varsity and "B" matches will be 7:30.

Following close on the heels of the South Central League dispute will be a Friday night struggle between Harrison and Canon City that will determine first place in the Will Rogers League. That meet is scheduled for Canon City at 7:30.

Those two attractions will be tops in a busy weekend of conference action. In addition to the Wasson-East meeting, Palmer will host Pueblo South and Centennial will tangle with Central in other SCL battles tonight. East hosts Pueblo County Friday in the lone non-league activity of the week.

Friday's WRL schedule will have Cheyenne Mountain hosting Widefield, as well as the Harrison-Canon City meet. Saturday Academy High goes to Cheyenne and Harrison will journey to Widefield.

Then, to cap the bustling week end of mat activity, a combined Wasson and Palmer eight-man team will meet the undefeated Japanese All-Stars in an 8 p.m. attraction at the Palmer Gymnasium. The Japanese team won its seventh triumph of the current tour Wednesdy night, defeating Englewood 29-2. The only mar on the visitors' record is a tie with Grand Junction. Tuesday night they met Boulder before 4,200 fans at the Colorado University Field House, the largest crowd to ever watch a dual high school meet in the state's history.

Wasson and East will both place undefeated marks on the line tonight in what figures to be a torrid struggle for the SCL leadership. The Thunderbirds have won eight straight dual meets this winter and also captured their own quadrangular in January. Wasson's record includes league triumphs over Palmer, Trinidad, and Pueblo Centennial and non-conference wins over Cherry Creek, Aurora Central, Fort Collins and South Denver.

East has an 8-0 mark and just last week edged strong Pueblo South to remain in a tie for the league leadership. Also numbered among Eagle victims are Centennnal and Fruita. The later team is the defending Division I state champion.

The Eagles will bring three unbeaten wrestlers to the Springs. George Beck at 112 is 7-0 and he will battle another undefeated star in Wasson's Ed Abeyta who has six straight to his credit. Don Gibbs at 180 and heavyweight Don Montoya are also unbeaten for the Eagles.

Abeyta is Wasson's only undefeated wrestler, but the Thunderbirds have impressive performers elsewhere as well. Yogi Grandcourt, a three-year star, is 11-1 at 165 pounds. Jim Ranals has a 7-1 mark at 120 and Paul Briggs is 8-2 at 133.

Palmer heavyweight, Ron Smith, who has lost only once in 12 starts will lead that team against the powerful Colts. That match is also scheduled for 7:30 tonight and will be held at the Palmer Gymnasium.

Worsley Winning Back Old Job With Montreal

About 15 months ago an injured Gump Worsley lost his job as Montreal goalie to Charlie Hodge. After five days, Worsley has won back possibly more than half a share of it.

The Canadiens recorded their third straight triumph 2-1 over Toronto Wednesday night, all of the victories having come with Worsley in the net. The decision enabled first-place Montreal to maintain its two-point margin over Chicago in the National Hockey League.

The Black Hawks trounced Boston 7-1 in the other game.

The Canadiens acquired Worsley in 1963 after he had spent 10 seasons with the New York Rangers. He started the 1963-64 season for Montreal but was hurt in the eighth game. When he recovered, he was sent to Quebec of the American League while Hodge guarded the net regularly.

But Worsley was recalled to Montreal last Saturday so Hodge could receive a rest. In three games, Worsley has allowed five goals, and the Canadiens have moved from two points behind the Black Hawks to two points in front.

Coach Toe Blake said he would platoon Hodge and Worsley the remainder of the season. But if Worsley continues his torrid pay,l he may do better than an play, he may do better than an even split.

The only goal Toronto got against him Wednesday night was Jim Pappin's in the second period. Montreal, however, already had a 2-0 lead on goals by Claude Larose and Dick Duff earlier in the period.

The Bruins' goalie, Ed Johnston, never had a chance against the Black Hawks, who tallied three times within the first 8½ minutes. Stan Mikita scored one of the goals and added another in the third period.

Bobby Hull fired in his 37th goal of the season in the second period, leaving him with 28 games in which to score 14 goals for a league record.

Broncos Get Haynes In Trade

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Swift, tricky Abner Haynes — who thought he had proved to the Kansas City Chiefs that the day of the 190-pound running back isn't over — was traded to Denver Wednesday for linebacker Jim Fraser.

Haynes, the first big name in the American Football League, was named the AFL's Comeback of the Year last fall by the Associated Press. After a bad season in 1963 — the club's first in Kansas City — Haynes came back with 713 yards and a 5.2 average, plus several long runs.

It's no secret, however, the Chiefs still regarded his 190-pound size a drawback in an era of 225-pound backs and 245-pound linebackers. More important, they needed linebacking after E. J. Holub's knee operation. Kansas City received an undisclosed amount of cash in the trade.

Fraser, 6-3 and 236, is an excellent linebacking and outstanding punter. He has led the AFL in punting two straight years, and set an AFL record of 46.1. He's a four-year veteran from Wisconsin and 28 years old.

Haynes, 27, a North Texas State graduate, said in Dallas he was delighted about the trade. He said "I think it will be better for me and for Kansas City."

Haynes said he had asked the Chiefs to trade him unless he could be utilized as he thought he should be. He didn't elaborate, but he has often said he must carry the ball often "to stay hot." He carried 137 times last season, only 99 in '63, compared to 21 in 1962.

"I'm satisfied Denver will play a man on his ability," he said.

Denver Coach Mac Speedie said, "We're getting a great one in Abner and he will be used as a running back. This shows we're doing everything possible to build a good team."

Speedie added the Broncos are still trying to obtain a proven tight end.

Pone Kingpetch Won't Budge From Terms

BANGKOK (AP) — World flyweight champion Pone Kingpetch of Thailand refused today to budge from terms he has set for a proposed title defense against Italian challenger Salvatore Burruni.

Hiran Sidokbuab, the champion's brother and manager, told the Associated Press Pone's conditions had the approval of the World Boxing Council.

The terms include a purse of $50,000 taxfree, expenses and air fare to Italy for three persons, two black and white copies of the fight movie and a three-man jury headed by a Mexican referee.

Reports from Rome said Nino Tommasi, Italian promoter organizing the fight, had agreed to the purse but had expressed reservations about a three-man jury and about the two film copies.

The Thais have proposed the bout be staged in Italy in early March.

Burruni will have to decide and agree to these terms" Hiran said. "We can't wait for him indefinitely."

He said that if a contract forwarded to the Italians Wednesday was not signed "within a reasonable time, we'll have to start looking for other contenders."

Negotiations for the Pone-Burruni match have been underway since last October. They were stalled for months over the composition of the jury, an argument that was finally resolved.

Rough Battle Expected As Tigers Meet Wolves

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

"Anybody that's not aggressive out there will be finding himself a seat on the bench. It's what I've told my players, and I'm going to stick with it."

So spoke Colorado College's Coach Bob Johnson as he continued to work the Tiger hockey team hard this week, trying to get ready to meet the burly defending NCAA champions from the University of Michigan. The teams meet this Friday and Saturday nights at the Broadmoor World Arena, game time set for 8:15 p.m. both days.

"Some of our guys got roughed up quite a bit last year when we played at Ann Arbor," Johnson continued. "But they're determined to hold their own this year and I personally feel they can beat them."

Michigan, undoubtedly one of the biggest teams to ever don skates in schoolboy competition, has built a reputation of playing roughneck style and more than a few opponents in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association have felt the welts when bumping the Wolverines. But Johnson says his Tigers won't be backing off from any of the visitors this weekend.

Although Michigan has almost a roster-ful of 200 pounders that like to intimidate the opposition, probably the most savage of the lot is defenseman Tom Polonic, a monster of a man and voted the league's top sophomore a year ago while rating among the leaders in both scoring and penalties.

"I'll tell you right now, though, we're not going to get pushed around on the ice this weekend," Johnson said. "They're as tough as ever, but I think a few of their players are more concerned with hurting someone than playing good hockey and if they try a lot of that rough stuff my kids have the ability to skate right around 'em and they're liable to be seeing quite a few goals."

Michigan lost fairly heavily through graduation last June, with the key losses being All-League selections in goalie Bob Gray and center Gordon Wilkie. But they also picked up several fine sophomores who will be in action against the Tigers.

The most notable loss to the Wolverines was Gray, in goal. Taking his place has been sophomore Greg Page of St. Paul, Minn., but whereas Gray was second in the league a year ago in goals allowed, Page has let in nearly six per game to rank last in the WCHA so far.

Michigan, though, still has a power-laden attack and this weekend's double dip has all the appearance of a high scoring series. Pacing the Wolves so far have been a quartet who have been averaging a point a game in league activity: centers Mel Wakabayashi and Wilfred Martin, and wingers Pierre Dechaine and Alex Hood.

In games thus far, Michigan has already lost twice as many in the WCHA as they did all last season. The Wolverines finished up with a 12-2 record last year (21-3 overall) to top the final standings, but then they lost to runnerup Denver in the playoffs for the official league title, and then came back to dump Denver in the NCAA finals. This year Michigan has a 2-4 league mark and 8-5-1 overall.

Last weekend Michigan had a bye in league action, but twice defeated Duluth, Minn., 6-5 and 4-2. Duluth, earlier, pinned two of the losses on CC's record in games at Colorado Springs.

While Michigan will be fighting for its life here this Friday and Saturday, trying desperately to remain in the running for one of the four allotted playoff berths at the end of the season, CC will also have its back to the wall.

The Tigers currently stand in a tie for last place with Denver, on 1-3 records in WCHA, and Johnson's Bengals can ill afford many more defeats and still harbor hopes of the playoffs. After taking Michigan State 3-1 last Friday, had CC swept the series instead of dropping a 10-3 decion to State on Saturday, the Tigers would now be sitting in third place. The league is that close this season.

As is, CC will be facing Michigan's national champs this weekend and then next weekend the Tigers meet Denver in a home-and-home series. Although Denver rests at the bottom of the standings along with Colorado College, no one is taking the Pioneers lightly and they are still just as strong as when observers tabbed them co-favorites with North Dakota to win the title.

Other games this weekend will have Denver playing host to third place Michigan Tech, both desperate not to add any more to their three losses in the current standings; and Minnesota will try to solidify its second place slot in a visit to Michigan State. League-leading North Dakota, after its sweep against Denver last weekend, will be idle and assured the top spot.

Johnson said he may do a little switching on one of his line combinations before the Michigan set, but this week the CC coach has been mainly concerned with healing some of the bumps and bruises picked up in the games with Michigan State. None of the CC injuries are very serious, but all could hamper the Tigers against the strong-armed Wolverines.

Causing the most worry has been the aching back of senior center Warren Fordyce, who continues to rank second in the CC team scoring. A "marked man" against Michigan State, Fordyce was roughed up considerably by the Spartans but still should be able to play at near full speed this week.

Oddly enough, all three regular line combinations are listed right together in team scoring this week. Fordyce's threesome with wings Bob Magie and Glen Blumer are 1-2-3 in scoring; the sophomore line of wings Bob Lindberg and John Genz around center Jim Amidon follow closely in 4-5-6; and the "St. Paul" line of Dave Peterson, Jeff Sauer and Steve Ebert are next on the list.

Johnson said he would start Bill Howard in goal for Friday's encounter, and then Saturday's goalie would depend on how Howard performed with Mike Carter standing ready. Howard was sharp in last week's 3-1 win over Michigan State, and then Carter started and Howard had to relieve in Saturday's 10-3 defeat.

Wildcats Drop Kansas To Fourth in Big Eight

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tex Winter's Kansas State Wildcats have climbed back into the Big Eight title picture, evened the score with Kansas and perhaps have given the rest of the league an idea on how to handle 6-foot-11 Walt Wesley.

K-State whipped the Jayhawks 71-63 before 12,000 Wednesday night at Manhattan, getting revenge for a defeat by Kansas in the semifinals of the Big Eight Holiday Tournament.

Wesley scored 30 points in the Kansas defeat, and future Jayhawk foes doubtless will study this fact. Instead of a sagging zone defense, Winter used an aggressive man-to-man defense, with no double-teaming of Wesley.

The K-State coach operated under the theory that Wesley will get 25-30 points no matter what you do. He concentrated on stopping the other Jayhawks — and succeeded. They had only eight goals combined.

Of course, not many teams have a 6-foot-10 pivot like K-State's Roy Smith. He made the difference in the game, with 25 points and 14 rebounds to 10 for Wesley.

The defeat dropped Kansas to fourth place with a 3-2 league record, a half game ahead of K-State's 2-2. Oklahoma State is on top with 3-0 and Colorado and Missouri are tied at 2-1.

Oklahoma State plays Nebraska Saturday at Lincoln, where the Huskers have upset OSU two straight years by one point. Kansas meets last-place Iowa State in an afternoon television contest at Lawrence, starting at 1:30 p.m., CST. Oklahoma meets Northern Michigan at Norman in the other game.

The K-State victory kept it a hot five - team championship race.

It was the most decisive defeat of the season for the Jayhawks, now 11-5. They had lost four games by a combined margin of 11 points.

At halftime, the handwriting was on the wall for Ted Owens and his club. Wesley had 20 points, with 9-for-11 from the field, and Kansas hit 57 per cent to K-State's 37, but the Wildcats led 36-33.

Smith had 15 points in the last half. Kansas suffered through an eight-minute stretch without a field goal but hit 10 straight foul shots to stay in the game. The victory evens Winter's personal record at 14-14 against Kansas but was K-State's 57th in the 153-game series.

24th Annual Bing Crosby Tourney Gets Underway

By BOB MYERS

PEBBLE BEACH (AP) — Bing Crosby's 24th annual Golf Tournament, a rather massive assault on the imagination in a four-day run that presents 174 professionals and an equal number of amateurs, got under way Thursday.

The Crosby is a highlight fixture on the winter tournament tour. It features 72-hole performances for the pros, tied in with 54 holes for the pro-am teams, for a total purse of $84,500. It is staged over three golf courses in this showplace country of the Monterey Peninsula.

It also features at least one, if not four, days of extraordinary weather, ranging from rain, snow and wind to beautiful skies of blue. No sane person would dare predict elements from day-to-day on any of the three courses.

Tony Lema is here to defend his 1964 triumph, one he achieved with a total score of 284. Considering a storm on the final day last year, Tony's 76 practically blistered Pebble Beach's challenge.

The two winners of the tournament thus far on the 1965 circuit are Paul Harney, who won the Los Angeles Open, and Wes Ellis Jr., the SankDiego winner. Also present is National Open champion Ken Venturi.

Also rejoining the tour was Arnold Palmer and making his 1965 debut, Jack Nicklaus.

Lema's 1964 finish was not unusual for a final round. There was the year of 1962 when the final round was postponed entirely. There was so much snow they had to cancel it and play it the following Monday.

The three-day, three-ring circus is played over the huge shore course of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club, par 36-35—71, a stroke more since it was redone from last year. Then there is the par 37-35—72 Cypress Point Club, and the giant of them all, Pebble Beach, par 36-36—72.

The final two rounds, which will be nationally televised, will be payed at Pebble Beach.

Cypress boasts the treacherous over-the-ocean 16th hole, where the late Porky Oliver once took a 16. Pebble Beach acquired further renown last year when Palmer hit into the ocean and rocks and came out with a 9 on the par 3 hole.

Nicklaus is playing in his first tournament of the year after winning the Canada Cup matches for the United States on Maui Island in Hawaii in early December.

Neither Palmer nor Nicklaus figured in the 1964 Crosby. In fact, they didn't make the cut after the third round when the field was slashed to scores of 220 or better.

The pro-am totals are based on the best ball score hole-by-hole. The individual pro scores are tallied for the full 72 holes.

Hockey Blue Line Club Set For Meeting This Friday

The season's second meeting of the Blue Line Club, a group composed of ice hockey fans and coaches from throughout the region, will be held this Friday noon at the Beef 'N Bird Restaurant, 1815 S. Nevada Ave. This is a new site from last week's initial meeting.

Coach Al Renfrew of the University of Michigan, defending NCAA champion, will be the featured guest. Renfrew is in his eighth year as coach of the Wolverines, who play Colorado College this weekend at the Broadmoor World Arena.

A protege of Vic Heyliger, now of Colorado Springs, Renfrew has had considerable success since taking over for Heyliger and his team is rated one of the best in the country this season.

There will be a committee meeting just prior to the regular session to draft recommendations for the operation and future plans of the Blue Line Club. Wes Bradley will act as master of cermonies for the luncheon meetings, each Friday before a home CC game.

In addition, all Young America Hockey League players are invited guests of Colorado College and the World Arena this Friday for the series opener with Michigan. This is in connection with Youth Hockey Week which will be celebrated nationally, Jan. 23-31.

Two five-minute exhibition games will be played between periods of the CC-Michigan game on Friday. The Jaycee Monarchs of the PeeWee division of YAL will play the Cheyenne Beavers between the first and second periods, and the Kiwanis Flyers of the Bantam division will take on the Elks Hawks between the second and third periods.

YAL players are required to wear their team jerseys and enter by the side gate to be admitted to the Friday game.

Reds Plan Steps Against Germany

BERLIN (AP) — The Soviet bloc's top leaders decided at their Warsaw conference to take counter measures against West Germany's participation in the proposed NATO multilateral nuclear force, East German Communist party boss Walter Ulbricht reported today.

Ulbricht returned to East Berlin after the two-day meeting with Soviet leaders Leonid I. Brezhnev and Alexei N. Kosygin and the Communist party and government chiefs of Poland, Hungary, Romania, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria.

All participants agreed, Ulbricht said, to condemn all plans that would allow West Germany to participate in any form whatsoever in the proposed nuclear force, known as MLF.

The nickname "Little Flower" bestowed on Fiorello LaGuardia, three times mayor of New York City, was a literal translation of his first name.

Johnson's Inauguration Speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following is the prepared text of President Johnson's inaugural address:

On this occasion, the oath I have taken before you — and before God — is not mine alone, but ours together. We are one nation and one people. Our fate and our future rests not upon one citizen but upon all citizens.

That is the majesty and the meaning of this moment.

For every generation, there is a destiny. For some, history decides. For this generation, the choice must be our own.

Even now, a rocket moves toward Mars. It reminds us that the world will not be the same for our children, or even for ourselves in a short span of years. The next man to stand here will look out on a scene different from our own.

Ours is a time of change — rapid and fantastic change — baring the secrets of nature — multiplying the nations — placing in uncertain hands new weapons for mastery and destruction — shaking old values and uprooting old ways.

Our destiny in the midst of change will rest on the unchanged character of our people — and on their faith.

They came here — the exile and the stranger, brave and frightened — to find a place where a man could be his own man. They made a covenant with this land. Conceived in justice, written in liberty, bound in union, it was meant one day to inspire the hopes of all mankind. It binds us still. And if we keep its terms we shall flourish.

First, justice was the promise that all who made the journey would share in the fruits of the land.

In a land of wealth, families must not live in hopeless poverty.

In a land rich in harvest, children must not go hungry.

In a land of healing miracles, neighbors must not suffer and die untended.

In a land of learning, young people must be taught to read and write.

For 30 years I have believed this injustice to our people — this waste of our resources — was the enemy. For 30 years, I have fought against it, I know it will not surrender easily.

But change has given us new weapons. Before this generation of Americans is finished, this enemy will not only retreat — it will be conquered.

Justice requires us to remember. When any citizen denies his fellow, saying: His color is not mine or his beliefs are different, in that moment he betrays America, though his forebears created the nation.

Liberty was the second article of our covenant. It was self-government and the Bill of Rights. But it was more. America would be a place where each man could be proud to be himself: Stretching his talents, rejoicing in work, important in the life of his neighbors and his nation.

How much more difficult this has become in a world where change and growth seem to tower beyond the control, and even the judgment, of men. We must work now to provide the knowledge and the surroundings which can enlarge the possibilities of every citizen.

The American covenant called on us to help show the way for the liberation of man. That is still our goal. Thus, if as a nation there is much outside our control, as a people no stranger is outside our hope.

Change has brought new meaning to that old mission. We can never again stand aside prideful in isolation. Dangers and troubles we once called "foreign" now live among us. If American lives must end, and American treasure be spilled, in countries we barely know, that is the price that change has demanded of conviction.

Think of our world as it looks from that rocket heading toward Mars. It is like a child's globe, hanging in space, the continents stuck to its side like colored maps. We are all fellow passengers on a dot of earth. And each of us, in the span of time, has only a moment among his companions.

How incredible it is that in this fragile existence we should hate and destroy one another. There are possibilities enough for all who will abandon mastery over others to pursue mastery over nature. There is world enough to rall to seek their happiness in their own way.

Our own course is clear. We aspire to nothing that belongs to others. We seek no dominion over our fellow man, but man's dominion over tyranny and misery.

But more is required. Men want to be part of a common enterprise — a cause greater than themselves. Each of us must find a way to advance the purpose of the nation, thus finding new purpose for ourselves. Without this, we will become a nation of strangers.

The third article was union. To those who were small and few against the wilderness, the success of liberty demanded the strength of union. Two centuries of change have made this true again.

No longer need capitalist and worker, farmer and clerk, city and countryside, struggle to divide our bounty. Together we can increase the share of all.

We have discovered that every child who learns, every man who finds work, every sick body made whole — like a candle added to an altar — brightens the hope of all the faithful.

Let us reject any among us who seek to reopen old wounds and rekindle old hatreds. They stand in the way of a seeking nation.

Let us now join reason to faith and action to experience, to transform our new unity of interest into a new unity of purpose. For the time has come to achieve progress without strife and change without hatred: Not without difference of opinion, but without the deep and abiding divisions which scar the union for generations.

Under this covenant — of justice, liberty, and union — we have become a nation; prosperous, great, and mighty. And we have kept our freedom.

But we have no promise from God that our greatness will endure.

We have been allowed by him to seek greatness with the sweat of our hands and the strength of our spirit.

I do not believe the great society is the ordered, changeless, and sterile battalion of the ants.

It is the excitement of becoming — always becoming, trying, probing, falling, resting, and trying again — but always gaining.

In each generation — with toil and tears — we have had to earn our heritage again.

If we fail now, then we will have forgotten in abundance what we learned in hardship: that democracy rests on faith, freedom asks more than it gives, and the judgment of God is harshest on those who are most favored.

If we succeed, it will not be because of what we have, but what we are; not because of what we own, but what we believe.

For we are a nation of believers. Underneath the clamor of building and the rush of our day's pursuit, we are believers in liberty and justice and in our Union. We believe every man must some day be free. And we believe in ourselves.

That is the mistake our enemies have always made. In my lifetime — in depression and war — they have awaited our deeat. Each time, from the secret places of the American heart, came forth the faith they could not see or even imagine. It brought us victory. It will again.

For this is what America is all about. It is the uncrossed desert and the unclimbed ridge. It is the star not reached and the harvest sleeping in the unplowed ground.

Is our world gone? We say farewell. Is a new world coming? We welcome it — and will bend it to the hopes of man.

I will lead as best I can. But look within your own hearts — to the old promises and the old dream. They will lead you best of all.

For myself, I ask only in the words of an ancient leader: "Give me now wisdom and knowledge that I may go out and come in before this people: For who can judge this, thy people, that is so great?"

Lucy Is Facing Task to Keep Kids Normal

By JOAN CROSBY

NEW YORK (NEA) — Lucille Ball looked very much the glamor queen as she descended an orange-carpeted circular stairway, her gold and white silk sari hostess gown trailing behind her, one arm gracefully behind her back.

"They are great stairs for falling down," she said, as she got to the bottom, "so I come down barefoot." She was holding a pair of high-heeled mules in her hidden hand!

Lucy, who is a star of both CBS television and radio, may have looked like a glamor girl, and acted like the zany character she is to fans, but she was concerned with a mother-next-door problem.

"I don't have any pessimistic thoughts, nothing drags me down. I don't have moods of depression and I think everything is possible, but," Lucy said, "I find it a little hard to help a teen-age daughter."

Lucy's daughter, Lucie, is 13. Her son, Desi IV, is 11. As the childrem of a wealthy and famous mother, there is an added burden on Lucy to keep them normal, something she says, "the average layman does not understand.

Middle class Americans have too much free time, and too easy a life to make disciplining youngsters easy, Lucy believes.

"Electric appliances make everything in the kitchen easier, and the laundry is generally sent out. What is a mother going to do?

"Force her child to iron shirts because that's what her grandmother did when the grandmother was a girl?

"It's harder these lays for young people to have a purpose of direction, because families don't demand responsibilites from their children."

Lucy, who feels she hasn't changed much over the years, is sensitive to the fact that people in small towns act unnaturally with celebrities.

"I went back to a small town where I spent some early years, and I found the poeple, who expected me to be different, had beaten me to it.

"I walked in one room and it was cold as Siberia. The highest compliment these people can give you, eventually, is to say, "Gee, you're real.'"

Romney Calls for More GOP Principles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan Gov. George Romney says he supports a plan for a Republican national conference this spring to reach consensus on party goals and principles.

At a luncheon Wednesday following President's Johnson's inauguration, Romney said "one of the lessons I learned in San Francisco was this: You can't get party principles and programs from a convention that is called to nominate candidates — I went there to fight for principles and found everyone concentrating on naming a candidate."

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller sidestepped specific endorsement of the conference party goals and principles.

At a luncheon Wednesday following President Johnson's inauguration, Romney said "I think there is a need to take stock of the situation and pull together the forces that represent a broad spectrum of thought in the party."

Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton said the result of a similar conference of governors held recently in Denver was "very good indeed."

Scranton said governors are taking a stronger role in party leadership, "but I don't think we are taking over."

Laborites Face New Test in British Vote

LONDON (AP) — Despite the political slowdown resulting from Sir Winston Churchill's illness, voters in two British election districts decide today whether key members of Prime Minister Wilson's cabinet will get seats in the House of Commons.

Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker, defeated in the October general election, is running in the grimy East London suburb of Leyton.

Minister of Technology Frank Cousins is fighting for his first parliamentary seat in the Midlands district of Nuneaton.

British political tradition requires that they have seats in Parliament to sit in the cabinet. Labor won both districts in October by safe margins, and both Gordon Walker and Cousins were expected to win today.

Both seats are vacant because Wilson elevated the holders — Reginald Sorensen from Leyton and Frank Owles from Nuneaton — to the House of Lords.

world conditions."

Danish Princess To Visit America

NEW YORK (AP) — Princess Benedikte, second daughter of Denmark's King Frederik, will pay her first visit to the United States in May.

The Danish Information Office in New York said the princess will visit this country for eight days, starting May 2.

Tuxes and Ski Boots Noted in Social Advice

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — This is the height of the social season and the time for dinner jackets. And it's the start of the skiing season. So herewith a few pointers on the care and feeding of (a) dinner jackets and (b) ski boots.

The dinner jacket, or tuxedo if you will, should be kept in a neat plastic bag together with all accountrements such as vest, tie, jewelry and shirt close by or hung with it, ready to be donned.

A good wishbone hanger is the starting point since it fills in the shoulders of the coat and allows the garment to hang without wrinkles or folds. Trousers should be hung so they can be taken off the hanger and donned without the need for repressing.

The vest, or cummerbund, can be hung with the tuxedo with the clip bow tie clipped right to the vest, or a self-tying tie hung flat with the trousers. Studs, links and laundered shirt should be kept in one handy spot with black socks and suspenders, if one wears suspenders.

After wearing, the tuxedo should be hung up at once but not placed in a closet—it should air out overnight. Next day you can check it and send it to a cleaner if necessary. If nothing is wrong, brush it neatly to remove lint and return it to the plastic bag.

A few moth nuggets or crystals placed in the bottom of the bag, winter and summer, gives a clean fresh aroma if you don't use too much.

Shirts should be laundered at once.

All those tips are from Millicent Prince, who was a longtime fashion expert with After Six Formals. By coincidence After Six makes something called an Automatic Shoe-In which is a combination shoe tree and shoe rack and is great for ski boots as well as ordinary shoes.

Which brings up the care of ski boots themselves.

Shoe experts at Johnson's Wax have the following advice:

—Moisture that gets between the layers of leather that make up the soles can cause the soles to curl up at the toes. Several applications of paste shoe polish applied to the edges of the soles and worked in thoroughly will reduce moisture penetration.

—Neatsfoot or other oils or saddle soap should not be used on uppers because they tend to soften the leather. The uppers must remain firm enough to provide ankle support and only flexible enough to prevent cracking and to be comfortable.

—Boots should be polished often, usually after every ski outing. Paste shoe polish is recommended because it not only enhances the appearance of the boots but makes the leather water-repellent. It also helps protect the boots from scuffing because the wax, not the leather, absorbs the abrasion.

—Boot trees should be used whenever the boots are not being worn. Wads of paper will not prevent curling or twisting and trees make the boots easier to carry.

—At the end of the season boots should be polished, placed on boot trees and stored in a moderately dry place.

Mother, Five Children Die in Burning House

MINETTO, N.Y. (AP) — A mother and five of her 10 children died Wednesday night in flames that destroyed their two-story frame home.

The father led the other five children to safety.

Firemen said the victims were Valeta Petrie, 53, and the children, Susan, 8, Barbara, 4, Bryan, 1, James, 6 and Gary 13. The bodies of the children were recovered.

Tunis Petrie, about 40, was hospitalized with smoke inhalation, burns and shock suffered, firemen said, when he tried to rescue his wife and the five children from the home, about seven miles south of Oswego in central New York state.

He had tried to re-enter the house after leading to safety Randy, 12, Nancy, 7, Rodney 3, Roger, 9, and David Stevenson, 17, a son of Mrs. Petrie's by a previous marriage.

Oswego County sheriff's deputies said a space heater apparently touched off the fire.

Dog Proves to Be Real Stool Pigeon

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Fresno Deputy Sheriff John Camino arrested John Grice, 20, Wednesday on warrants charging 13 traffic violations.

The deputy reported Grice's wife said her husband was not at home, but Camino noticed the family dog standing in front of a closet wagging his tail.

Camino opened the closet and there was Grice.

"I should have sold that stool pigeon," Grice moaned as he was led to jail.

Operating Feature Fails on Mariner

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said today only one of the operating systems aboard the Mariner IV has failed since its Nov. 28 launching.

The lone casualty on the Mars-bound spacecraft was its solar plasma probe, designed to provide information on the minute particles emanating from the sun.

NASA said it stopped functioning properly one week after the launching.

The 575-pound spacecraft is to fly past Mars July 14. By midafternoon today, NASA said, the Mariner will have traveled more than 93 million miles. Since the earth has been moving at the same time, the spacecraft's distance from the earth will be only 10,042,898 miles.

Wright Feels Pirates Can Win Without Top Scorer

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Alarmists beware!

Dan Wright, St. Mary's head basketball coach, refused to take a pessimistic outlook of his team's chances in the Denver Parochial League pennant chase when the Pirates cage boss learned Tuesday that his leading scorer Tom McCarthy (who carries an 18-point average) broke a bone in his right hand.

McCarthy broke his hand last Sunday against Machebeuf during a scuffle for a free ball when an opponent stepped on his hand. The extent of the injury is not known at present, even though the X-rays established it was a broken bone.

McCarthy worked out Tuesday night with the team, after having his hand heavily taped and Wright indicated that the Pirates backcourt general will see limited action against Annunciation Friday night. Daryl Grantz will start at one of the guard slots.

Perhaps Wright was looking back to Sunday's decisive 67-56 DPL win over Machebeuf when he related that the Pirates can still do the job without McCarthy going full strength. The Buccaneers, after a first period lapse, jelled as a unit last Sunday to record their 10th victory of the season and this was the first time the Pirates' team effort took the scoring burden off McCarthy's shoulders.

Tom Scoha, who was selected the City Player of the Week by the Gazette Telegraph sports staff, spearheaded the victory with a brilliant job rebounding, scoring and goal-tending. Socha sank 12 of 18 field goal attempts, picked up two points at the charity lanes and snatched a whopping 21 rebounds.

Socha's outstanding all-around performance and the Pirates' team unit, especially in the second half, give merit to Wright's appraisal of his team's status — the Bucs can do the job without McCarthy assuming the bulk of the scoring.

In short, the Pirates will have to play as a unit with all five men on the court contributing, rather than depending upon one individual.

At present the Pirates are deadlocked with torrid-scoring Mullen for the DPL lead. The Bucs picked up two league victories last weekend to tie the Mustangs via 5-1 loop records, after defending co-champion Regis presented Mullen with its first conference loss last Sunday, 62-45.

The Raiders dumped the Mullen team, which came into Sunday's outing with an 83.1-point average, when the Regis aggregation put up a defensive net which forced the Mustangs to take long and hurried shots. Prior to the Sunday loss, Mullen posted five straight league victories and was attempting to record its 12th consecutive win of the season.

Wright's chargers take on highly respected Annunciation, a team which defeated Regis last Friday, in their opening date this weekend. The Pirates journey north for the Annunciation game, which is scheduled Friday night at the Holy Family Gymnasium in Denver. Game time for the St. Mary's-Annunciation is slated for 7 p.m.

Then on Sunday, the Pirates play host to St. Joseph's at the St. Mary's gym beginning at 2:30 p.m.

The Pirates were forced into an overtime period last Friday before they eked out a 58-58 decision with Socha and McCarthy pacing the victory. The Bucs dumped Machebeuf, 67-58, on Sunday for their fifth DPL win.

Cheyenne, Danes Meet In Must Game for Both

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Cheyenne Mountain has its chance to move out in front by another half game in the City Hockey League tonight as the Indians meet Fountain Valley. But the Danes may have other ideas.

The Indians, with a 6-1 record, are one game ahead of Palmer and 2½ ahead of both Fountain Valley and Wasson. Cheyenne has five games left in which to wrap up the CHL round robin title.

Fountain Valley is still very much in the thick of the league battle. A victory would put the hard-skating Danes within 1½ games of the Indians and, in addition, give Palmer's Terrors a closer shot at the league-leaders.

Wasson, though mathematically in the race, has four losses and must depend on Cheyenne losses to gain its first league crowd. The Thunderbirds breezed Wednesday night to a 9-0 victory over Widefield.

The Gladiators, who now have allowed 61 goals while scoring only one, staved off Wasson with apparent ease in the first 20 minutes, allowing one goal and breaking up constant pressure by the T-Birds.

Wasson scored in the first period on a goal by Tom Braun, his first of the year. But that was all the scoring damage the T-Birds could do as Glad defensemen Tim Henson and Tom Fay broke up play after play near the goal. Wasson had the openings, but when it came to getting the puck home, Widefield stiffened just enough to hold it out.

But the dam broke with 9:22 gone in the second period. Hugh Wallnutt slammed a loose puck through and the T-Birds, waking up after two one-goal defeats by Palmer and Fountain Valley, took their frustrations out on goalie Steve King, who performed well in making 27 saves.

Bruce Mahanke, with Braun the holder of a hat trick Wednesday, scored his first on a corner shot. Then Braun put in his second goal on a difficult angle shot from the right.

In the third period, Wallnutt scored his second by tapping the puck through a maze of arms and legs at the right corner. Mahanke gained his second after skating with the puck around the net to the left, passing off and taking the puck again on the right side.

Braun turned his hat trick on a shot in front and Greg Keiffer got into the scoring act with a rebound goal. Mahanke got close the scoring.

Wasson played three goalies during the game, starting Rick Spencer and replacing him with John Wendt with 38 seconds left in the second period. Newcomer Kurt Puttnam started the third period and thereafter coach Harry Whitworth replaced his tenders with every other line change.

Wendt and Puttnam each had one save. Spencer had none.

T. Jefferson Hits Summit Of Prep Poll

Thomas Jefferson has climbed to the top of the weekly Denver Post prep poll which ranks Colorado's high school basketball teams.

Jefferson made the number one spot in what amounted to a mere shuffling of Denver schools. George Washington, the poll leader the first two weeks, fell to second after losing to T.J. last weekend. Unbeaten Arvada is third, Pueblo Central fourth, and Aurora Hinkley fifth.

Central is the lone South Central League team in the top 10 but Centennial barely missed, winding up 11th. Wasson, without a vote a week ago, climbed to 16th on the strength of a pair of weekend victories. Pueblo East is tied for 17th. Harrison, the Will Rogers League leader, received one vote.

By leagues, the Denver League has three representatives in the top 10, (Jefferson, Washington, and Lincoln); the Centennial League three (Hinkley, Littleton, and Boulder), the Jefferson County League two (Arvada and Wheat Ridge), the Northern League one (Greeley Central), and the South Central League one (Pueblo Central).

Brigham Young, Utah Tangle in 104th Battle

PROVO, Utah (UPI)— Brigham Young University and Utah tangle Saturday night in Smith Fieldhouse at Provo in the 104th renewal of one of the nation's most hotly contested collegiate basketball series.

During the 36 years of University of Utah basketball the Utes have won 54 games while losing 49 against the downstate rivals from Provo.

Saturday's clash is the only league game on the meager Western Athletic Conference schedule. In non-league contests Wyoming and Arizona State take on the area's two independent powers. Wyoming tangles with Colorado State at Laramie, and Utah State plays a return match with Arizona State at Tempe.

Wyoming also plays a non-league game Friday night. The Cowboys stay at home to host Denver University.

The big game at Provo brings together a pair of clubs boasting nearly identical records. Utah has a 12-3 mark and BYU is 10-4. In league play both are tied for third place with 1-1 marks.

Greyhounds Finish Race Without Rabbit

LONDON (AP) — The mechanical rabbit didn't finish in a greyhound race at the Crayford track, but the dogs did. that greyhounds race because they think they're chasing a The stewards, on the theory hare ordered it rerun.

Without the hare, which fell off its carriage at the start, the dog from chute No. 5 won with 2-4-6 following in order.

In the rerun, with the hare, the order was exactly the same — 5-2-4-6.

ANOTHER STEP TO SUCCESS—Rick Barry, already the nation's leading scorer from University of Miami, will marry the boss's daughter. He and Pam Hale, daughter of basketball coach Bruce Hale, announced they will be married June 12. They'll probably go to Hawaii on their honeymoon.

Denver's McClary Leads All-Star Bowling Tourney

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A pair of tall, lanky unknowns knocked off some of bowling's biggest names Wednesday and will lead their respective divisions into the seventh round of the All-Star Bowling Tournament today.

Jerry McClary of Denver, who shattered the qualifying records for six and 12 games earlier this week, took command of the American Division when he won 10 of his first 12 games in the finals. Two-time champion Dick Weber and Ray Bluth, both of St. Louis, compiled the best averages in the same division, 218, but won fewer games and had to settle for second and fourth place, respectively.

Don Daughterty, a 6-foot-4, 165-pound bowler from Clearwater, Fla., claimed the lead in the National Division with a nine won, three lost record. Jim St. John, current World's Invitational champion from Santa Clara, Calif., had a better pin total but had to settle for second place because of his 8-4 record.

McClary, 29, an All-Star rookie, knocked heads today with 1964 runner-up Tommy Tuttle of King, N.C., and three members of the St. Louis tenpin dynasty — Weber, Bluth and Bill Welu.

Weber and Welu are former champions.

McClary more than held his win against the strongest men in his field, but made up most of his ground when he whipped John Fonagy Jr., of Buffalo two straight with 239 and 263.

Daugherty, 22, got off to a rousing start in the first round when he shot a 267-225 series to win two games from Bob Ramirez of Anaheim, Calif. He swept important two-game matches during the day from Roy Lown of Brockton, Mass., and Roy Orf of St. Louis.

Olga Gloor, a perennial contender from Chicago led the women's National Division with an 8-2 record as the girls entered their sixth round. Myrt De Fily of San Antonio ranked second.

Mrs. Gloor's best performance came when she took two straight games from third-place Ann Slattery of Salt Lake City with a 235-200 series.

Mary Louise Young, a blonde from Houston, dominates the women's American Division with a record of six wins, three losses and one tie.

Betty Kuczynski of Chicago is in second place with the same ducted on a bonus arrangement. A bowler is awarded an extra 50 points for every game he wins.

McClary's total of 3,073 for example, is a reflection of his 10-2 record and his actual pinfall of 2573.

The winners of the various divisions will bowl three-game matches next Sunday, Jan. 24, for the $15,000 men's title and the $5,000 women's championship.

Chisox Get Romano, Cleveland Gets Colavito, Athletics Get Outfielders

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Chicago White Sox strengthened their weak spot in acquiring catcher Johnny Romano and became a stronger American League pennant threat than ever.

Cleveland moved into the pennant contention by getting back right-handed slugger Rocky Colavito, who also figured to make the turnstiles click merrily.

Kansas City got some new faces.

That appears to sum up the three-club, eight-player deal the White Sox, Indians and Athletics announced Wednesday.

The multimple transaction, originated at the baseball convention in Houston last month, went like this:

The Indians gave up Romano, pitcher Tommy John and outfielder Tommie Agee to the White Sox. Chicago sent outfielders Jim Landis and Mike Hershberger and a still unnamed pitcher to Kansas City and catcher Camilo Carreon to Cleveland. Kansas City sent Colavito to the Indians.

The unnamed new Kansas City pitcher is believed to be either veteran Johnny Buzhardt, Dave DeBusschere or rookie Fred Talbot.

The Indians, who have suffered both on the field and at the gate ever since they traded Colavito to Detroit back in 1960, not only have added right-handed hitting power which they sorely lacked, but regained one of the most popular players ever to wear an Indian uniform.

Gabe Paul estimates the Rock's presence will add at least another 150,000 to Cleveland's attendance next season. The Indians club president also views the 31-year-old outfielder's acquisition will make a pennant contender out of last year's sixth-place club. Despite a .274 batting average, Colavito blasted 34 home runs and drove in 102 runs.

"I have been trying to get Rocky back to Cleveland for some time," said Paul. "And I wasn't going to muff it when I finally got the chance."

Charles Finley, owner of the Athletics, rejected a flat $300,000 offer from Paul for the slugger at the Houston meetings.

The offer came the day after the Indians had acquired Chuck Hinton, a right-handed hitting outfielder, in a trade with Washington.

Cleveland now has four top outfielders in Colavito, Hinton, Leon Wagner and fleet center fielder Vic Davelillo. Manager Birdie Tebbetts may use Rocky at first, or switch Hinton to second, so he can employ all of his power in a balanced line-up.

Getting Romano back fills the White Sox biggest need. Catching was Chicago's biggest weakness in 1964 when the team finished only one game behind the champion New York Yankees.

A left-handed long ball hitter, the 30-year-old backstop fugures to add sock to the White Sox batting order. He hit 19 home runs despite a long layoff due to an injury. He batted .241.

Traded away by the White Sox to the Indians after the 1959 season, Romano develped into one of the league's better catchers. He was named twice to the All-Star team.

"We've been trying to get John back for two years," said White Sox Manager Al Lopez.

Lopez figures that John, a left-hander, will take up some of the southpaw slack created by the departure of left- handers Frank Baumann and Don Mossi. The youngster showed promise despite a 2-9 record at Cleveland. Agee, a speedy 21-year-old rookie center fielder, hit 19 home runs and stole 37 bases at Portland last year.

Hershberger and Landis probably will fill two thirds of the Athletics' starting outfield. Hershberger batted .230 and Landis .208 last season. They hit three home runs between them. Both are fast and exceptional outfielders but lack power.

"We gave up Colavito with a great deal of reluctance," said Pat Friday, general manager of the A's. "We tried to overpower opponents. It didn't work out too well. We had one of our worst seasons."

A better defense and more speed in the outfield will be more vital to the A's next year.

Celtics Three Games Out From 18-Game Victory String

By GORDON BEARD

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Boston Celtics haven't lost a game since last year. The way they're going, they may not lose any until next year.

The perennial National Basketball Association champions won their 15th straight outing Wednesday night, crushing the Baltimore Bullets 131-105 with a 40-point splurge in the last quarter.

That inched the Celtics to within two of the NBA's record winning streak, and they could have the mark all to themselves by Sunday.

In other games Wednesday night, the Cincinnati Royals spurted away from the Detroit Pistons in the final five minutes to wrap up a 102-90 decision, and the Los Angeles Lakers boosted their Western Division lead to one full game over idle St. Louis with a 119-103 victory over the New York Knickerbockers.

With Oscar Robertson held to 11 points — only the second time in 16 contests he has failed to top 20 this season — Jerry Lucas took over as the Cincinnati hero. Lucas grabbed 37 rebounds to set a record for Detroit's Cobo Arena and also scored 18 points. Jack Twyman tallied 21 to pace the Royals, who twice blew 10-point leads before pulling away. Eddie Miles topped Detroit with 20 points.

Jerry West returned to the Los Angeles line-up after missing two games with a broken nose and powered the Lakers with 38 points. The victory snapped the Knicks' three-game winning streak and was Los Angeles' sixth straight over New York this season.

'Personalized Doll' Latest Fashion Fad

By WARD CANNEL
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

One of the biggest hardships of newspaper life, we have found, is having to go out now and again to interview movie stars.

To our way of thinking, the only thing these people have to offer is the excellent likeness they bear to the figures on the silver screen. But if you can see the real thing in 85 minutes at the movie house, why waste three hours over lunch with a scale model, no matter how perfectly constructed?

This is not to say the examination is completely without profit.

Taken apart carefully, a film personality will usually reveal all the ambition, corseting, venom and other cogs and wheels used in making movies. But you cannot expect to learn anything about art or life by dissecting the replica of a celluloid image.

We have gone into this matter in some detail because it is generally accepted that you can find out how a thing works by taking it apart. And if it is a very big thing, then you take apart a scale model of it.

In either case, that is the scientific method, and a fellow would have to be a fool to argue with it at this late date, now that practically everything has been taken apart and understood.

In that regard, we came across an astounding thing—or rather the scale model of it—the other day.

It is called a "Personalized Doll." Described in basic terms, it is a doll that is manufactured to look like a person. Not just any person, but the particular individual whose photograph you send to the manufacturer. And not merely sort of like that person,, but exactly the same in every facial detail.

We know that it is true because we saw a personalized doll. And the two faces were so exactly alike that it seemed for a moment or two that we would doll in the arms of a little girl require medical attention.

In fact, the feeling persisted inte the next day and the day after. And a telephone call to the manufacturer, "Jet Party Favors Inc.," did not help matters much.

"Oh yes, the personalized doll," Mr. Weber said. "A very popular item. Especially with grandparents who want dolls made of their grandchildren. But there are quite a few orders from folks who want dolls of themselves as youngsters, or of their loved ones who have passed on.

Of course, it doesn't have to be a person at all," Mr. Weber said. "Several orders have come in for dolls with faces of dogs and cats. It's all the same to me no matter whose face is on the picture. It still has to be copied photographically on linen, molded and finished to conform to specifications, and cemented to the doll's head."

Looked at that way, the personalized doll seemed to be a rather meaningless replica.

After all, a doll has to look like somebody. And what rule says that it must look like any other doll and not like your grandmother, niece or departed poodle?

Besides, it is an inexpensive memento. A personal doll costs only $9.95, whereas a personalized grandmother of the same size would propably cost well over $300, judging by what they are getting for stuffing a chimpanzee nowadays.

And anyhow, a photograph is only a photograph. Even if it is printed on linen. And a stuffed doll is certainly nothing more than a stuffed doll.

But somehow taking it apart does not help you understand any of it. The only time it means anything, is when you have put it together. But in that case, you cannot really explain it at all.

Carol Channing Will Extend Her Contract

NEW YORK (AP) — Carol Channing, star of "Hello, Dolly!" since the Broadway musical opened, has agreed to extend her contract until June 1, 1967.

A spokesman for producer David Merrick said Wednesday it was the longest commitment a star has had with a producer.

As a result, Miss Channing will get 10 per cent of the receipts instead of 7½ per cent. The show has taken in $93,000 a week since its opening at the St. James Theater on Nov. 16, 1963.

LONDON — England faces an egg shortage.

London Recalls Its Year of Great Plague

By TOM A. CULLEN
European Staff Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

LONDON (NEA) — Londoners never seem happy unless they are celebrating some stirring event. When they are not honoring Shakespeare's birthday, it is Churchill who gets the big play, or perhaps it is the man who invented laughing gas.

Currently, the Great Plague of London is getting the red carpet treatment, with a Guidehall exhibiti to marks its 300th anniversary. The Great Plague may be no match for Shakespeare or Churchill as a crowd-puller, but it has the makings of a Samuel Bronstein movie spectacular, according to those who have seen the exhibit.

As a reminder of what it was like to live in a city without sanitation and where medicine was a combination of voodoo and guesswork, the Guildhall has assembeld some unique exhibits.

They include advertisements for quack medicines as sure cures for the plague, bills of mortality which show that the plague took over 100,000 lives, religious tracks comparing London to Sodom, woodcuts showing the Angel of Death hovering over a city covered with coffins.

One of the most curious exhibits is a plague pass dated July 5, 1665, signed by two churchwardens, certifying that Mary Cross, a servant, was free of the plague and at liberty to leave London.

This pass was found in the woodwork of the Cross Keys Inn at Evesham when the tavern was torn down in 1939. Presumably, Mary took a job as barmaid there when she left London.

As a matter of fact, Mary got out of London just in time, according to John Bromley, deputy librarian at Guildhall. "So many of these passes were forged that they were not recognized after a while," Bromley explains.

"The towns and villages outside London posted armed guards to turn back all travelers, whether they had plague passes or not."

It has been 300 years since London streets have echoed with the rumble of the carts and the dread cry of "Bring out your dead!"; but the Great Plague has left scars that are still visible.

This city is still dotted with patches of wasteland which mark the mass burial pits of the plague victims.

London street urchins still chant "A ring round the rosies, pocket full of posies," unaware that this nursery rhyme originated with the plague. (The "rosies" refers to the red rash which covered the bodies of the plague victims; the "posies" were the herbs and spices carried to sweeten the air.)

The Great Plague began modestly enough with a few deaths in December 1664, which the authorities tried to conceal in their reports for fear of starting a panic.

By spring, however, theaters, bear-baiting pits, alehouses and taverns had been closed down by public order as the contagion spread. Also, the trickle of rich merchants fleeing from Lodon with their families had swollen into a flood.

King Charles II and his court fled from London in June. So did the faculty of the College of Surgeons. As the pestilence raged, over 10,000 persons took to living on boats moored downstream in the Thames.

This left the poor of London to bear the brunt of the plague, and they were shown no mercy. Huge red crosses were daubed on the doors of infected houses, and those inside were locked up to die, with a day and night watch being maintained to insure that no one entered or left.

Burials took place only at night, the dead carts being preceded by a bellman calling for the bodies.

At the height of the plague in September 1665, Londoners were dying at the rate of 10,000 a week, their bodies being pitched into huge pits as the churchyards become overcrowded.

It was a field day for religious zealots who blamed the plague on sinful living, urged the populace to "repent now." Quack doctors did a brisk business in peddling their nostrums. So did the charlatans who sold lucky charms to ward off the evil plague spirits.

The Great Plague was the last and most terrible of all the epidemics that had ravaged London from the Black Death of 1348 onward. By the time it was over the city had lost one-quarter of its population.

No one knows why the bubonic plague never returned. Some say that London became plague-free because its sanitation improved. Others say that it was because the black rat was defeated by the brown rat. Bubonic plauge was transmitted by the flea of the black rat.)

Nasser Assured Vote For Another Term

CAIRO (AP) — Gamal Abdel Nasser was assured election today to a third six-year term as president of the United Arab Republic.

Nasser, 47, was nominated by the National Assembly Wednesday night after a campaign of mass demonstrations and petitions in support of his candidacy.

He will run unopposed in March.

Ohio Man Confesses Slaying Schoolgirl

TIFFIN, Ohio (AP) — Police early today arrested a 23-year-old Tiffin man and said he has confessed to the Jan. 6 rape-slaying of Tharon Shepherd, 16, a Columbian High School junior.

A joint statement from Tiffin police and the Seneca County sheriff's department said Joseph Raymond Esselman had admitted the killing. Esselman is being held in the county jail on charges of investigation of murder. Authorities said he is to be arraigned today or Friday in Tiffin Municipal Court.

The nude body of the petite brunette was found Jan. 9 alongside a muddy lover's lane in a woods two miles south Tiffin by County Game Warden Sheldon Neff. The girl had disappeared four days earlier, after telling her stepfather, Clarence Needles, that she was going to a drugstore four blocks away to buy a notebook for school.

She had been badly beaten and raped, an investigation showed later.

Reds Plan Steps Against Germany

BERLIN (AP) — The Soviet bloc's top leaders decided at their Warsaw conference to take counter measures against West Germany's participation in the proposed NATO multilateral nuclear force, East German Communist party boss Walter Ulbricht reported today.

Ulbricht returned to East Berlin after the two-day meeting with Soviet leaders Leonid I. Brezhnev and Alexei N. Kosygin and the Communist party and government chiefs of Poland, Hungary, Romania, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria.

All participants agreed, Ulbricht said, to condemn all plans that would allow West Germany to participate in any form whatsoever in the proposed nuclear force, known as MLF.

The nickname "Little Flower" bestowed on Fiorello LaGuardia, three times mayor of New York City, was a literal translation of his first name.

Johnson's Inauguration Speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following is the prepared text of President Johnson's inaugural address:

On this occasion, the oath I have taken before you — and before God — is not mine alone, but ours together. We are one nation and one people. Our fate and our future rests not upon one citizen but upon all citizens.

That is the majesty and the meaning of this moment.

For every generation, there is a destiny. For some, history decides. For this generation, the choice must be our own.

Even now, a rocket moves toward Mars. It reminds us that the world will not be the same for our children, or even for ourselves in a short span of years. The next man to stand here will look out on a scene different from our own.

Ours is a time of change — rapid and fantastic change — baring the secrets of nature — multiplying the nations — placing in uncertain hands new weapons for mastery and destruction — shaking old values and uprooting old ways.

Our destiny in the midst of change will rest on the unchanged character of our people — and on their faith.

They came here — the exile and the stranger, brave and frightened — to find a place where a man could be his own man. They made a covenant with this land. Conceived in justice, written in liberty, bound in union, it was meant one day to inspire the hopes of all mankind. It binds us still. And if we keep its terms we shall flourish.

First, justice was the promise that all who made the journey would share in the fruits of the land.

In a land of wealth, families must not live in hopeless poverty.

In a land rich in harvest, children must not go hungry.

In a land of healing miracles, neighbors must not suffer and die untended.

In a land of learning, young people must be taught to read and write.

For 30 years I have believed this injustice to our people — this waste of our resources — was the enemy. For 30 years, I have fought against it, I know it will not surrender easily.

But change has given us new weapons. Before this generation of Americans is finished, this enemy will not only retreat — it will be conquered.

Justice requires us to remember. When any citizen denies his fellow, saying: His color is not mine or his beliefs are different, in that moment he betrays America, though his forebears created the nation.

Liberty was the second article of our covenant. It was self-government and the Bill of Rights. But it was more. America would be a place where each man could be proud to be himself: Stretching his talents, rejoicing in work, important in the life of his neighbors and his nation.

How much more difficult this has become in a world where change and growth seem to tower beyond the control, and even the judgment, of men. We must work now to provide the knowledge and the surroundings which can enlarge the possibilities of every citizen.

The American covenant called on us to help show the way for the liberation of man. That is still our goal. Thus, if as a nation there is much outside our control, as a people no stranger is outside our hope.

Change has brought new meaning to that old mission. We can never again stand aside prideful in isolation. Dangers and troubles we once called "foreign" now live among us. If American lives must end, and American treasure be spilled, in countries we barely know, that is the price that change has demanded of conviction.

Think of our world as it looks from that rocket heading toward Mars. It is like a child's globe, hanging in space, the continents stuck to its side like colored maps. We are all fellow passengers on a dot of earth. And each of us, in the span of time, has only a moment among his companions.

How incredible it is that in this fragile existence we should hate and destroy one another. There are possibilities enough for all who will abandon mastery over others to pursue mastery over nature. There is world enough to rall to seek their happiness in their own way.

Our own course is clear. We aspire to nothing that belongs to others. We seek no dominion over our fellow man, but man's dominion over tyranny and misery.

But more is required. Men want to be part of a common enterprise — a cause greater than themselves. Each of us must find a way to advance the purpose of the nation, thus finding new purpose for ourselves. Without this, we will become a nation of strangers.

The third article was union. To those who were small and few against the wilderness, the success of liberty demanded the strength of union. Two centuries of change have made this true again.

No longer need capitalist and worker, farmer and clerk, city and countryside, struggle to divide our bounty. Together we can increase the share of all.

We have discovered that every child who learns, every man who finds work, every sick body made whole — like a candle added to an altar — brightens the hope of all the faithful.

Let us reject any among us who seek to reopen old wounds and rekindle old hatreds. They stand in the way of a seeking nation.

Let us now join reason to faith and action to experience, to transform our new unity of interest into a new unity of purpose. For the time has come to achieve progress without strife and change without hatred: Not without difference of opinion, but without the deep and abiding divisions which scar the union for generations.

Under this covenant — of justice, liberty, and union — we have become a nation; prosperous, great, and mighty. And we have kept our freedom.

But we have no promise from God that our greatness will endure.

We have been allowed by him to seek greatness with the sweat of our hands and the strength of our spirit.

I do not believe the great society is the ordered, changeless, and sterile battalion of the ants.

It is the excitement of becoming — always becoming, trying, probing, falling, resting, and trying again — but always gaining.

In each generation — with toil and tears — we have had to earn our heritage again.

If we fail now, then we will have forgotten in abundance what we learned in hardship: that democracy rests on faith, freedom asks more than it gives, and the judgment of God is harshest on those who are most favored.

If we succeed, it will not be because of what we have, but what we are; not because of what we own, but what we believe.

For we are a nation of believers. Underneath the clamor of building and the rush of our day's pursuit, we are believers in liberty and justice and in our Union. We believe every man must some day be free. And we believe in ourselves.

That is the mistake our enemies have always made. In my lifetime — in depression and war — they have awaited our deeat. Each time, from the secret places of the American heart, came forth the faith they could not see or even imagine. It brought us victory. It will again.

For this is what America is all about. It is the uncrossed desert and the unclimbed ridge. It is the star not reached and the harvest sleeping in the unplowed ground.

Is our world gone? We say farewell. Is a new world coming? We welcome it — and will bend it to the hopes of man.

I will lead as best I can. But look within your own hearts — to the old promises and the old dream. They will lead you best of all.

For myself, I ask only in the words of an ancient leader: "Give me now wisdom and knowledge that I may go out and come in before this people: For who can judge this, thy people, that is so great?"

Lucy Is Facing Task to Keep Kids Normal

By JOAN CROSBY

NEW YORK (NEA) — Lucille Ball looked very much the glamor queen as she descended an orange-carpeted circular stairway, her gold and white silk sari hostess gown trailing behind her, one arm gracefully behind her back.

"They are great stairs for falling down," she said, as she got to the bottom, "so I come down barefoot." She was holding a pair of high-heeled mules in her hidden hand!

Lucy, who is a star of both CBS television and radio, may have looked like a glamor girl, and acted like the zany character she is to fans, but she was concerned with a mother-next-door problem.

"I don't have any pessimistic thoughts, nothing drags me down. I don't have moods of depression and I think everything is possible, but," Lucy said, "I find it a little hard to help a teen-age daughter."

Lucy's daughter, Lucie, is 13. Her son, Desi IV, is 11. As the childrem of a wealthy and famous mother, there is an added burden on Lucy to keep them normal, something she says, "the average layman does not understand.

Middle class Americans have too much free time, and too easy a life to make disciplining youngsters easy, Lucy believes.

"Electric appliances make everything in the kitchen easier, and the laundry is generally sent out. What is a mother going to do?

"Force her child to iron shirts because that's what her grandmother did when the grandmother was a girl?

"It's harder these lays for young people to have a purpose of direction, because families don't demand responsibilites from their children."

Lucy, who feels she hasn't changed much over the years, is sensitive to the fact that people in small towns act unnaturally with celebrities.

"I went back to a small town where I spent some early years, and I found the poeple, who expected me to be different, had beaten me to it.

"I walked in one room and it was cold as Siberia. The highest compliment these people can give you, eventually, is to say, "Gee, you're real.'"

Romney Calls for More GOP Principles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan Gov. George Romney says he supports a plan for a Republican national conference this spring to reach consensus on party goals and principles.

At a luncheon Wednesday following President's Johnson's inauguration, Romney said "one of the lessons I learned in San Francisco was this: You can't get party principles and programs from a convention that is called to nominate candidates — I went there to fight for principles and found everyone concentrating on naming a candidate."

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller sidestepped specific endorsement of the conference party goals and principles.

At a luncheon Wednesday following President Johnson's inauguration, Romney said "I think there is a need to take stock of the situation and pull together the forces that represent a broad spectrum of thought in the party."

Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton said the result of a similar conference of governors held recently in Denver was "very good indeed."

Scranton said governors are taking a stronger role in party leadership, "but I don't think we are taking over."

Laborites Face New Test in British Vote

LONDON (AP) — Despite the political slowdown resulting from Sir Winston Churchill's illness, voters in two British election districts decide today whether key members of Prime Minister Wilson's cabinet will get seats in the House of Commons.

Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker, defeated in the October general election, is running in the grimy East London suburb of Leyton.

Minister of Technology Frank Cousins is fighting for his first parliamentary seat in the Midlands district of Nuneaton.

British political tradition requires that they have seats in Parliament to sit in the cabinet. Labor won both districts in October by safe margins, and both Gordon Walker and Cousins were expected to win today.

Both seats are vacant because Wilson elevated the holders — Reginald Sorensen from Leyton and Frank Owles from Nuneaton — to the House of Lords.

Danish Princess To Visit America

NEW YORK (AP) — Princess Benedikte, second daughter of Denmark's King Frederik, will pay her first visit to the United States in May.

The Danish Information Office in New York said the princess will visit this country for eight days, starting May 8.

Mother, Five Children Die in Burning House

MINETTO, N.Y. (AP) — A mother and five of her 10 children died Wednesday night in flames that destroyed their two-story frame home.

The father led the other five children to safety.

Firemen said the victims were Valeta Petrie, 53, and the children, Susan, 8, Barbara, 4, Bryan, 1, James, 6 and Gary 13. The bodies of the children were recovered.

Tunis Petrie, about 40, was hospitalized with smoke inhalation, burns and shock suffered, firemen said, when he tried to rescue his wife and the five children from the home, about seven miles south of Oswego in central New York state.

He had tried to re-enter the house after leading to safety Randy, 12, Nancy, 7, Rodney 3, Roger, 9, and David Stevenson, 17, a son of Mrs. Petrie's by a previous marriage.

Oswego County sheriff's deputies said a space heater apparently touched off the fire.

Dog Proves to Be Real Stool Pigeon

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Fresno Deputy Sheriff John Camino arrested John Grice, 20, Wednesday on warrants charging 13 traffic violations.

The deputy reported Grice's wife said her husband was not at home, but Camino noticed the family dog standing in front of a closet wagging his tail.

Camino opened the closet and there was Grice.

"I should have said that stool pigeon," Grice moaned as he was led to jail.

Tuxes and Ski Boots Noted in Social Advice

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — This is the height of the social season and the time for dinner jackets. And it's the start of the skiing season. So herewith a few pointers on the care and feeding of (a) dinner jackets and (b) ski boots.

The dinner jacket, or tuxedo if you will, should be kept in a neat plastic bag together with all accountrements such as vest, tie, jewelry and shirt close by or hung with it, ready to be donned.

A good wishbone hanger is the starting point since it fills in the shoulders of the coat and allows the garment to hang without wrinkles or folds. Trousers should be hung so they can be taken off the hanger and donned without the need for repressing.

The vest, or cummerbund, can be hung with the tuxedo with the clip bow tie clipped right to the vest, or a self-tying tie hung flat with the trousers. Studs, links and laundered shirt should be kept in one handy spot with black socks and suspenders, if one wears suspenders.

After wearing, the tuxedo should be hung up at once but not placed in a closet—it should air out overnight. Next day you can check it and send it to a cleaner if necessary. If nothing is wrong, brush it neatly to remove lint and return it to the plastic bag.

A few moth nuggets or crystals placed in the bottom of the bag, winter and summer, gives a clean fresh aroma if you don't use too much.

Shirts should be laundered at once.

All those tips are from Millicent Prince, who was a longtime fashion expert with After Six Formals. By coincidence After Six makes something called an Automatic Shoe-In which is a combination shoe tree and shoe rack and is great for ski boots as well as ordinary shoes.

Which brings up the care of ski boots themselves.

Shoe experts at Johnson's Wax have the following advice:

—Moisture that gets between the layers of leather that make up the soles can cause the soles to curl up at the toes. Several applications of paste shoe polish applied to the edges of the soles and worked in thoroughly will reduce moisture penetration.

—Neatsfoot or other oils or saddle soap should not be used on uppers because they tend to soften the leather. The uppers must remain firm enough to provide ankle support and only flexible enough to prevent cracking and to be comfortable.

—Boots should be polished often, usually after every ski outing. Paste shoe polish is recommended because it not only enhances the appearance of the boots but makes the leather water-repellent. It also helps protect the boots from scuffing because the wax, not the leather, absorbs the abrasion.

—Boot trees should be used whenever the boots are not being worn. Wads of paper will not prevent curling or twisting and trees make the boots easier to carry.

—At the end of the season boots should be polished, placed on boot trees and stored in a moderately dry place.

Operating Feature Fails on Mariner

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said today only one of the operating systems aboard the Mariner IV has failed since its Nov. 28 launching.

The lone casualty on the Mars-bound spacecraft was its solar plasma probe, designed to provide information on the minute particles emanating from the sun.

NASA said it stopped functioning properly one week after the launching.

The 575-pound spacecraft is to fly past Mars July 14. By midafternoon today, NASA said, the Mariner will have traveled more than 93 million miles. Since the earth has been moving at the same time, the spacecraft's distance from the earth will be only 10,042,886 miles.

Style Only Changed, Policies Same in Russia

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP) — The first 100 days after Nikita Khrushchev, now ending have brought a change more of style than substance.

Policies are basically the same as they were. Peaceful coexistence seems still the byword of Soviet foreign policy. There is no reconciliation with China. Domestic policy has so far been punctuated only by minor efforts to win popular favor.

But the style of leadership has changed strikingly.

Khrushchev his personality on government with a flair that made him an engaging character, whatever his faults. Now government and party are an almost uniformly gray color of anonymity. Their New Year's message to the Soviet people lacked any individual name. Pictures of public meetings show the general scene rather than closeups.

The men who took over Khrushchev's jobs, Leonid Brezhnev and Alexei Kosygin, shun the personal approach.

Devotion to collective leadership is being advertised as the correct policy according to Marx and Lenin. It could hide a struggle for power, a disagreement over who should get the spotlight.

"You can pick any one of half a dozen names for the man who will be on top in the next few years," says a diplomat long experienced in Soviet affairs, "and it might be right — but it would be a lucky guess."

Brezhnev and Kosygin head the list. The earlier "B and K" team of Nikolai Bulganin and Khrushchev was only transitional. It took Khrushchev five years from Stalin's death to attain top jobs in both party and government.

Additional prominent figures are President Anastas Mikoyan and Party Presidium members Nikolai Podgorny, Mikhail Suslov and Alexander Shelepin. And there are others, some as little noted now as Khrushchev was the day after Stalin died.

The men who ousted Khrushchev have not fully explained why they did it. They have only indirectly attacked him for dictatorial ways, thus denying the official reason assigned — old age and deteriorating health.

In the perspective of three months their reasons can be seen as less a desire to change basic policy than to be rid of a strong and increasingly unstable personality. They were offended by the way Khrushchev had become a one-man band.

They acted after a turbulent September that saw Khrushchev make conflicting statements on a "terrible weapon," undercut Soviet policy in the United Nations with a careless remark, apparently upset careful economic planning in a meeting that has never been fully reported and maneuver a son-in-law in high party and international affairs.

If any one factor finally caused discontent to coalesce into revolt, the successors have not disclosed it.

Some observers thought initially that it might have been Khrushchev's handling of the dispute with China. After the Lai rushed to Moscow to see if the successors would patch up the rift — on Chinese terms. But that would have meant subordinating Russian national interests, which dictate Soviet Communist tactics, to Chinese national interests. This the new leaders could not do.

So now, after attempts to make their position look more reasonable to East European allies and other Communists, they are marching again toward the bitter break.

The same facts of life confront the new leaders as Khrushchev had to face.

As a modern industrialized nation, the Soviet Union cannot afford to engage in nuclear war — the Chinese act as if they can. Therefore Moscow must emphasize peaceful coexistence and disarmament.

Brezhnev and Kosygin have stressed the continuity of Soviet foreign policy with special emphasis on peaceful coexistence. "The Soviet union is ready to develop Soviet-U.S. relations in the interests of our peoples, in the interests of strengthening peace," Brezhnev said.

Peaceful coexistence as defined by the Kremlin is, however, a one-way road. It permits Soviet aid to rebellions, on the theory that they represent popular will, but denies the right of the West to try to suppress Communist-aided uprisings.

The paratrooper rescue in the Congo brought criticism of the United States, plus indirect aid to the rebels. Soviet denunciations of the United States of Viet Nam have also hardened.

These Kremlin attitudes can be interpreted as a stiffening of policy toward Washington but, on balance, they can perhaps better be explained as normal Soviet reactions to particular situations.

Most prominent in Soviet foreign policy has been denunciation of the proposed NATO force of ships with Polaris missiles manned by crews of several nations. This is represented as a way of putting West German fingers on nuclear triggers.

The violence of Soviet denunciations on this subject can be explained as deeply ingrained fear of German military power or as a propaganda move to divide the West while providing moral support to Eastern allies who share the historic fear.

But, here again, the denunciation has been a response, in this case to discussions after the Labor government took over power in Britain.

Other unchanged basic policies include backing for Cub and the attempt to bring U.N. peacekeeping operations under a Security Council veto.

At home, de-Stalinization remains but cultural life has not been freed of controls Experimentation in most areas of science is becoming more respectable.

Khrushchev promised improvements to consumers. The new leaders have criticized him for not doing enough. But development of major industry remains an important priority.

Premier Kosygin promises that average wages will rise .5 per cent, almost double the rate in the last six years, that housing construction will be increased, and that sloppy consumer services will get better.

Farmers have been given more leeway to produce from their kitchen gardens, to increase inadequate dairy and vegetable supplies. Special rations have returned flour to kitchens.

Basic decisions about the musclebound and inefficient economy still seem to be pending. Experimentation with the use of profits as a motive to improve production is running into the barrier of an unrealistic price structure.

Probably the largest change within any field has been the new leaders' decision to abolish a 1962 Khrushchev split of local Communist party organizations into industrial and agricultural units. The division had been widely resented.

Podgorny has the job of revising Communist structure. This makes him, in effect, second secretary to Brezhnev's position as first secretary of the party. The first secretary's job is the power base from which Stalin ran the Soviet Union almost 30 years.

During his four years as Soviet President, Brezhnev impressed visitors with his sharp mind. Now he sees almost no outsiders.

Kosygin sees many people. He probes visitors for information yet manages to impress them.

Brezhnev's background is party manipulation, Kosygin's economic affairs. They both act like pragmatists, doing what they have studied carefully enough to be confident it will work.

The days of Khrushchev's crash programs — which often crashed — are over. Collective leadership naturally takes longer to act than one-man rule, even when action is intended.

The absence of sweeping changes in the first 100 days could mean more caution than lack of intention to make changes.

Such factors as the need to avoid nuclear war and the desire to spread a Kremlin brand of Communism in competition with Peking's brand appear to remain unchanged.

'Personalized Doll' Latest Fashion Fad

By WARD CANNEL
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

One of the biggest hardships of newspaper life, we have found, is having to go out now and again to interview movie stars.

To our way of thinking, the only thing these people have to offer is the excellent likeness they bear to the figures on the silver screen. But if you can see the real thing in 85 minutes at the movie house, why waste three hours over lunch with a scale model, no matter how perfectly constructed?

This is not to say the examination is completely without profit.

Taken apart carefully, a film personality will usually reveal all the ambition, corseting, venom and other cogs and wheels used in making movies. But you cannot expect to learn anything about art or life by dissecting the replica of a celluloid image.

We have gone into this matter in some detail because it is generally accepted that you can find out how a thing works by taking it apart. And if it is a very big thing, then you take apart a scale model of it.

In either case, that is the scientific method, and a fellow would have to be a fool to argue with it at this late date, now that practically everything has been taken apart and understood.

In that regard, we came across an astounding thing—or rather the scale model of it—the other day.

It is called a "Personalized Doll." Described in basic terms, it is a doll that is manufactured to look like a person. Not just any person, but the particular individual whose photograph you send to the manufacturer. And not merely sort of like that person,, but exactly the same in every facial detail.

We know that it is true because we saw a personalized doll. And the two faces were so exactly alike that it seemed for a moment or two that we would doll in the arms of a little girl require medical attention.

In fact, the feeling persisted into the next day and the day after. And a telephone call to the manufacturer, "Jet Party Favors Inc.," did not help matters much.

"Oh yes, the personalized doll," Mr. Weber said. "A very popular item. Especially with grandparents who want dolls made of their grandchildren. But there are quite a few orders from folks who want dolls of themselves as youngsters, or of their loved ones who have passed on.

Of course, it doesn't have to be a person at all," Mr. Weber said. "Several orders have come in for dolls with faces of dogs and cats. It's all the same to me no matter whose face is on the picture. It still has to be copied photographically on linen, molded and finished to conform to specifications, and cemented to the doll's head."

Looked at that way, the personalized doll seemed to be a rather meaningless replica.

After all, a doll has to look like somebody. And what rule says that it must look like any other doll and not like your grandmother, niece or departed poodle?

Besides, it is an inexpensive memento. A personal doll costs only $9.95, whereas a personalized grandmother of the same size would propably cost well over $300, judging by what they are getting for stuffing a chimpanzee nowadays.

And anyhow, a photograph is only a photograph. Even if it is printed on linen. And a stuffed doll is certainly nothing more than a stuffed doll.

But somehow taking it apart does not help you understand any of it. The only time it means anything, is when you have put it together. But in that case, you cannot really explain it at all.

Carol Channing Will Extend Her Contract

NEW YORK (AP) — Carol Channing, star of "Hello, Dolly!" since the Broadway musical opened, has agreed to extend her contract until June 1, 1967.

A spokesman for producer David Merrick said Wednesday it was the longest commitment a star has had with a producer.

As a result, Miss Channing will get 10 per cent of the receipts instead of 7½ per cent. The show has taken in $33,000 a week since its opening at the St. James Theater on Nov. 16, 1963.

LONDON — England faces an egg shortage.

London Recalls Its Year of Great Plague

By TOM A. CULLEN
European Staff Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

LONDON (NEA) — Londoners never seem happy unless they are celebrating some stirring event. When they are not honoring Shakespeare's birthday, it is Churchill who gets the big play, or perhaps it is the man who invented laughing gas.

Currently, the Great Plague of London is getting the red carpet treatment, with a Guidehall exhibiti to marks its 300th anniversary. The Great Plague may be no match for Shakespeare or Churchill as a crowd-puller, but it has the makings of a Samuel Bronstein movie spectacular, according to those who have seen the exhibit.

As a reminder of what it was like to live in a city without sanitation and where medicine was a combination of voodoo and guesswork, the Guildhall has assembeld some unique exhibits.

They include advertisements for quack medicines as sure cures for the plague, bills of mortality which show that the plague took over 100,000 lives, religious tracks comparing London to Sodom, woodcuts showing the Angel of Death hovering over a city covered with coffins.

One of the most curious exhibits is a plague pass dated July 5, 1665, signed by two churchwardens, certifying that Mary Cross, a servant, was free of the plague and at liberty to leave London.

This pass was found in the woodwork of the Cross Keys Inn at Evesham when the tavern was torn down in 1939. Presumably, Mary took a job as barmaid there when she left London.

As a matter of fact, Mary got out of London just in time, according to John Bromley, deputy librarian at Guildhall. "So many of these passes were forged that they were not recognized after a while," Bromley explains.

"The towns and villages outside London posted armed guards to turn back all travelers, whether they had plague passes or not."

It has been 300 years since London streets have echoed with the rumble of the carts and the dread cry of "Bring out your dead!"; but the Great Plague has left scars that are still visible.

This city is still dotted with patches of wasteland which mark the mass burial pits of the plague victims.

London street urchins still chant "A ring round the rosies, pocket full of posies," unaware that this nursery rhyme originated with the plague. (The "rosies" refers to the red rash which covered the bodies of the plague victims; the "posies" were the herbs and spices carried to sweeten the air.)

The Great Plague began modestly enough with a few deaths in December 1664, which the authorities tried to conceal in their reports for fear of starting a panic.

By spring, however, theaters, bear-baiting pits, alehouses and taverns had been closed down by public order as the contagion spread. Also, the trickle of rich merchants fleeing from Lodon with their families had swollen into a flood.

King Charles II and his court fled from London in June. So did the faculty of the College of Surgeons. As the pestilence raged, over 10,000 persons took to living on boats moored downstream in the Thames.

This left the poor of London to bear the brunt of the plague, and they were shown no mercy. Huge red crosses were daubed on the doors of infected houses, and those inside were locked up to die, with a day and night watch being maintained to insure that no one entered or left.

Burials took place only at night, the dead carts being preceded by a bellman calling for the bodies.

At the height of the plague in September 1665, Londoners were dying at the rate of 10,000 a week, their bodies being pitched into huge pits as the churchyards become overcrowded.

It was a field day for religious zealots who blamed the plague on sinful living, urged the populace to "repent now." Quack doctors did a brisk business in peddling their nostrums. So did the charlatans who sold lucky charms to ward off the evil plague spirits.

The Great Plague was the last and most terrible of all the epidemics that had ravaged London from the Black Death of 1348 onward. By the time it was over the city had lost one-quarter of its population.

No one knows why the bubonic plague never returned. Some say that London became plague-free because its sanitation improved. Others say that it was because the black rat was defeated by the brown rat. Bubonic plauge was transmitted by the flea of the black rat.)

Nasser Assured Vote For Another Term

CAIRO (AP) — Gamal Abdel Nasser was assured election today to a third six-year term as president of the United Arab Republic.

Nasser, 47, was nominated by the National Assembly Wednesday night after a campaign of mass demonstrations and petitions in support of his candidacy.

He will run unopposed in March.

Ohio Man Confesses Slaying Schoolgirl

TIFFIN, Ohio (AP) — Police early today arrested a 23-year-old Tiffin man and said he has confessed to the Jan. 6 rape-slaying of Tharon Shepherd, 16, a Columbian High School junior.

A joint statement from Tiffin police and the Seneca County sheriff's department said Joseph Raymond Esselman had admitted the killing. Esselman is being held in the county jail on charges of investigation of murder. Authorities said he is to be arraigned today or Friday in Tiffin Municipal Court.

The nude body of the petite brunette was found Jan. 9 alongside a muddy lover's lane in a woods two miles south Tiffin by County Game Warden Sheldon Neff. The girl had disappeared four days earlier, after telling her stepfather, Clarence Needles, that she was going to a drugstore four blocks away to buy a notebook for school.

She had been badly beaten and raped, an investigation showed later.

Style Only Changed, Policies Same in Russia

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP) — The first 100 days after Nikita Khrushchev, now ending have brought a change more of style than substance.

Policies are basically the same as they were. Peaceful coexistence seems still the byword of Soviet foreign policy. There is no reconciliation with China. Domestic policy has so far been punctuated only by minor efforts to win popular favor.

But the style of leadership has changed strikingly.

Khrushchev his personality on government with a flair that made him an engaging character, whatever his faults. Now government and party are an almost uniformly gray color of anonymity. Their New Year's message to the Soviet people lacked any individual name. Pictures of public meetings show the general scene rather than closeups.

The men who took over Khrushchev's jobs, Leonid Brezhnev and Alexei Kosygin, shun the personal approach.

Devotion to collective leadership is being advertised as the correct policy according to Marx and Lenin. It could hide a struggle for power, a disagreement over who should get the spotlight.

"You can pick any one of half a dozen names for the man who will be on top in the next few years," says a diplomat long experienced in Soviet affairs, "and it might be right — but it would be a lucky guess."

Brezhnev and Kosygin head the list. The earlier "B and K" team of Nikolai Bulganin and Khrushchev was only transitional. It took Khrushchev five years from Stalin's death to attain top jobs in both party and government.

Additional prominent figures are President Anastas Mikoyan and Party Presidium members Nikolai Podgorny, Mikhail Suslov and Alexander Shelepin. And there are others, some as little noted now as Khrushchev was the day after Stalin died.

The men who ousted Khrushchev have not fully explained why they did it. They have only indirectly attacked him for dictatorial ways, thus denying the official reason assigned — old age and deteriorating health.

In the perspective of three months their reasons can be seen as less a desire to change basic policy than to be rid of a strong and increasingly unstable personality. They were offended by the way Khrushchev had become a one-man band.

They acted after a turbulent September that saw Khrushchev make conflicting statements on a "terrible weapon," undercut Soviet policy in the United Nations with a careless remark, apparently upset careful economic planning in a meeting that has never been fully reported and maneuver a son-in-law in high party and international affairs.

If any one factor finally caused discontent to coalesce into revolt, the successors have not disclosed it.

Some observers thought initially that it might have been Khrushchev's handling of the dispute with China. After the Lai rushed to Moscow to see if the successors would patch up the rift — on Chinese terms. But that would have meant subordinating Russian national interests, which dictate Soviet Communist tactics, to Chinese national interests. This the new leaders could not do.

So now, after attempts to make their position look more reasonable to East European allies and other Communists, they are marching again toward the bitter break.

The same facts of life confront the new leaders as Khrushchev had to face.

As a modern industrialized nation, the Soviet Union cannot afford to engage in nuclear war — the Chinese act as if they can. Therefore Moscow must emphasize peaceful coexistence and disarmament.

Brezhnev and Kosygin have stressed the continuity of Soviet foreign policy with special emphasis on peaceful coexistence. "The Soviet union is ready to develop Soviet-U.S. relations in the interests of our peoples, in the interests of strengthening peace," Brezhnev said.

Peaceful coexistence as defined by the Kremlin is, however, a one-way road. It permits Soviet aid to rebellions, on the theory that they represent popular will, but denies the right of the West to try to suppress Communist-aided uprisings.

The paratrooper rescue in the Congo brought criticism of the United States, plus indirect aid to the rebels. Soviet denunciations of the United States of Viet Nam have also hardened.

These Kremlin attitudes can be interpreted as a stiffening of policy toward Washington but, on balance, they can perhaps better be explained as normal Soviet reactions to particular situations.

Most prominent in Soviet foreign policy has been denunciation of the proposed NATO force of ships with Polaris missiles manned by crews of several nations. This is represented as a way of putting West German fingers on nuclear triggers.

The violence of Soviet denunciations on this subject can be explained as deeply ingrained fear of German military power or as a propaganda move to divide the West while providing moral support to Eastern allies who share the historic fear.

But, here again, the denunciation has been a response, in this case to discussions after the Labor government took over power in Britain.

Other unchanged basic policies include backing for Cub and the attempt to bring U.N. peacekeeping operations under a Security Council veto.

At home, de-Stalinization remains but cultural life has not been freed of controls Experimentation in most areas of science is becoming more respectable.

Khrushchev promised improvements to consumers. The new leaders have criticized him for not doing enough. But development of major industry remains an important priority.

Premier Kosygin promises that average wages will rise .5 per cent, almost double the rate in the last six years, that housing construction will be increased, and that sloppy consumer services will get better.

Farmers have been given more leeway to produce from their kitchen gardens, to increase inadequate dairy and vegetable supplies. Special rations have returned flour to kitchens.

Basic decisions about the musclebound and inefficient economy still seem to be pending. Experimentation with the use of profits as a motive to improve production is running into the barrier of an unrealistic price structure.

Probably the largest change within any field has been the new leaders' decision to abolish a 1962 Khrushchev split of local Communist party organizations into industrial and agricultural units. The division had been widely resented.

Podgorny has the job of revising Communist structure. This makes him, in effect, second secretary to Brezhnev's position as first secretary of the party. The first secretary's job is the power base from which Stalin ran the Soviet Union almost 30 years.

During his four years as Soviet President, Brezhnev impressed visitors with his sharp mind. Now he sees almost no outsiders.

Kosygin sees many people. He probes visitors for information yet manages to impress them.

Brezhnev's background is party manipulation, Kosygin's economic affairs. They both act like pragmatists, doing what they have studied carefully enough to be confident it will work.

The days of Khrushchev's crash programs — which often crashed — are over. Collective leadership naturally takes longer to act than one-man rule, even when action is intended.

The absence of sweeping changes in the first 100 days could mean more caution than lack of intention to make changes.

Such factors as the need to avoid nuclear war and the desire to spread a Kremlin brand of Communism in competition with Peking's brand appear to remain unchanged.

Super Constellation Becomes Cocktail Bar

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A Super-G Constellation airliner soon will be standing on Main St. and used as a cocktail lounge.

The 4-engine propeller-driven plane will be complete in every detail, the owners say, and could be readied for flight in four days.

There will be nothing on the now vacant lot but the plane, moored in concrete, the usual air terminal gates and the boarding ramp.

It will seat 70 customers with hostesses to serve cocktails at the touch of a buzzer.

Principal owner is Patrick G. Quirk, an ex-pilot who bought the plane for $30,000. It cost about $3.5 million new, he said.

SPEAKERS NAMED

DENVER (UPI)—Officials of the Colorado Pesticide Applicators workshop said former Colorado Congressman Donald Brotzman and Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Myron G. Allen would speak at the event Feb. 8-9. The workshop is open to aerial specialists in agricultural pesticides.

PARACHUTE IN PLANE ENGINE — Parts of a parachute and its nylon cords were found wrapped around parts of the engine of an Air Force KC 135 tanker plane that crashed at Wichita, Kan., killing seven crewmen and 23 occupants of homes. The engine, as well as the other three from the plane, were brought to Oklahoma City for study at Tinker Air Force Base. (AP Wirephoto)

Kiss Me, Stupid Gets Barrage Of Criticism

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ray Walston cracked about the furor over "Kiss me, Stupid": "It has been great for my image — made me seem racy without getting me in trouble with my wife."

But his is a Pagliacci-like comment hiding the hurt inside. The barrage of criticism directed at the Billy Wilder sex-comedy has both puzzled and pained him.

A cap pulled down over his forehead, Walston bicycled from the "My Favorite Martian" set to a nearby restaurant to discuss the affair over lunch.

"I can tell you this about 'Kiss Me, Stupid,'" the comedian said in utter seriousness. "There is a big hurt in here." He tapped his chest significantly.

He said that he was probably more upset by the film's outcome than anyone beside Wilder. "And I can assure you that Wilder, for all his flippant exterior, is a sensitive man," he added. "I know that he is terribly upset by all this."

"Kiss Me, Stupid," intended as a satire on modern morals, was castigated as just plain dirty by many film critics. The National Legion of Decency went further. It condemned the movie as unfit for Catholic movie goers and blasted the film industry for laxity in self-censorship.

Walston was at first concerned over the effect the controversy might have on his juvenile following for "My Favorite Martian."

What went wrong with "Kiss Me, Stupid"? Although still emotionally involved with it, Walston attempted some perspective.

"When I read the script, it seemed to be a beautiful story about a little man who almost sold his wife and his honor for a song," he remarked. "If we failed to achieve that theme, then we deserve to be criticized for it, and not because the picture was too sexy

"I didn't think the script was overly sexy, nor did I get that impression during the 14 weeks of filming. Why, I even took my 11-year-old daughter to the sneak preview. I wouldn't have done that if it had been something I didn't think she should see.

"I don't think the sexiness would have been criticized — if the crucial scene had been realized. That was when the little man went to bed with the hooker, played by Kim Novak. The point should have been that his morals were so great he treated the girl just like his wife.

"But people didn't realize that. Somehow the magic didn't happen."

SCHMIDT MAKES MOVE

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—Neil Schmidt, 1951 Purdue graduate and a member of the Texas A&M coaching staff, has been hired by Florida State football Coach Bill Peterson to replace John Coatta, who resigned to become an assistant at Wisconsin.

Schmidt, who was a scholar-athlete at Purdue where he was judged the outstanding senior athlete, will join the defensive staff at Florida State next month.

Esperanto May Be Poised for Breakthrough

By ARTHUR HIGBEE

NEW YOR K(UPI) — Esperanto, the international language, may be poised for a breakthrough to global status.

The "language of hope" has been around for three-quarters of a century. But it looks like a natural for the jet age.

The proliferation of new nations, scientific knowledge, world trade and travel demand a language that is easy to learn, yet has a rich and supple vocabulary.

Basic English has certain drawbacks. For one thing, it is just too basic. You can't use it to write a treaty, a play or a scientific thesis.

English is regarded by many people around the globe as a colonialist language. So are French, Spanish, Russian and Chinese—the other four offical languages of the United Nations. Esperanto is neutral.

Most people feel self-conscious when speaking anything but their mother tongue. Esperanto is the exception. Anyone who speaks Esperanto is on an equal footing with every other Esperanto speaker.

Americans who have traveled abroad know that it is just "not" true that "everyone speaks some English" — or French, or any other language.

The use of English is being officially discouraged in India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Malaysia and other former British colonies. They are pushing their own languages. The same is true of Dutch in Indonesia or of French in former French territories.

With all these new nations retreating into their local tongues and dialects, language barriers are getting higher at the very time that the world's buisiness demands that they be lowered.

The United Nations and other international organizations — more than a thousand in all — spend millions of dollars a year on translation services.

Most of this money could be saved if a common international language gained general acceptance.

Esperanto certainly is simple enough. It has just 16 rules of grammar and pronunciation, with NO irregularities or exceptions. It can be learned in about one-fourth the time it takes to learn any other language. (The Esperanto Information Center, 180 Riverside Drive, New York 24, will send you more information for a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Yet the vocabulary is full-sized. Shakespeare's plays and Einstein's theories have been translated into Esperanto.

More and more people are getting the idea. Examples:

—Esperanto is taught in the schools of 32 countries, from the United States to the U.S.S.R.

—International companies like Philips Electric of Holland and Fiat motors of Italy print their brochures in Esperanto.

—Communist China is pushing Mandarin as the language spoken by more people—half a billion—than any other. But Esperanto is one of the languages it uses in its propaganda broadcasts.

—The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) gives financial support to the publication of great works, such as Dante's "Divine Comedy," into Esperanto.

—Esperanto is one of the languages used in the official introductory guide to the New York World's Fair.

Ali Gerad Jama, minister of education in the new African republic of Somaliland, says: "It is humiliating for the small nations to be obliged to learn the languages of the large. Only a neutral language like Esperanto can eliminate that cultural dependency."

E. L. M. Wensing, an executive of the Philips company, puts it this way: "Esperanto is good business."

County Council On Alcoholism To Hold Meet

The El Paso County Council on Alcoholism will hold its eighth annual meeting at 8 p.m. Monday, at the City-County Health Building, 401 N. Foote.

Election of officers and announcement of four new members to the board of directors will preceed a program featuring Mrs. Frona McCambridge, Sr. consultant of the Colorado State Dept. of Public Health, alcoholism division.

Mrs. McCambridge was instrumental in helping a group of local interested citzens establish a Committee on Alcoholism in 1957 which became the El Paso County Council on Alcoholism, Inc. in 1962, an affiliate of the National Council and a member of the United Fund in 1963.

The progress and programs of both the state agency and local council will be Mrs. McCambridge topic of discussion. Cooperation and functions of each in their areas for better and more extensive alcohol education for state and community coverage in this fourth major health problem will be included.

As senior consultant for the State Agency, Mrs. McCambridge is a member of the North American Association of Alcoholism Programs, and has attended many of their conferences throughout this country.

Council members, other local agencies and disciplines interested and working in a relative field are urged to attend. The public is invited.

Super Constellation Becomes Cocktail Bar

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A Super-G Constellation airliner soon will be standing on Main St. and used as a cocktail lounge.

The 4-engine propeller-driven plane will be complete in every detail, the owners say, and could be readied for flight in four days.

There will be nothing on the now vacant lot but the plane, moored in concrete, the usual air terminal gates and the boarding ramp.

It will seat 70 customers with hostesses to serve cocktails at the touch of a buzzer.

Principal owner is Patrick G. Quirk, an ex-pilot who bought the plane for $30,000. It cost about $3.5 million new, he said.

SPEAKERS NAMED

Kiss Me, Stupid Gets Barrage Of Criticism

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ray Walston cracked about the furor over "Kiss me, Stupid": "It has been great for my image — made me seem racy without getting me in trouble with my wife."

But his is a Pagliacci-like comment hiding the hurt inside. The barrage of criticism directed at the Billy Wilder sex-comedy has both puzzled and pained him.

A cap pulled down over his forehead, Walston bicycled from the "My Favorite Martian" set to a nearby restaurant to discuss the affair over lunch.

"I can tell you this about 'Kiss Me, Stupid,'" the comedian said in utter seriousness. "There is a big hurt in here." He tapped his chest significantly.

He said that he was probably more upset by the film's outcome than anyone beside Wilder. "And I can assure you that Wilder, for all his flippant exterior, is a sensitive man," he added. "I know that he is terribly upset by all this."

"Kiss Me, Stupid," intended as a satire on modern morals, was castigated as just plain dirty by many film critics. The National Legion of Decency went further. It condemned the movie as unfit for Catholic movie goers and blasted the film industry for laxity in self-censorship.

Walston was at first concerned over the effect the controversy might have on his juvenile following for "My Favorite Martian."

What went wrong with "Kiss Me, Stupid"? Although still emotionally involved with it, Walston attempted some perspective.

"When I read the script, it seemed to be a beautiful story about a little man who almost sold his wife and his honor for a song," he remarked. "If we failed to achieve that theme, then we deserve to be criticized for it, and not because the picture was too sexy

"I didn't think the script was overly sexy, nor did I get that impression during the 14 weeks of filming. Why, I even took my 11-year-old daughter to the sneak preview. I wouldn't have done that if it had been something I didn't think she should see.

"I don't think the sexiness would have been criticized — if the crucial scene had been realized. That was when the little man went to bed with the hooker, played by Kim Novak. The point should have been that his morals were so great he treated the girl just like his wife.

"But people didn't realize that. Somehow the magic didn't happen."

Esperanto May Be Poised for Breakthrough

By ARTHUR HIGBEE

NEW YOR K(UPI) — Esperanto, the international language, may be poised for a breakthrough to global status.

The "language of hope" has been around for three-quarters of a century. But it looks like a natural for the jet age.

The proliferation of new nations, scientific knowledge, world trade and travel demand a language that is easy to learn, yet has a rich and supple vocabulary.

Basic English has certain drawbacks. For one thing, it is just too basic. You can't use it to write a treaty, a play or a scientific thesis.

English is regarded by many people around the globe as a colonialist language. So are French, Spanish, Russian and Chinese—the other four offical languages of the United Nations. Esperanto is neutral.

Most people feel self-conscious when speaking anything but their mother tongue. Esperanto is the exception. Anyone who speaks Esperanto is on an equal footing with every other Esperanto speaker.

Americans who have traveled abroad know that it is just "not" true that "everyone speaks some English" — or French, or any other language.

The use of English is being officially discouraged in India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Malaysia and other former British colonies. They are pushing their own languages. The same is true of Dutch in Indonesia or of French in former French territories.

With all these new nations retreating into their local tongues and dialects, language barriers are getting higher at the very time that the world's buisiness demands that they be lowered.

The United Nations and other international organizations — more than a thousand in all—spend millions of dollars a year on translation services.

Most of this money could be saved if a common international language gained general acceptance.

Esperanto certainly is simple enough. It has just 16 rules of grammar and pronunciation, with NO irregularities or exceptions. It can be learned in about one-fourth the time it takes to learn any other language. (The Esperanto Information Center, 100 Riverside Drive, New York 24, will send you more information for a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Yet the vocabulary is full-sized. Shakespeare's plays and Einstein's theories have been translated into Esperanto.

More and more people are getting the idea. Examples:

—Esperanto is taught in the schools of 32 countries, from the United States to the U.S.S.R.

—International companies like Philips Electric of Holland and Fiat motors of Italy print their brochures in Esperanto.

—Communist China is pushing Mandarin as the language spoken by more people—half a billion—than any other. But Esperanto is one of the languages it uses in its propaganda broadcasts.

—The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) gives financial support to the publication of great works, such as Dante's "Divine Comedy," into Esperanto.

—Esperanto is one of the languages used in the official introductory guide to the New York World's Fair.

Ali Gerad Jama, minister of education in the new African republic of Somaliland, says: "It is humiliating for the small nations to be obliged to learn the languages of the large. Only a neutral language like Esperanto can eliminate that cultural dependency."

E. L. M. Wensing, an executive of the Philips company, puts it this way: "Esperanto is good business."

County Council On Alcoholism To Hold Meet

The El Paso County Council on Alcoholism will hold its eighth annual meeting at 8 p.m. Monday, at the City-County Health Building, 401 N. Foote.

Election of officers and announcement of four new members to the board of directors will preceed a program featuring Mrs. Frona McCambridge, Sr. consultant of the Colorado State Dept. of Public Health, alcoholism division.

Mrs. McCambridge was instrumental in helping a group of local interested citzens establish a Committee on Alcoholism in 1957 which became the El Paso County Council on Alcoholism, Inc. in 1962, an affiliate of the National Council and a member of the United Fund in 1963.

The progress and programs of both the state agency and local council will be Mrs. McCambridge topic of discussion. Cooperation and functions of each in their areas for better and more extensive alcohol education for state and community coverage in this fourth major health problem will be included.

As senior consultant for the State Agency, Mrs. McCambridge is a member of the North American Association of Alcoholism Programs, and has attended many of their conferences throughout this country.

Council members, other local agencies and disciplines interested and working in a relative field are urged to attend. The public is invited.
